Moving forward for digital again

It's not often we congratulate the brains behind Britain's digital TV strategy, but this month brought two pieces of good news: an extended trial for the eight-day Freeview programme guide, and a pair of analogue switch-off trials in Wales.

The eight-day electronic programme guide for Freeview is one of those features which only seem important to those people who already have one – like Sky Digital users and German satellite TV viewers. Implemented correctly, an EPG is much more than just text listings, and it soon replaces any other type of listings (fortunately for us, few boxes have the memory capacity for a whole month of programme data!).

The absence of an eight-day guide for Freeview has held back personal video recorders in Britain, which is a shame because they're such useful gadgets. Again, the proof is in the using; almost anyone with Sky Plus will say it is more than worth the extra outlay. With Freeview, a PVR doesn't even cost more in the long term.

If successful, the EPG will not only make Freeview a mature digital TV platform, it will also clearly mark the quality brands of Freeview adapter – those which can be updated to receive the EPG data – against the knock-offs which were built with an eye to profit instead of future viability.

The switch-off trials in Wales are a true step forward because both the naysayers and the optimists will finally get to see the truth in their predictions. It's unlikely the trials will be an unqualified success, but we should learn enough to identify which parts of the country can be switched off soonest, and how much it will cost to avoid leaving Granny with a blank screen when analogue is left behind.

Digital vision delights

Our SDI conversion article highlights the benefits of watching digital TV on a plasma or LCD monitor with an uninterrupted digital stream. There's also a tinge of sadness, because it's currently impossible to modify the latest Sky Plus boxes, which use an integrated chipset that combines the DVB digital decoding and analogue-to-digital conversion.

The silver lining is that if enough people convert their early Sky Pluses to SDI output (and plasma screens are getting cheaper by the month), Sky will promise to put an HDMI digital output on the next generation in a year or so. Now that's something worth waiting for ■

Welsh first for digital change

MORE THAN 300 HOMES TO TAKE EARLY ANALOGUE SWITCH-OFF

Two Welsh villages will have their analogue terrestrial TV signals turned off in a trial run for Britain's digital switchover.

About 350 homes will have their analogue service turned off for three months from November – if they agree to the plan.

Those who have not already upgraded to digital through Freeview or satellite will be given free digital terrestrial adapters, with extra Freeview adapters to convert bedroom and kitchen TVs.

Twin-decoder adapters will be handed out to allow those with video recorders to watch one channel while recording another.

The villages of Ferryside and Llanstaffen, in Carmarthenshire, are ideal because each relies on a single transmitter. The geography of the Welsh valleys blocks analogue signals from surrounding areas.

If the trial is successful, the government has indicated that it won't need any more trial schemes before it starts a general analogue switch-off programme.

A regional analogue switch-off programme could start in Britain's major cities as early as 2006.

Some parts of the TV industry had thought digital switchover would be tested in a remote location like the Channel Isles, but interference from French TV would be a major problem for this location.

'IF THE TRIAL IS SUCCESSFUL, THE GOVERNMENT HAS INDICATED THAT IT WON'T NEED ANY MORE TRIAL SCHEMES BEFORE FULL ANALOGUE SWITCH-OFF'

Residents in the Welsh trial will also be able to get both S4C and English Channel 4 – the lack of the latter being a source of dissatisfaction to most Welsh people.

The government has already written to Ofcom and broadcasters asking for a timetable on which to achieve the switch to digital.

Ofcom wants the government to offer free adapters to over-75s, who are least likely to take to Freeview on their own.

The regulator also thinks Britain should be switched over on a regional basis when digital take-up reaches 85 per cent in an area.

Coverage for Freeview could then be further boosted by turning off one analogue channel – such as BBC2 – and turning up the power on the digital signals.

Make a minor classic

Movie-lovers' channel TCM has once again launched its Classic Shorts competition for new film-makers.

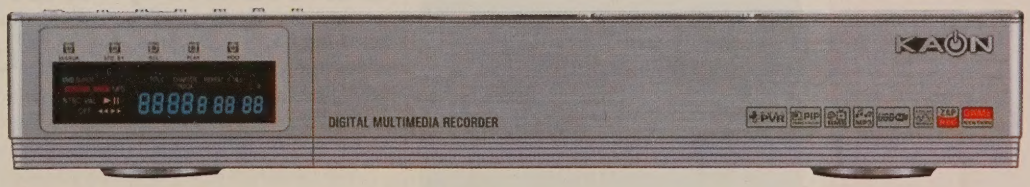
A £10,000 purse is on offer for the best short film submitted, along with screening on TCM and at the bfi London Film Festival for all the shortlisted entries.

The judging panel includes British talent such as Lord Puttnam (above), Sir Alan Parker, Jonny Lee Miller, Bryan Ferry and critic Richard Jobson.

Winners and finalists in the past two years have both gone on to win Best Short Film awards at the BAFTAs.

Entries must be submitted by September 1, 2004, with entry forms and full details available at www.tcmonline.co.uk/classicshorts

Six of the best



Too good to be true? A satellite receiver which can record up to six channels at once, be controlled via the internet and record from external sources.

Kaon's KVR1000 is a digital multimedia recorder and server for the home user.

With two tuners and a multi-channel decoder, it can record up to six channels from one transponder, while playing back a live channel from a different transponder.

It also has a built-in analogue-to-digital encoder for recording from the VCR Scart or composite video inputs.

Finally, the Ethernet port can be used to stream video in real-time across the internet, using a simulated remote control to program and control the receiver.

Needless to say, there's also DiSEqC motor control with USALS, a USB PC link for transferring files, and hard disc sizes start at 80GB.

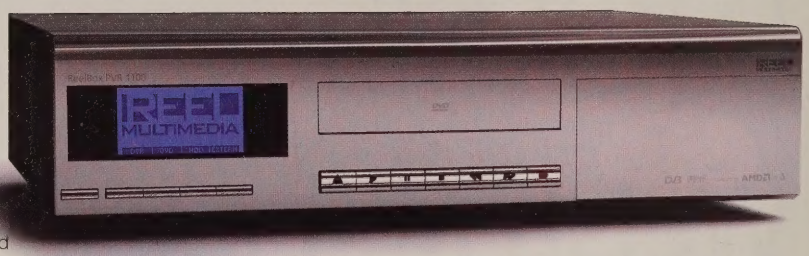
IN BRIEF

- Racing UK came on air ahead of new At The Races by a nose, after securing time on iSportsTV from the last weekend of May. The new channel has an agreement to show races from 30 courses, which will be shown alongside virtual horse-racing on channel 425
- GPS satellite tracking may be used to keep tabs on sex offenders, prisoners on parole, and those serving non-custodial sentences. The government has been encouraged by trials that monitor the offenders' location as an update to electronic tagging
- Tuner modules could be replaced by a single chip in satellite receivers, following ST Microelectronics' design of a single-chip silicon tuner with built-in RF processing. The development should reduce the cost, size and power consumption of digital TV receivers
- Japanese ads giant Dentsu has sponsored a mystery Japanese TV star to visit the International Space Station aboard a Soyuz rocket. The star's name is being kept secret, but he will travel after an American entrepreneur visits the ISS in April 2005
- Top-Up TV says it secured 20,000 subscribers in its first month. The 10-channel service costs £8 a month and needs just 250,000 subscribers to break even, but is currently only available to owners of old ITV Digital boxes, IDTVs, and the few Freeview adapters with a common interface slot
- Sky Italia will stop using Seca Mediaguard 2 encryption by the end of the year in favour of the more secure Videoguard encryption. Seca 2 was recently hacked by pirates. Sky Italia no longer sells new subscriptions for Seca 2 equipment, and has promised to pay for Seca 2 homes to switch to Videoguard

A Reel breakthrough



Combine a twin-tuner satellite receiver, hard disc recorder, DVD player, home media server and Linux operating system – and you have the Reelbox PVR-1100.

The Reelbox is the latest in the new wave of multimedia home servers that can record digital TV and then play back over any network. It's based on a 300MHz AMD Geode processor with a dedicated 180MHz Philips Nexperia multimedia processor to handle audio and video coding. This is supported by 128MB of memory, and the user can add 3.5in IDE hard drives of any capacity.

The PVR-1100 is available in digital satellite and terrestrial models, with twin-tuners and an optional analogue tuner for recording from external sources.

For satellite reception it has a twin common interface and a built-in Neotion CAM for the Full-X adult channels.

The software is based on Linux, so users are free to write their own software and the video encoder can handle both MPEG2 and MPEG4. Users can connect to the PVR-1100 across a network or the internet and control the receiver from any PC with the client software.

Connections include Ethernet, three Firewire and three USB ports, composite, S-video and digital audio inputs, two Scarts with RGB support, component video outputs, discrete 5.1 analogue audio outputs, and digital audio outputs with Dolby Digital and DTS support.

The real MTV

Amateur and professional musicians can polish their skills and showcase their talent with the free-to-air M-Channel on 28°E.

The Musicians Televisions Channel is the first dedicated to encouraging, inspiring and educating all people with an interest in musical activity.

The channel features tuition on guitar, bass, vocals, drums and percussion, keyboards and harmonica, plus tips and tricks snippets, and showcases of live artists.

Once it's established, M-Channel is also hoped to feature orchestral and classical music, world music and urban styles like DJ and MC techniques and street dance workshops.

The channel can be found on Sky number 475, on Eurobird 1 at 28.5°E, 11.222GHz/H, SR 27500, FEC 3/4, with full details at www.mchannel.tv

W3A takes over at 7°E

Eutelsat's latest satellite has taken over broadcasting at 7°E after a test period of just two weeks.

W3A is the first of Astrium's giant Eurostar E3000 satellites, carrying both Ku-band TV and radio transponders, and Ka-band with on-board Skyplex processing.

The Ku-band payload has taken over duties such as European Broadcasting Union relays in MPEG4:2:2, Digiturk pay-TV, RAI, TV Poland and other services.

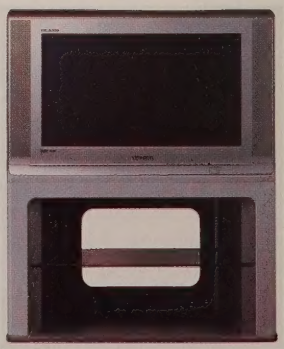
Most services were switched over within 30 seconds, with the longest taking under 90 seconds to swap satellites.

The Ka-band equipment will be used for internet and other IP services, with Skyplex allowing users to uplink and downlink from all over Europe, the Middle East, and most of Africa.

W3 was launched five years ago and still has up to 10 years left in orbit, so it is being moved to a new slot at 48°E, a slot formerly occupied by Eutelsat II F1.

Samsung launches IDTV

Samsung has introduced a 28in 100Hz widescreen set to the growing integrated digital television market.



The WS28A116D has a Pureflat screen and an onboard digital terrestrial tuner.

Also included is a now-and-next EPG as well as support for MHEG-5 internet services.

Connectivity comprises two Scarts and a composite video input and Nicam stereo is provided by two 10W speakers with a Virtual Dolby setting. The TV is available now and costs around £400

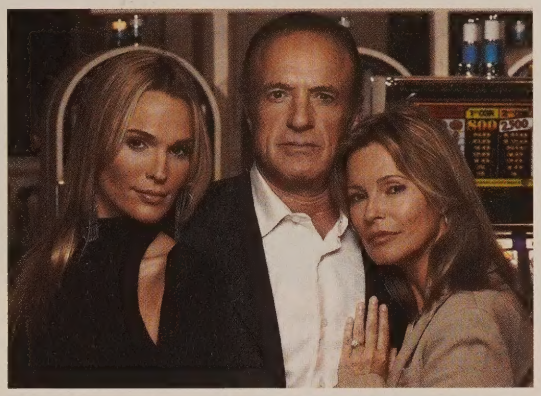
Exclusive HBO deal on the cards for Sky



Sky subscribers could be guaranteed access to new shows from HBO – the home of Sex & The City, The Sopranos and Six Feet Under.

The satellite broadcaster is rumoured to be negotiating a three-year-deal for all of HBO's new shows – including new shows no one has yet seen.

Sky programming chief Dawn Airey has said she wants Sky One to regain its crown as the home of 'the best of US' TV.

The deal may have been sparked when Ms Airey wanted to buy offbeat series Carnivale, but balked at the cost of the unproven show.

Carnivale eventually went cheaply to FX289, but it has now been picked up for a second run in America, which usually indicates a lasting appeal.

The new deal could save money on several new series, but some of them could turn out to be flops.

Both Channel 4 and the BBC – which carries HBO shows Band Of Brothers and Curb Your Enthusiasm – have already ruled out the risk of an exclusive deal.

Sky has already had to weather some fallout with a similar deal when it took a slate of potential hit shows from Warner Bros for this year.

Nip/Tuck, Cold Cases and Las Vegas have been picked up for second runs in the US, but Tarzan, The Handler and Fearless were axed in the US – Fearless without a single episode being made.

It's unlikely all shows on HBO will be included in the deal because outside producers like Paramount often hold the distribution rights.

Tangy TV

The world's only expatriate Chinese TV channel has come to Europe, free-to-air on Hot Bird.

New Tang Dynasty TV is an independent, no-profit Chinese-language channel based in New York with 41 reporting offices around the world.

Programmes are shown in both Mandarin and Cantonese and include news from around the world, cultural variety shows, education, sports and entertainment news, business and films.

NTD TV is carried free-to-air on Hot Bird, 13°E, at 11.585GHz/V, SR 27500, FEC 3/4. More details are at www.ntdtv.com

End of the road for ADR

Astra Digital Radio could be switched off in 2007 – ending Astra's bid to create a proprietary digital radio system for Europe.

Swiss public broadcaster SRG SSR Idée Suisse will close down its ADR distribution at the end of this year, and in the past two years almost a dozen radio stations have abandoned the format.

German public broadcaster ARD has suggested it will switch fully to MPEG2 DVB radio by 2007, and Astra will only guarantee ADR carriage until 2007.

ADR transmits a CD-quality digital signal over analogue subcarriers, using less bandwidth than the analogue radio stations which were common when it launched in 1995. DVB has also allowed thousands of radio stations to launch cheaply, with quality as high as ADR or better for a fraction of the cost.

ADR requires a dedicated receiver while DVB digital radio can be picked up with any cheap digital satellite receiver. Research suggests less than 10,000 ADR receivers are still in use, mostly in German-speaking homes.

Sony's big project

Sony latest rear projection TV boasts a 44in screen and a range of picture-enhancing features.

These include 100Hz flicker reduction, a vertical picture stabiliser, digital noise reduction and Sony's own Picture Power technology, which is designed to enhance picture resolution and contrast.

The KP-44PX3 also has picture-and-picture and picture-and-text modes, while connections include three Scarts – two of which are RGB-capable, and an S-video input.

It has two 10W speakers onboard and there's a Virtual Dolby setting. The KP-44PX3 is available now priced around £1,400.

■ MTV has won its nine-month fight to have a live studio in Leicester Square. Westminster Council had rejected a planning application for a location to match MTV's New York studio in Times Square, but an appeal court found there would not be any public disorder problems from crowds gathering to see stars on air

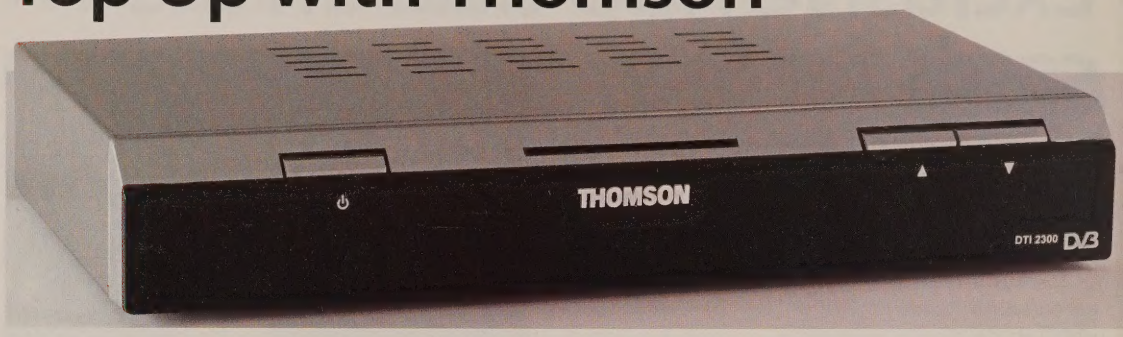
■ Denmark's TV2 could be shut down after the European Commission ruled that $67million in state funding was an illegal subsidy for an advertising-funded channel. TV2 must now be put up for sale, since returning the funds to the government would use its entire capital reserves. The case was brought by TV Danmark, a rival, privately financed channel

■ South Africa information and entertainment channel NSAT will launch on Sky Digital on August 9, from 6pm to 8am Monday to Friday, and 24hrs at weekends. The channel will be free-to-air at launch, but hopes to become an à la carte subscription channel in 2005

■ Disney's long-awaited Freeview channel is on track to launch again, with a new name of ABC1, and is expected to go live this autumn. Formerly called Daytime, it will run from 8am to 6pm with lifestyle shows, chat and soaps, as Disney's first UK experiment in a mainstream entertainment channel

■ Bookmaker William Hill will launch its own sports and betting channel later this year on Sky Digital. It will feature live sports events and 'complementary shows' to go with other live sporting events, with interactive betting through the remote control provided by Digital Interactive Television Group

Top Up with Thomson



Thomson is the first manufacturer to produce a digital terrestrial adapter designed to be compatible with the Top-Up TV pay TV service as well as Freeview.

Due to appear in shops this month, the DTI2300 features a Seca Mediaguard card reader for use with the Top-Up TV viewing card.

It also has a seven-day ready EPG using the 4TV guide, fast text and a sortable channel list with a favourites list.

Connections include a UHF loopthrough, two Scart sockets, and an optical digital audio output.

The box can also be used to control VCRs equipped with the Smart Link/Q Link system. It will cost around £79.

My fellow Californ-Iranians

US-based Iranian expatriates TV channel Omid-e-Iran has launched free-to-air on Hot Bird and Telstar 12.

The California-based channel broadcasts in both English and Farsi, with plans afoot to add programmes in Azari and Armenian.

Broadcasting 24 hours, its menu includes news and sports, entertainment and movies, plus shows on economic, cultural and social issues.

The channel is available on Hot Bird at 11.585GHz/V, SR 27500, FEC 3/4, and on Telstar 12 at 12.608GHz/H, SR 19279, FEC 3/4.

More for Plus

Sky Plus has pushed itself into more than 322,000 homes and the number of extra Digiboxes has almost doubled in a year.

More than 72,000 homes took up Sky Plus in the first three months of 2004, with 16 per cent of new Sky Plus subscribers also new to satellite TV.

Sky now has over 270,000 extra Digibox subscribers, and has dropped the price of multi-room subscriptions to £10 a month from £15. Early 2004 was quiet for Sky overall, with just 66,000 new subscribers, taking it to 7.3million.

Sky's good luck continued with Premiership football – Sky kept its monopoly after neither the BBC or ITV wanted to meet its minimum price for eight games a year.

The European Commission ordered Sky to sell the games, but allowed it to set a minimum price.

But Sky won't be allowed to have a monopoly when this deal expires in 2007 – clubs will probably have to sell their rights individually as they do in Italy and Spain.

Have sat, will travel

Mobile satellite TV fans can tune in on their holidays with a self-aligning dish from signal meter-makers Wolsey.

Wolsey – formerly known as Lacuna – has developed a folding system suitable for dishes up to 90cm.

The system uses Wolsey's satellite signal meter technology to identify signals, then acquire a satellite automatically.

Special onscreen software enables the user to change satellites with a few simple clicks of the remote control.

Enthusiasts on the move can get a quick lock on their favourite feeds with dishes of up to 1.2m using Wolsey's MSD2.

The advanced model will align elevation, azimuth and skew for the optimum signal, using a simple three-button interface.

Triax goes large to fill the gap

Danish dish and aerial manufacturer Triax is hoping to fill the gap left by Channel Master with a large dish of its own.

The solid Triax 1.2m dish uses an offset design, and Triax claims a gain of 42.5dBi at 11.7GHz, with an efficiency of 70 per cent.

The sturdy dish is available with a universal wall/patio mount, and can be installed using the az/el cap to a ground mount with a tube up to 75mm diameter.

Triax has also produced an offset LNB multiblock for receiving up to four satellites on a single fixed dish, such as 1°W, 5°E, 13°E and 19°E.

The Triax Multiblock can be adjusted to receive satellites spaced a minimum of 3° and a maximum 20° apart, with any of Triax's Basic or TD dishes from 75cm up.

The kit is supplied as standard with a Multiblock, four single-output universal LNBs, and a four-way DiSEqC switch for selecting your feeds.

Large dishes have been hard to find since world leader Channel Master got into financial difficulties last year. Channel Master has now been bought by American satellite communications outfitter Andrew.

Holidays in the sun

Greece has become the first Mediterranean country to launch its own TV channel dedicated to tourism.

Holidays In Greece is a free-to-air channel broadcasting around the clock in English and Greek, on Hot Bird at 13°E and Hellas Sat 2 at 39°E.

The channel focuses on tourists, guiding around Greece and acquainting the audience with Greek history and culture, and historical locations.

It can be found on Hot Bird at 12.188GHz/V, SR 27500, FEC 3/4, and on Hellas Sat 2 at 12.524GHz/V, also SR 27500, FEC 3/4.

Check your aerial

Aerial installers and new potential Freeview customers can check their aerial is right for the job with the CAI's Benchmarking register.

The Confederation of Aerial Installers and the Digital Television Group are asking manufacturers to hand over their aerials for independent testing.

Aerials have been divided into four levels of performance, Standards 1 to 4.

Standard 1 is for high-performance aerials for low signal strength areas, Standard 2 is an intermediate range, and standard 3 is the minimum for digital TV reception in strong signal areas.

Standard 4 is intended for situations where a wideband aerial with performance better than standard 3 is needed.

The aerials can also be used to perform reliable reception surveys where local obstructions might affect the predicted coverage.

Ratings round-up

April's Sky One ratings success story Rebecca Loos: My Story (pictured below right, which garnered a respectable 1.6million viewers) played its part in a huge growth in audience share for multichannel TV in general.

April was the second month that the total multichannel share exceeded that of ITV1 and BBC1, scoring 26.1 per cent against BBC1's 24.3 per cent and ITV1's 22.8 per cent. Freeview is thought to have contributed to this surge, although it will be interesting to see what effect the two main channels' coverage of Euro 2004 will have on the figures.

Speaking of which, BARB's ratings system could come a cropper. There are predictions that most viewers will be enjoying the matches down the pub, according to a survey of 3,000 male fans carried out by media agency Universal McCann. BARB's measurement figures do not take into account viewings outside the home.

How much mileage can Channel 4 expect to get out of The Simpsons? The long-running adventures of Springfield's finest are being used to fill the gap left by the departure of proven viewer magnet Friends at a not-inconsiderable cost of an estimated $1million (£545,000) an episode. This includes access to the extensive back catalogue as well as new shows.

Having beaten Five in a bidding war for the series two years ago, the channel will also be taking the Sky One route of maximising its investment by repeating the show between six and seven as well as showing it during its T4 programme at weekend. Talk about getting your money's worth.

After There's Something About Miriam and How Gay Are You?, Sky One's strange obsession with men getting in touch with their feminine side continues unabated with the announcement of its latest high concept reality show. Taking its title from the irritatingly catchy Shania Twain country-pop mega hit, Man I Feel Like A Woman will see eight beery, football-loving blokes given a series of tasks which require them to look, think and act like the fairer sex. The winner apparently gets the 'ultimate male prize'. A night with Miriam, perhaps?

■ If the use of the phrase 'reality show' had you nodding off, you're not alone. In a stroke of genius, wags at UK Style are attempting to bury the format for good with the launch of the splendidly sarcastic Watching Paint Dry. The programme is currently being streamed 24 hours a day on the UK Style website (www.ukstyle.co.uk) and features a different wall covering each day. Viewers are given the chance to vote for their favourite with the least favourite voted 'out' each week. Rumours that ex-Bros star Matt Gloss is set to appear as a guest presenter have so far proven untrue, but the programme still makes for ideal primer time viewing.

■ Top-Up TV may soon have to be renamed Top-Off TV in recognition of the number of people who've taken up the £9.99-a-month porn service provided by Television X – The Fantasy Channel. TVX reportedly attracted 1,444 viewers on its opening night, no doubt they are soaking up the sort of specialist material that would make the little Top-Up TV gnome blush.

■ TVX probably wasn't on the viewing menu of the country's most scarily committed couch potato. Tim Gibson, a 24-year-old Londoner, recently broke the world record for continuous television-watching. The final tally was 47 hours and eight minutes – which Mr Gibson spent watching cartoons, movies and episodes of EastEnders, while ordering food and drink over the internet. This first-class example of bone idleness wasn't mere showing off, however. Gibson received £5,000 worth of home entertainment equipment for his, er, efforts ■

The Gotchas

BARRY FOX PRIES INTO THE DIGITAL TV INDUSTRY EVERY MONTH IN WHAT SATELLITE & DIGITAL TV

Every new technology brings its own 'gotchas' – problems that jump up out of the woodwork and surprise everyone until the word gets round, people recognise the symptoms, and know how to handle a fix.

The discovery that the new Tetra emergency services cellphone system can interfere with TV is a good example of a gotcha. The Tetra signal is on a different frequency from TV, but it interferes with TV pictures because any amplifier in the aerial system – for instance, a distribution booster – can cause modulation that dumps interference right in the middle of the TV band.

Education is clearly the key. Most viewers and many dealers are not yet aware of the problem, so do not know that it can be cured by filters that reject the Tetra frequencies. Ofcom's website has useful information on Tetra interference, but it has been well hidden.

I asked Motorola, the company which is providing the Tetra base stations. Motorola eventually admitted the problem but then referred all queries to O2 Airwave, which is being paid by the government to build the network. This was still happening at the recent Bapco security exhibition, where all the Tetra partners were showing off their wares.

O2 Airwave now refers all awkward questions on Tetra to spokeswoman Claire Parker, who says: 'Regarding TV interference, we work with members of the public directly so that their issues are addressed appropriately in conjunction with Ofcom. We are available to the press to answer questions.'

But the press and public can only ask questions if they know what to ask and who to ask.

'TETRA ALREADY HAS A BAD NAME AND IT'S GETTING WORSE WITH UNINFORMED REPORTING'

No wonder there's so much hostility towards Tetra and mounting campaigns to stop the installation of new masts. In one South Coast town protesters have even managed to get a new Tetra mast switched off. Tetra already has a bad name and it's getting worse with uninformed reporting. The West Sussex Observer recently stated as uncontested fact that when the mast switched off '49 people were suffering symptoms and headaches and nosebleeds that stopped on the day'!

The sad thing is that we are all the losers, as the emergency services need Tetra to save our lives and property. O2 Airwave will have to stop treating the public as a nuisance. But not yet, it seems.

'Of course we are concerned about public hostility and are always keen to point out the public safety benefits of the system,' says Claire Parker. But does O2 Airwave have any plans to warn the public of the risks of TV interference so that people whose TV reception is suddenly and mysteriously spoiled will be better able to recognise Tetra is the cause?

How long will it take for O2 Airwave's management and the government to recognise the damage this evasion of responsibility is doing both to Airwave and Tetra?

HOLD IT DOWN

Sound and picture synchronisation is another gotcha. Digital picture and sound signals – terrestrial, satellite and DVD – are so heavily processed by MPEG coding and decoding that it's easy for them to get out of step. The progressive scan, enhancement and noise reduction processing in a plasma or LCD panel or modern widescreen tube set adds more delays. Just a few frames' lag between picture and sound is noticeable, especially if the picture lags behind the sound.

Vision delay is something we never see in nature; sound always lags behind vision it is slower than light. Humans notice a delay of 30 milliseconds; modern TV systems delay by 80ms or more.

One dealer noticed the problem with a variety of Sky and Freeview receivers from different manufacturers. I have noticed it on several occasions too. Rebooting the receiver by switching it off and then on again at the mains will sometimes bring together the picture and sound and vision, at least temporarily. This may be due to memory buffering inside the decoders.

German company Micronas is selling a solution that manufacturers can build into their sets. A $5 chipset with onboard memory delays the audio by 40ms or 80ms. Stringing two chips together doubles the delay. What we need now is a bolt-on device that gives external control to match the different delays seen when signals are received over the air or come from a DVD.

SIMON PEMBERTON

WOBBLING WIDTH

Finally, the perennial gotcha problem of widescreen sets not automatically switching between 16:9 and 4:3 formats.

A reader complained that when he records a widescreen programme from Sky using a VHS recorder the TV set does not switch automatically on some channels, but does on others. Why should it switch on BBC1 but not BBC2, he asks? Line 23 widescreen switching signals are of slow enough data rate to record on an ordinary VCR.

The BBC says: 'Aspect ratio switching on Sky receivers is controlled by Wide-Screen Switching (WSS) in the MPEG header. The BBC and ITV do not deliberately transmit Line 23 signals. They are used "in house" to control the Aspect Ratio Converters which are at their terrestrial transmitters. These ARCs are here to convert 16:9 format programmes to 14:9 – the compromise widescreen format used for analogue transmissions.'

'There has been a technical problem with the MPEG coders for Regional BBC 1 services, which causes a corrupted version of line 23, including the internal WSS, to be transmitted. "Leak-through" of rogue Line 23 signals can conflict with the legitimate WSS carried in the MPEG header.'

This is the same problem that causes DVD recorders to not record, because they assume the Line 23 signals are copy-protection signals.

The BBC has been promised new coder software to fix the bug. If it works, recorders and widescreen sets should work correctly. If not, just keep complaining to the BBC ■

Channel launching

FIND OUT THE WHAT IT TAKES TO START UP A TV CHANNEL IN THE USA, AND WHAT MIGHT BE COMING OUR WAY SOON WITH CHRIS FORRESTER

Later this year two British entrepreneurs are planning to start an Aussie TV channel on Sky Digital. The news proves that there are plenty of niches still unfilled, at least in the eyes of some would-be broadcasters. It is the same in the USA where seemingly dozens of new channels are in the planning pipeline. Oddly enough, British viewers are – at least in some respects – now firmly ahead of our American cousins, in that some channels are accessible over the UK that are not universally available in the US. One such example is Reality TV, a channel that is currently on offer to US cable systems.

British viewers who have a motorised dish can also easily access Spanish, Portuguese, German and other European programming, which US residents have to pay serious cash to view. However, US entrepreneurs are finding it increasingly hard to now break their channels into the mass market. Top of the challenges is money!

At the recent National Cable & Telecommunications Association's annual bash it was said that to launch a new channel now needs overall funding of $100-$150million (£57-£85million) to be in place. And that's a lot of greenbacks. The first $5m or so goes on running around the USA presenting your ideas to the dozen or so giant cable operators, and buying in research which 'proves' there's an audience out there desperate for your idea. For example, Jokevision, one recent channel, planned non-stop laugh-a-minute gags, but ran out of cash before it could get on air. Its backers are said to be 're-thinking the concept'.

'US ENTREPRENEURS ARE FINDING IT INCREASINGLY HARD TO NOW BREAK THEIR CHANNELS INTO THE MASS MARKET'

In general, the cash will be needed in order to keep an operation ticking over for the five, six or more years needed to get into profit.

But on the basis that what the Americans watch today we'll be watching tomorrow, here's the current list of American 'wannabee' TV channels.

The Anime Network: Non-stop Japanese animation, already available on some systems on a PPV basis

America Channel: Not to be confused with BBC America, this channel is designed to show American 'non-scripted' programming, i.e. reality shows

CSTV: College sports action, along with some news and information. Comes from Brian Bedol who launched Classic Sports and sold it to ESPN

Career Entertainment TV: Described as 'work and workplace TV'

Casino & Gaming TV: This could work, and is described as a gaming 'lifestyle channel'

Edge TV: Another gaming channel, this time offering casino and other 'recreational' games. The problem is that most states forbid or severely limit what can be won on screen. Planning early 2005 start

The Football Network: US football (but not NFL) action, chat and features. Says it will offer college, high school and also women's football. Has already signed deals with Time Warner cable, but running out of cash Fuel: Another Fox sports channel, but focusing on action sports like snowboarding, skating, surfing, BMX and Moto-X. Describes itself as 'awesome', naturally!

G4: A video gaming channel from cable giant Comcast, already on air in some regions but looking for extra carriage

Gospel Music Channel: It is almost amazing that this genre hasn't already found a place on American TV, but it says it will depend on Gospel music videos. It is backed by Brad Siegel, formerly with Turner Broadcasting, so might well happen. Claims eight per cent of all US music sales are for gospel

GOLtv: Another sports channel devoted to English and Spanish soccer

Here TV: A premium gay and lesbian channel

Horseracing TV: Not a million miles from existing racing channels, but it thinks it can bring an extra dimension to its rivals

Hype TV: All TV is hype, but this one will devote itself to hip-hop music and 'lifestyle' programming for its fans

The Ice Channel: Ice skating

ImaginAsian TV: 24-hour Asian-American programming

The Martial Arts Channel: Movies, as well as instruction and features

MAVtv: Claims to want to target males, aged 18-54 with programming on sports, finance, technology and sex!

RICHARD ALLEN

NBAtv: Basketball for fans, but the channel is owned by the league itself

NFL Network: It's about NFL action, but will not show actual games, relying instead on lots of chat, some entertainment and NFL news

Reality Central: Reality programming

Reality TV: Already mentioned, from UK-based Zonevision

Scream Channel: Horror and thriller movies and shows

Si TV: English-language, but Latino-themed, material for the huge Hispanic audience

Southern Entertainment TV: Gospel, folk and bluegrass music – could work

Sorpresa: Spanish-lingo kids' programming

Stand-up Comedy: Stand-up comedy performances, comedy series and sketches

The Sportsman Channel: Hunting, shooting and fishing channel for America's outdoor enthusiasts

The Tennis Channel: You guessed it already

TV One: This is described as an African-American themed network. By and large these have always been a challenge. Black Entertainment Network, the most successful of the genre, is now owned by Viacom

Varsity TV: Non-scripted (i.e. reality) and drama fare for college audiences

Wheels TV: Automotive programming

The Wine Network: Wine, wine-based tours and travel, restaurants and the like

A QUESTION OF COLOUR

On German satellite TV in recent months I have seen computer colourised versions of classic black-and-white films such as Mutiny On The Bounty (1935) and The Hunchback Of Notre Dame (1939).

A few years ago the TNT (now TCM) channel specialised in showing these colourised film versions: The Charge Of The Light Brigade, For Me And My Gal, Johnny Belinda, Yankee Doodle Dandy, and so on.

There's also been German TV documentaries with old wartime newsreel: London Blitz, Hitler, Roosevelt, Churchill, Stalingrad, fighting, and so on, but this time all in colour.

I think this is a marvellous computer process that truly reinvigorates the old cinema classics, and does wonders for historic newsreels. So why do the German TV stations show computer colour versions of old material, but not us? An opportunity is being missed by UK satellite TV broadcasters.

– JAMES MILLAR, BRAUNTON, DEVON

■ We asked TCM, the UK's leading classic film channel, which said: 'One of the aims of TCM is to air films in the best quality available to ensure our audience enjoy the cinematic experience to the full. We find that restored versions have a superior quality to those films which have been colourised, so our ongoing commitment is to air more restored films on the channel. We don't have any plans to broadcast colourised films but hope that this doesn't compromise your enjoyment of our films.'

DREAM SHOW?

I am a great fan of Sky One's Dream Team, so are the rest of my family. We have just watched the programme tonight (Sunday, May 16), which had us on the edge of our seats all the way through. As you can imagine, we were devastated at the end of the show.

What we want to know is, was that the last-ever episode of Dream Team or is there going to be another series?

– CHARLENE QUINN, BY E-MAIL

SATELLITE DISHES GOING NATIVE

I often wonder why householders find it to necessary to fix satellite dishes on to their homes, possibly disfiguring their houses and also, when many of these installations occur up and down a street, how much of an eyesore this creates for everybody. Listed buildings and conservation areas are much affected by the desire to benefit from good reception from so many satellites.

We had this concern for our own house and also we were faced with the problem of trees close by. We established by experiment that reception was pretty well just as good from down at the bottom of our garden (as much as 85m from the house!) and we were clear of tree obstructions in that part of the property too (we later enhanced reception by installing a simple and cheap amplifier alongside the LNB, fitted into the cable back to the house and purchased in a French DIY shop where most bits and pieces for satellite reception are easily obtained quite cheaply).

Once a site was established and a scaffold pole fixed vertically in place (in a hole in the ground helped by a good dollop of concrete), we set about camouflaging the first, and later a second dish, using ordinary car sprays, and this is the point of my letter; the use of car sprays and neighbouring foliage and twigs as a stencil or mask, quickly – and in a matter of just minutes – gave us a very respectable result.

The first stage was to ensure the dish was clean by wiping it over with meths or detergent. When dry, we applied a basecoat of a foliage-green colour using car spray paint. We added some reddish patches too (red primer was ideal) as there were some reddish maple leaves close by.

Then, to complete the picture, we held in place suitable twigs and branches, complete with fresh leaves, over the basecoat even laying them on to the surface and spraying around these with a matt black spray.

The result was astonishingly good, as our photos show. We became experts in minutes and fiddled around with all sorts of variations. The effect not only lost the antennas into the background, but provided very pretty pictures to look at close up. Indeed, it was only at this stage that my wife took any interest in the joys of satellite reception, seeing the dishes as works of art! We masked the face of the LNB and treated that to a facelift too, as well as the scaffold pole and fixings.

I hope these tips are useful to others who may feel sufficiently embarrassed now by their aerial (maybe bolted hurriedly on to the wall above their living rooms by their local satellite installer) to want to have a go.

– MICHAEL MASSET, BY E-MAIL

■ Painting dishes is a great way to help hide them away, but don't use metallic paints. These will interfere with the microwave signals the antenna picks up.

Perhaps Discovery Home & Leisure or UK Style could take an interest in disguising dishes. It would make a change from building water features! Keep your interesting dish pictures coming in ■

TV Highlights

Compiled by TV and Film editor Elise Harris

Calling all avenging Angels

Tru Calling has been saved from the axe by Fox in the US. Everyone said it had been cancelled, but the Eliza Dushku show, showing on Sky One over here, has been given another chance.

Rumours of Angel spin-offs, possibly featuring Dushku as Faith, appear to be unfounded for the moment. There is still hope that Faith will appear somewhere, somehow, some day.

Teen angst

Acclaimed US drama One Tree Hill comes to E4 this month. The show stars James Lafferty as a rich kid with a poor half-brother (Chad Michael Murray) on the other side of town.

The series is slightly less glossy than The OC (also on E4). Meanwhile a companion show to The OC is in production. It's called Athens and it's set in Boston.

Watch out for...

New US shows sure to come to UK screens soon include Dr Vegas (starring Rob Lowe), Friends spin-off Joey (pictured) and Johnny Zero (from the makers of ER and The West Wing) about an ex-con trying to make it on the outside.

Returning series include 24, Dead Like Me and Nip/Tuck.

The Texans' Return
Animated comedy King of the Hill series eight starts on FX 289 this month. Family Guy (on hiatus for several years) has also started again in the US – so expect it on UK screens some time soon.

Hospital dramas
Critically acclaimed hospital comedy Scrubs (Sky One) has been renewed for two more years, but the weird and wonderful Kingdom Hospital (BBC Three) will not be coming back.

On the cards
Hallmark channel has bought up all future series of Law and Order. The deal with Universal International Television, means that the channel will show all future European cable and satellite broadcasts of the show.

Go West
The West Wing returns to E4 this month – with some thrilling new plot developments.

July Movie Highlights

FILM OF THE MONTH

Master and Commander: The Far Side of the World

If you like salty seamen getting down to some rough action on the high seas, then you will love Master and Commander. It's based on characters created by author Patrick O'Brian – who wrote 20 books about Captain Jack Aubrey (Russell Crowe) and his particular friend Dr Stephen Maturin (Paul Bettany).

The film concentrates on sea battles and the traumas of life at sea, but does maintain some of the male bonding moments familiar to aficionados of the novels. Although there aren't any instances of the characters calling each other 'Plum', 'Soul' or 'Joy' and absolutely no sign of the pair of them sharing a hammock (and there are in the books). It's entirely platonic, naturally.

It's not director Peter Weir's best film, but it is very good. Billy Boyd also stars (as coxswain Barret Bonden).

Sky Box Office/Front Row

Kill Bill: Vol. 1

Officially Quentin Tarantino's fourth film – but only if you discount his section in Four Rooms, his screenplays True Romance and the original draft of Natural Born Killers, his acting roles, and his contribution to the From Dusk Till Dawn franchise. However, Kill Bill: Vol 1 is his fourth full-length film as a director.

Sky Box Office/ Front Row

Matrix Revolution

If you haven't lost interest (not to mention the will to live) after the second pitiful Matrix film, then maybe you're looking forward to the conclusion of the trilogy. Agent Smith is as sinister as ever – though perhaps there's a little too much of him. What the word 'blah' was invented for.

Sky Box Office/Front Row

Freaky Friday

Remake of the Jody Foster body-swap comedy – this time starring Jamie Lee Curtis and teen star du jour Lindsay Lohan. Enough of a new take on the material to make this worth watching.

Sky Box Office/Front Row

Gangs of New York

Leonardo DiCaprio, Cameron Diaz and Daniel Day Lewis star in Martin Scorsese's well-meaning but over-long look at the violence and poverty of 19th Century New York life.

ITALY

- Canale 5 (Hot Bird)
- Italia 1 (Astra 1)
- Rai Uno (Astra 1/Hot Bird)
- Rete 4 (Hot Bird)
- Rai Sport Sat

(Hot Bird)

Settimo Cielo. Italia 1, July 1, 7.15pm. The main character in this family series is Eric. The family goes through the turmoil of unwanted pregnancies, affairs, quarrels between parents and children. The usual lot of a typical family.

Scherzi a parte. Canale 5, July 2, 8pm. Over the summer Canale 5 is doing a re-run of the funniest programmes in the series. The show is hosted by Teo Teocoli. It really is a laugh a minute.

Genius. Rete 4, July 3, 7pm. The contestants in this show are child geniuses under the age of 14. Which one of them has the most brilliant mind? Which one is the most intelligent?

Sottovoce. Rai Uno, July 5, 0.20am. Highbrow interviews. Hosted by Gigi Marzallo, the programme offers a space for Italy's modern thinkers.

L'Imbroglione. Canale 5, July 5, 5.40pm. Canale 5's new summer-show hosted by Enrico Papi. A funny combination of quiz and talk show.

La vita en diretta. Rai Uno, July 7, 2.30pm. Reports, chats and news items are the ingredients that have made this show popular in Italy. A combination of a talk show and real-life magazine programme.

L'Antipatico. Canale 5, July 8, 10.15pm. A personality is interviewed in each programme. Maurizio Belpietro, the editor of Il Giornale, asks short, direct questions and doesn't let his guests get away without answering them.

Sai Xché. Rete 4, July 8, 8pm. The motto of this programme is watch and understand the world around you. Reports that show nature at its most spectacular.

Piu forti ragazzi. Italia 1, July 10, 6pm. Sammo Law is a policeman who works in Shanghai, but this private eye never shuns the opportunity to go wherever there's a crime to solve.

Garibaldi, eroe dei due mondi. Rete 4, July 12, 8pm. This series narrates the Farroupilha revolution. It's a hard-hitting story but it's also a moving and passionate testimonial.

HERE COMES The Bride

Kill Bill: Vol 1 comes to pay-per-view this month. Elise Harris gives you the QT

Quentin Tarantino's fourth complete film as a director (after Reservoir Dogs, Pulp Fiction and Jackie Brown) is a 'roaring rampage of revenge', an eclectic homage to Shaw Brothers films and other Hong Kong kung fu, spaghetti Westerns and Japanese yakuza and samurai dramas – with a touch of Truffaut.

Uma Thurman plays the film's anti-heroine, The Bride (AKA The Black Mamba, AKA 'Arlene' – you don't find out her real name until Vol 2 – it is beeped out at each mention). It's likely you'll have little sympathy for The Bride. Your opinion rests on what you think of Thurman.

The Bride is out for revenge after being left for dead at a wedding rehearsal. The rest of the wedding party was slaughtered, and the pregnant Bride left in a coma for four years. When she wakes up her first thought is to kill Bill – the man responsible. But first she has to find him and get all the other people implicated in the carnage – the Deadly Viper Assassination Squad.

The film opens with a close-up of Thurman's battered face and continues (after the Shaw Brothers-inspired titles) at the scene of her second revenge attempt – a quiet suburban neighbourhood inhabited by housewife and mother Vernita Green (Viveca Fox). Despite the mess of glass and cereal, it is a fairly quiet beginning, considering what comes next.

First on her list is the second shown. It occurs in Japan – and includes the film's key scene – an almighty sword fight, with Uma Thurman wearing the distinctive canary-yellow track suit seen in the posters (a homage to Bruce Lee, who wore a similar outfit in Game Of Death. The whole scene is almost completely lifted from another Lee film, Fist Of Fury).

Part-way through the extended battle there is even a sequence against a blue-lit background in silhouette, reminiscent of a Gene Kelly musical as much as old-school kung fu.

O-Ren Ishii (Lucy Lui) is the film's defining character. She is a Japanese-Chinese American army brat – and as such embodies the style and theme of Kill Bill. She's a more sympathetic character than The Bride – a mixture of cool sophistication and ultra-violence. An animated segment tells her story – a more canny director might have focused on her throughout rather than the wishy-washy (if psychopathic) Bride.

The most beautiful scene of the film is outside the House of Blue Leaves, in a moonlit Japanese garden amid falling snow. Even then, in a moment of potential purity, the music in the background is more Mexican than Japanese.

The film cannot in any way be described as realistic; The Bride is allowed to bring a very sharp samurai sword on to a plane, blood spurts like geysers out of every severed arm and decapitated head (there are many). The bright red blood was tinted black for Western audiences, and the limb-severing curtailed.

It's packed with references to other movies – as though Tarantino is playing guess-the-homage with the audience.

You need to see Kill Bill: Vol 2 to appreciate the film as a whole (with judicious editing the two parts could easily have been made into one. At present the running time would be almost four hours, but that's only a bit longer than one part of The Lord Of The Rings or the first two Harry Potter movies).

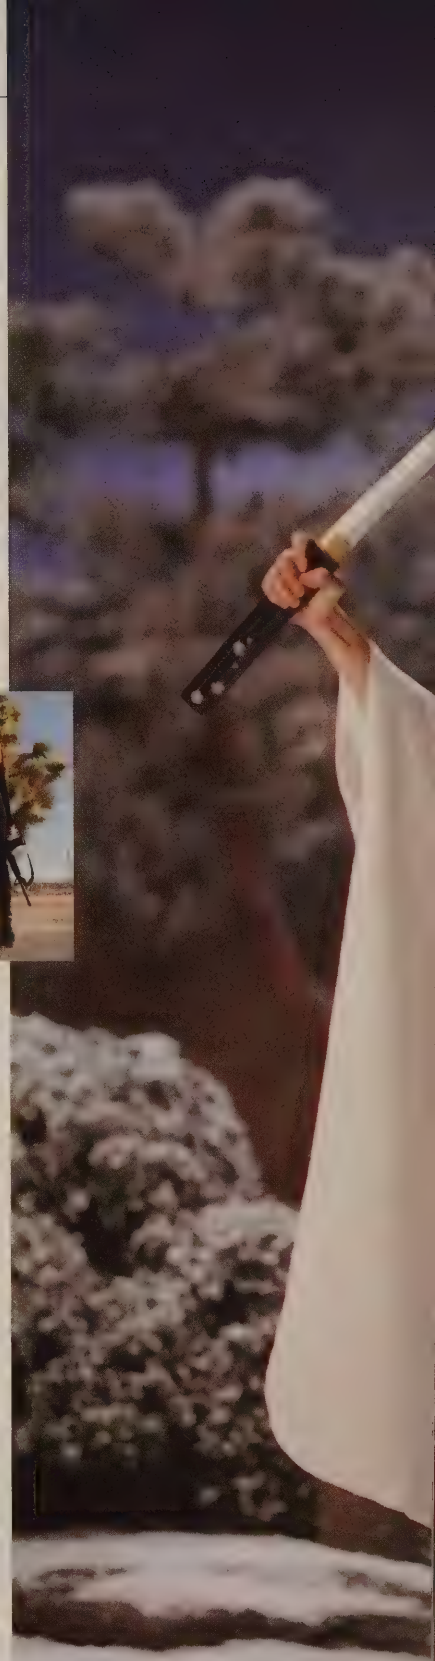
Think of it as an appetiser for Vol 2 – when it is over you will still be hungry for more (or should that be unsatisfied?) ■



Kill Bill: Vol.1 is showing on Front Row and Sky Box Office throughout July

'IT'S PACKED WITH REFERENCES TO OTHER MOVIES – AS THOUGH TARANTINO IS PLAYING GUESS-THE-HOMAGE WITH THE AUDIENCE'

Spot the homage

Pointless trivia about Kill Bill: Vol 1

- The House of Blue Leaves, O-Ren Ishii's lair, is also the name of a play by John Guare about the dangers in which people put themselves and others in pursuit of meaningless dreams.

- The band at The House of Blue Leaves (The 5, 6, 7, 8s) perform three songs: Woo Hoo, (I Walk Like) Jayne Mansfield, and I'm Blue. The first is used in the Carling football commercial (and is the tune Elle is whistling as she visits the comatose Bride). It also features in the 1968 film Twisted Nerve.

- Despite the urban legends Jayne Mansfield – unlike many of The Bride's unlucky victims – was not actually decapitated in the car accident that killed her in 1967. However O-Ren Ishii's ultimate fate is remarkably similar to what actually happened to the movie starlet.

- The Hattori Hanzo (Sonny Chiba) sword made for The Bride is very like the sword used by Butch (Bruce Willis) to kill Zed's friend in Pulp Fiction. If it is the same sword this means Pulp Fiction occurs after the events of Kill Bill. One wonders if Thurman's character in that film (Mia Wallace) is really The Bride in a black wig. Both characters draw squares in the air.

- Sonny Chiba played a character called Hattori Hanzo in the Japanese TV series Kage No Gundan about a legendary 15th century warrior. Tarantino says the character in Kill Bill is a descendant of that character.

- Sheriff Earl Macgraw (Michael Parks) and his son also feature in From Dusk Till Dawn – suggesting that this is the same fictional universe, inhabited by stripper and barfly vampires. Parks also appears as a different character in Vol 2 and is in Dusk Till Dawn 3.

- Bill is responsible for killing O-Ren Ishii's parents.

- The phrase 'Silly rabbit, tricks are for kids' is from an advert for the cereal Lucky Charms.

SWINGING ART

Art And The 60s looks at the artists and collectors who shaped the art world. Elise Harris casts a critical eye

London in the 1960s – according to legend and song – swung like a pendulum do – music, and fashion were changing and art was high profile.

As part of its Art And The Sixties season BBC Four has organised an exhibition in Tate Britain, Millbank, highlighting the icons of Sixties art in Britain.

Some of the best-known artists of the past 50 years are featured, including David Hockney, Peter Blake and Bridget Riley.

The exhibition, and series focuses on art as part of a wider social revolution. Art itself changed and the definition of what counted as art changed.

The Sixties season on BBC Four includes interviews with many notable artists – a few of whom either haven't ever given interviews or haven't talked publicly about their work for decades.

The story of Art And The Sixties is told by the artists, dealers and collectors of the time. Each of the films captures a different aspect of the era – the first tells the tale of two influential dealers, socialite 'Groovy Bob' Fraser and businessman Kasmin. Another film focuses on the St Martin's School of Art.

Art of all sorts is featured in the series – traditional art-forms such as painting and sculpture changed drastically in the decade – with experimentation becoming the primary objective. Since the discovery of photography in the 1850s, artists had tried to move away from the purely representational. It could be said that nothing new happened in the Sixties – it just made the papers more.

The 1940s and 1950s had already seen a shift away from the purely figurative in sculpture – Henry Moore was semi-abstract and Barbara Hepworth's work was pure abstraction– but they were always fairly sturdy, made from traditional materials such as bronze and stone. In the Sixties Anthony Caro ushered in bright shapes made from sheet metal and plastic.

The exhibition and series also feature many non-British artists whose influence resonated through art and society – among them Jackson Pollock, the ubiquitous Andy Warhol, Yoko Ono (all of whom were possibly more famous for their life than art).

By the late 1960s conceptual and performance artists sprang up from seemingly nowhere – Gilbert and George and their ilk are still massively influential. Conceptual artists often argued that ideas were more important than their execution. The advocates of conceptual art also fought bitterly with the abstract practitioners.

PICTURES COPYRIGHT OF THE TATE

'THE 1960S WERE A FERTILE PERIOD IN BRITISH ART, BUT THEY ALSO LED TO THE CURRENT ART SCENE – WHICH IS OBSCURE AT BEST'

The 1960s were a fertile period in British art, but they also led to the current art scene – which is obscure at best. Whereas sculpture and painting has a life of its own, apart from the creator, the new generation of artists saw themselves as all-important – they were the art, and the art could not be seen without reference to the 'artist'. It could be said this led to an incredibly insular and precious atmosphere – one, it could be argued, that still lingers today.

The avant-garde of the 1960s is no longer seen as new, different or shocking; it became the establishment it fought against ■

Art And The Sixties is on BBC Four throughout July – the exhibition at Tate Britain runs from June 30 to September 26

Charlie says

Swiss Toni returns for a new 10-part series. Elise Harris talked to comedy guru Charlie Higson, the man beneath the wig

Charlie Higson is a busy man. He wrote, produced and starred in Swiss Toni, and has also found time to write a film script with Paul Whitehouse and a James Bond book for children.

'I was thinking of writing a kids' book, because I have three children now – and I was approached by the Ian Fleming estate, who were interested in doing these. It's good to write a full-on thriller for children,' he says.

The book is set in the 1930s, and features Bond as a schoolboy. It is due out next spring.

Before then is the return of car salesman and self-styled ladies' man, Swiss Toni.

At the end of the first series his wife left him. In the new series we find out he was married before, when he was much younger.

'It partly explains why his present ex-wife is quite young, relatively. We finished the last series with his wife leaving him and him going to live with his mother. And the Simon Day character is having an affair with Swiss's wife, which Swiss doesn't know about.'

It is hard to tell how far back the first marriage took place, since Swiss's age is a bit of a mystery.

'This last episode we're filming, it's his birthday and everyone is trying to find out how old he is, because as far as they can all remember he's looked exactly the same since they've known him.'

The series is a return to the traditional sitcom format. So there will be no car chases or anything too frenetic.

'I always wanted to make it like a proper sitcom where you are just on the same set – there are very few exterior shots, so it would be hard to do a car chase – but they have a siege, they are held up by a gunman one week.

'We're not the sort of single-camera The Office or Nighty Night-type thing – we are a proper sitcom with a proper audience. Swiss is quite a broad character, you couldn't make a particularly realistic sitcom with it, so we've gone down the old-fashioned route and just tried to be funny.'

He says there has been a fantastic reaction from the studio audiences.

'WE'RE NOT THE SORT OF SINGLE-CAMERA THE OFFICE OR NIGHTY NIGHT-TYPE THING – WE ARE A PROPER SITCOM WITH A PROPER AUDIENCE'

Charlie says he hasn't heard the rumours about The Fast Show coming back, and there are no plans to revive it. The characters still have a lot of mileage, Swiss Toni and Billy Bleach (played by Simon Day in Grass) were both spun out of the show.

'Well, we've moved on, and there's new stuff has come along, like Little Britain. I'm not sure whether anyone's going to be interested in us tired old fools coming back after all this time.

'If we did something we'd have to do something new and not just Son of Fast Show, and I think it would be good to do completely new characters.'

Asked whether Ted and Ralph will ever return, he says: 'No plans at the moment, no. The thing before was it was a relatively young man falling in love with an older man, and as I get older – it'll be like Last Of The Summer Wine... two old men, and I'm not sure anyone's going to be interested in that.'

Charlie has worked with Vic Reeves and Bob Mortimer a number of times, most recently in Catterick as the barman.

'I was just like a holiday for me because all the other stuff I've done with Vic and Bob I've been involved in as a producer or writer. It was great to just turn up and act and not have to take responsibility for anything. I had a great time.'

He was also asked to be in Nighty Night, in the part that eventually went to Angus Deayton, but couldn't do it because, he says, he was 'going on holiday'.

'It would have been great to do – it was a fantastic series – but on the other hand Angus did it very well, so I'm sure they weren't worried that I didn't do it.'

He would be thrilled to be involved in the second series. 'It would be quite good, I mean most of the other characters were killed at the end of the last series, so they've got space for some new characters' ■

Swiss Toni returns to BBC Three on July 13 at 10.30pm

TV: it's a rich man's

Ever thought of launching your own TV channel? Chris Forrester shows the route to a slot on satellite – but you'll need deep pockets

There are lots of us who, secretly, would like to launch our own satellite channel. After all, Wayne's World showed us how much fun we could have!

But launching a channel is expensive and complicated, as I found out when Sky recently listed – for the first time in public – its pricing structure and the various hurdles would-be broadcasters have to jump over before they can get on air. At the end of 2003 there were 419 television and radio channels transmitting on Sky, with 89 new channels having joined the platform during the year. There are expected to be about as many new entrants this year.

At TV Conferences' 'So You Want To Start Broadcasting' event in London last January, Lesley Mackenzie, Sky's director of channels and operations, explained the six options available to would-be broadcasters in the UK:

- Retailed third party channels
  Available only with a Sky subscription. On air: MTV, Paramount, UK Gold
- Free-to-air (FTA) channels
  Available without a Sky subscription. On air: Reality TV, Extreme Sports
- Retailed 'à la carte' premium channels
  Can only be accessed as a buy-through from a Sky subscription. On air: Film Four, MUTV
- A la carte channels
  Retailed by the channel provider and available without a Sky subscription. On air: Zee TV, NASN
- PPV events retailed by Sky
  One-off movies/sports events and adult. On air: Setanta, Private Blue
- PPV events not retailed by Sky
  Mainly nightly adult content. On air: the Red Hot channels

Reality TV is a typical free-to-air channel

'THE NEW CHANNEL HAS TO REALLY PROVE ITS TECHNICAL AND CONTENT READINESS BEFORE THE LAWYERS GET INVOLVED'

FREE OR PAID?

The first decision any broadcaster has to make is whether to be 'free-to-air' or encrypted. The decision will affect the fee Sky charges for entry to its Electronic Programme Guide system. A £75,000 charge is levied on FTA services (£20,000 for radio) just for an EPG slot. This drops to £35,000 (£10,000 for radio) if the channel takes the encrypted option. Naturally, the services will already need a broadcasting licence from regulator Ofcom and will have to contract with the likes of SES Astra or Eutelsat (or one of their capacity/uplink re-sellers) for space segment. That element isn't cheap, and tends to cost around £300,000 a year per channel.

Besides obtaining an Ofcom licence and EPG listing, the aspiring FTA broadcaster then has to advise Sky, in detail, of its broadcasting plans, key service providers (play-out, capacity supplier, and so on). When that document is successfully completed (and Mackenzie says around 50 per cent of new broadcasters fall at this early stage), then Sky signs a Non-Disclosure Agreement (NDA – essentially a total confidentiality document) with the channel, and the two outfits then move toward Stage 2 (see panel).

Getting through the Stage 2 process is vital and needs real determination from the broadcaster, especially given Sky's strict technical demands. The need for absolute compliance is obvious. If the broadcaster deviates for a nano-second, even accidentally, there is the very real risk that Sky's Digibox software could be affected and jeopardise the complete platform.

COUNTDOWN TO TRANSMISSION

As actual transmission edges ever-closer Sky does not let up. At the '10 weeks to go' point there are more detailed meetings covering the channel's plans for transmission hours and further confirmation that the broadcaster has its technical facility providers lined up.

Mackenzie says Sky is looking to build a relationship with the broadcaster so that there are no 'hidden surprises' in the channel's technical or business plans.

Sky's all-important Stage 2 process

Commercial meeting arranged to discuss:
- Channel proposition
- Assessment of readiness to launch
- Basic channel requirements
- Launch date
- Time lines for launch
- Requirement for receipt of broadcast licence

EPG meeting arranged to include:
- EPG demo
- Technical specification documentation issued

Technical meeting arranged whereby:
- All service providers must be in place
- Technical and scheduling contacts introduced
- Requirements and timelines for launch are discussed
- Channel schedules and promo tape required
- Channel proposition
- Assessment of readiness to launch
- Basic channel requirements
- Launch date
- Time lines for launch

At five weeks before launch, Sky's engineers need the detailed configuration plan to be in place and typical transmission schedules.

At the 'two-week before' stage, Sky looks to have 'a month's worth' of real schedules to be ready and for colour bars and audio tones to be live. Only then will Sky issue its contract. In other words, the new channel has to really prove its technical and content readiness before the lawyers get involved. But there are still challenges ahead.

Five days ahead of launch, Sky looks to sign off as approved the planned content and then the EPG contract. This is because some channels end up with on-air content that has little to do with the discussions that took place earlier. This final EPG discussion permits Sky to change the EPG number should content not match that of the original plan.

Should the broadcaster decide on some sort of Conditional Access (CA) system (supplied by BSkyB or a third-party like MGt) then the timetable is even more complex. First, Sky needs a clear four-month period to build the CA interfaces, plus a 90-day testing period, so some seven months need to be built into any business plan for a new channel launch. A simple 'skip' channel, where an existing broadcaster adds another channel to its line-up, will see this timetable compressed, but new entrants must allow for this design-and-test phase.

'AVAGO, THE COMPELLING 'BINGO' CHANNEL, HAS HELPED ITS BACKERS GO FROM ZERO TO A £50MILLION-A-YEAR TURNOVER IN BARELY TWO YEARS'

RED BUTTON REWARDS

Then comes interactivity, which has an obvious appeal for channels and their viewers, but simply adds to the complexity of the task in hand. The BBC, for example, launched more than 45 interactive services last year (including interactivity on their regional versions of BBC1 and 2). Discovery launched about 43, Flextech almost 20, while Channel 4/E4 managed 18.

The services included Big Brother-type voting and access to Disney Channel elements, as well as developments for brands like QVC, Teletext and Playjam as well as Sky's own 'Active' options.

These all incur further testing/integration elements as well as costs (see panel) that are not for the faint-hearted. Sky's testing process is thorough to ensure as far as humanly possible that one channel's activity doesn't bring the whole system down on its head.

To cover for this eventuality, Sky requires each interactive broadcaster to take out an insurance policy for £25million-worth of indemnity. There are a few insurance suppliers underwriting these risks, but at another cost (around £100,000 typically, although individual policies might vary on this sum).

It goes without saying that would-be broadcasters also need a sound idea, a well-structured business plan and adequate finance to take transmissions through at least three or four years, according to Graham Pitman of the European Television Guild, and provider of many of the above technical services that have helped broadcasters.

Get the TV channel right and you can be an instant millionaire. For example, Avago, the compelling 'bingo' channel, has gone from zero to a £50million-a-year turnover in two years. Friendly TV and its late-night Babecast service are also said to be highly profitable ■

SKY'S INTERACTIVE COST STRUCTURE

■ Application Signing Agreement

HOW WE RATE DIGITAL TV KIT

Every piece of kit tested in What Satellite & Digital TV is rated on:
BUILD: quality of construction and attractive design
PERFORMANCE: quality of audio-visual output
FEATURES: number and usefulness of extra features
VALUE: value for money

Some equipment is also rated on:
SETUP: ease of use and time required to get started SEARCHING: speed and capability in searching for channels
NAVIGATION: ease of organising channels or recordings in everyday use

Every piece of kit also gets an overall score based on its individual ratings and the reviewer's general opinion

Digital all the way

Engineer Ian Johnson explains how to wire up your Sky Plus or Digibox to stream a high-quality SDI digital signal into your plasma screen or PC

Back in September 2000, What Satellite & Digital TV ran an article on a modified Sky Digibox which would output an uncompressed digital signal to a plasma display, resulting in images of breathtaking clarity and detail.

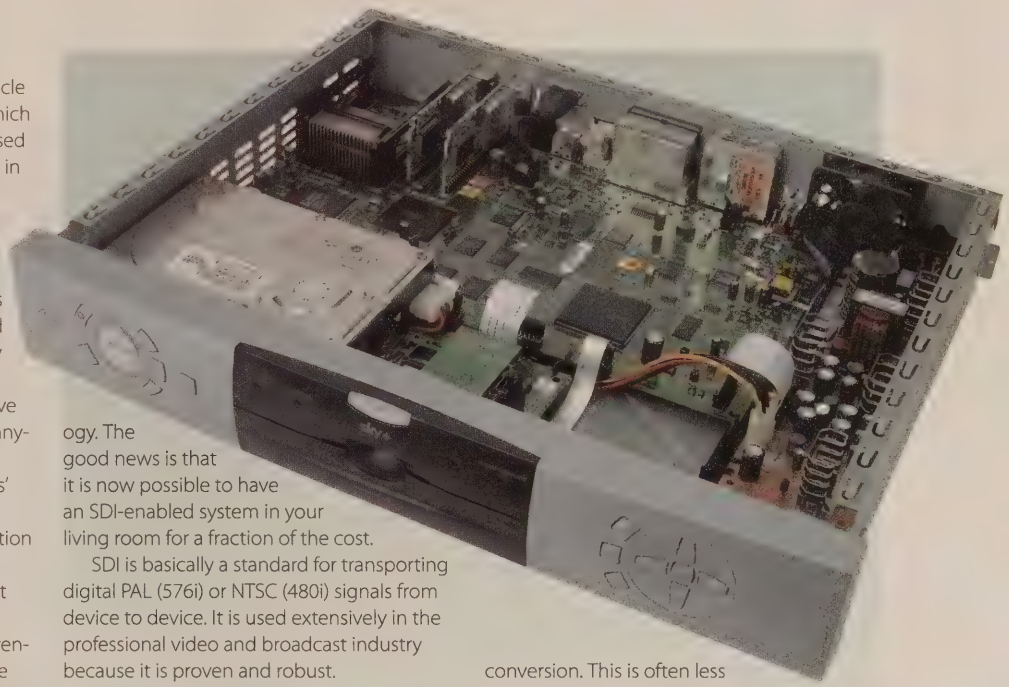
This system would have cost the customer £1,500 for a specially modified Digibox, and a further £10,000 for a suitable plasma screen back then. The makers boasted their system had been purchased by famous people like Madonna and Tony Blair.

Fast forward to 2004; plasma prices have fallen through the floor, and now almost anyone can add the digital output to your Digibox for less than £200 and a few hours' work.

The modified system kept the information that makes up the picture in the digital domain until the very last possible stage. It transmitted a digital signal from the the Digibox to the display, instead of the conventional method of transmitting an analogue signal such as RGB, S-video or composite video.

This digital transport system was called SDI, standing for Serial Digital Interface, and is still widespread within the professional broadcast industry, including the good old BBC.

The 'SDI' technical standard is maintained by the Society of Motion Picture and Television Engineers (SMPTE) as SMPTE 259M, so this is no fly-by-night proprietary technology. The good news is that it is now possible to have an SDI-enabled system in your living room for a fraction of the cost.



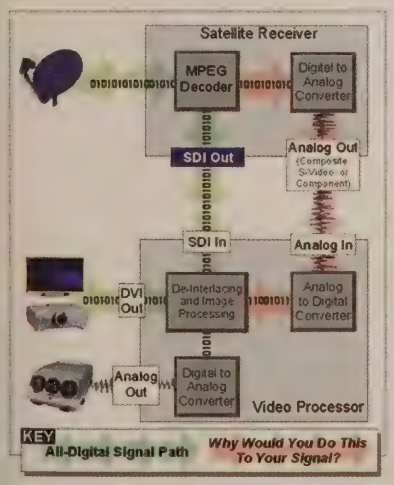


Fig 1: All-digital links avoid two or three analogue conversions

SDI is basically a standard for transporting digital PAL (576i) or NTSC (480i) signals from device to device. It is used extensively in the professional video and broadcast industry because it is proven and robust.

SDI CONVERSION CANDIDATES

This article will give you an understanding of how SDI could improve your system's performance, and what you will need to do to enable it. Before you start ripping the top off your set-top box and wielding soldering irons, you should know that not all satellite receivers can be modified to use a SDI output.

We stick to Sky Digital receivers in this feature, and the ideal candidate for this modification today is the original Sky Plus decoder (Pace BSkyB3000), as it offers the digital time shift facility. Unfortunately, the newer Sky Plus unit (Pace 3100) has tighter integration of the MPEG decoder with the digital-to-analogue converters, meaning it isn't a suitable candidate. It is still possible to buy original Sky Plus boxes fairly cheaply. If you don't want to use the Plus feature set, you will still be able to use the SDI output and obtain the best possible pictures you can from Sky channels.

- composite (over the Scart connection),
- S-video (four pin mini-din),
- RGB (over the Scart connection).

All of these connections rely on the satellite box doing the digital-to-analogue (D-A) conversion. This is often less than ideally implemented to meet budgetary restrictions.

A better solution is to pass the signal in the digital domain to a device with a higher grade of D-A conversion. Better still, keep the picture in the digital domain all the way through to the display device itself.

Benefits to using SDI for high-quality connections between digital devices include:

- No loss of resolution due to D-A/A-D signal conversion,
- No noise, ringing, or artifacts generated during the D-A/A-D process,
- No loss of chroma (color saturation) owing to poor analogue cables,
- Preservation of the full bandwidth,
- Loss-less transmission range of well over 1,000ft (300m),
- Uses cheap standard single 75Ohm coaxial cable with a single BNC connector on each end.

TYPICAL SATELLITE VIDEO PATH

The path from broadcaster to your living room is long and tortuous, but fortunately, the data remains in the digital domain for the majority of this journey, so it is delivered accurately to your satellite decoder. From that point, the signal usually becomes analogue and is prone to degradation.

A compressed MPEG video stream is read off the satellite tuner and sent over to the MPEG decoder, where it is decompressed on to the BT.656 bus – a 576i digital stream with eight parallel data lines and a clock, used for short routing only.

The bus takes the signal to a Digital-to-Analogue (D-A) converter, where it is converted to analogue and then sent on to the analogue outputs (composite, S-video, RGB or component).

The analogue signal is transferred over S-video, Scart or component video cables and delivered to your video processor or plasma display, which then takes the analogue signal and runs it through an Analogue to Digital (A-D) converter before deinterlacing and scaling/processing the signal further for your display device.

The introduction of an extraneous D-A and A-D conversion, coupled with the signal's transmission over conventional analogue cables, subjects the signal to degradation, resulting in a less than perfect picture.

ENHANCED 'DIGITAL' SATELLITE WITH SDI VIDEO PATH

A compressed MPEG video stream is read off the satellite decoder and sent over to the MPEG decoder, where it gets decompressed on to the BT.656 bus – a 576i digital stream on eight parallel data lines and a clock.

A SDI circuit taps into the BT.656 bus with custom hardware which takes the eight data lines and serialises it to the SDI standard. The digital SDI signal connects to your video processor or plasma's SDI input over a single

How to attach the SDI board to a V1 Sky Plus box

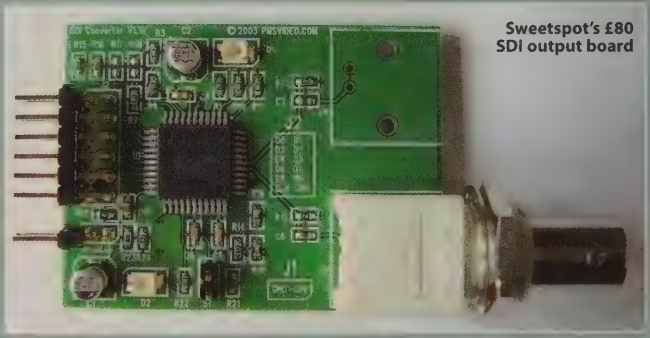
'Star' security screws to unlock Sky Plus



Sweetspot's £80 SDI output board

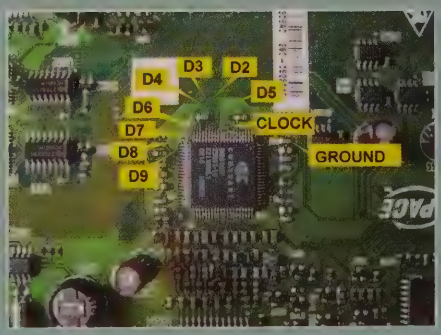
Step 1:
Remove the three security screws at the rear of the satellite decoder. There is one in the centre at the top edge and one on each side.
You should now be able to see the Conexant chip as illustrated in the diagram below. The points marked D2 through to D9 are the 8 data lines which form video data.
The Clock and Clock Ground carry the clock signal which is used to synchronise the data lines. It is important that the clock and clock ground lines are twisted together as seen in Fig X to increase noise rejection on the lines.



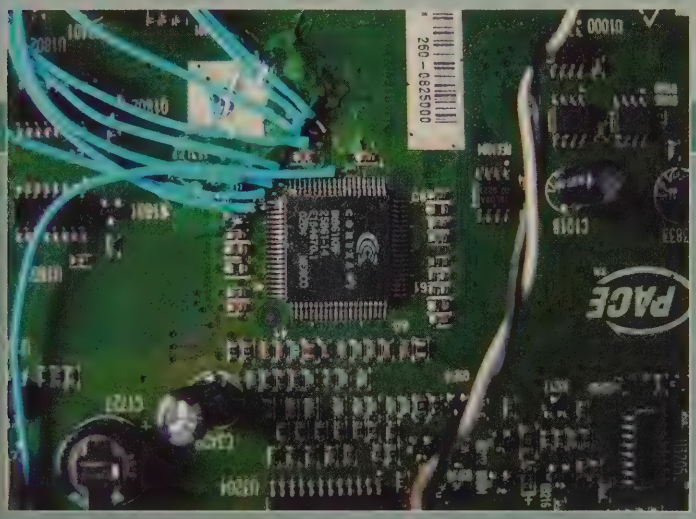
The eight data wires and clock points must be soldered very carefully

Step 2:
In order to form a clean connection between the wires going from these connection points to the SDI output board, it is required to remove the lacquer on top of the circuit traces. This is achieved by gently rubbing down with a folded piece of wet and dry abrasive paper.
This is a crucial stage and if sanded back too far you will damage the copper trace. The aim is to expose enough copper in order to be able to solder to the point. You should be able to see the clear copper colour of the circular pad when you have taken the lacquer back far enough. Ensure that you sand the area only over the circular pad, as this will help to ensure the solder stays where it is required to, and help prevent shorts.

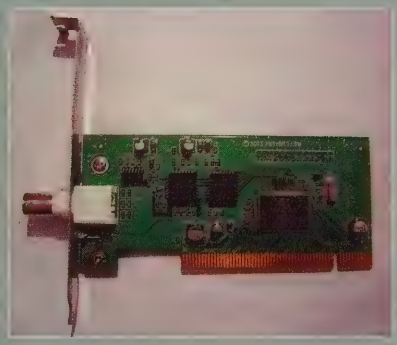
coaxial cable with BNC connectors. The signal always stays digital, completely bypassing the D-A and A-D conversion process.

Fig 1 shows how the digital path differs from the conventional analogue method. The video processor which receives the SDI stream may be built into your plasma accessible via a SDI input board, although more than likely though you will need to use a separate processor. This processor can come in one of two varieties. One approach is to use a stand-alone scaler such as the recently announced Crystalio VPS-2300. These units have in the past been expensive but offer a very simple user interface. The second solution – one that is much cheaper although it does sacrifice some simplicity – is to use a Home Theatre PC (HTPC) configured with a SDI capture card.

Previous commercial SDI input cards were very expensive, but the recent adoption of SDI for consumer DVD and satellite decoders has meant that several new consumer-oriented SDI input cards have become available at much more wallet-friendly prices. The Sweetspot SDI input card is available for under £150 delivered, and provides a single SDI input. This card is easy to install and comes with comprehensive instructions to guide you through the process. It is no more difficult to install one of these cards than it is to change your graphics card. Once you've installed the card and its required drivers, you will need to install some software called dScaler, a free program used to display video on your PC. dScaler is required to allow your PC to 'tune' into the SDI card's input, and display this on the display attached to your PC, in this case let's presume this is a plasma device connected by a DVI connection. The DVI connection facilitates another digital transmission of the picture from HTPC to the display panel, further benefiting picture quality.



Once connected, the wires should be secured with electrical tape or gel adhesive



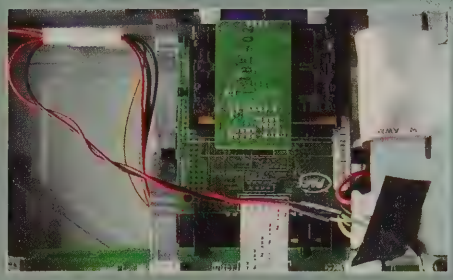
Sweetspot's SDI input board is available for £150 delivered. You should be familiar with installing a PCI expansion card

Step 3:
At this point you have to start attaching the wires to the main board. Progress through the cables one at a time, ensuring each one makes a good contact with the board.

Step 4:
Once you have attached the eight data wires, proceed to attach the clock and clock ground lines. Before soldering these two wires, ensure they are twisted together to aid noise rejection.

Step 5:
The hard drive power supply is a good place to pick the +5v and Ground lines required to power the SDI output board. I modified a PC's Molex lead to allow me to link into the hard drive supply (Fig X).

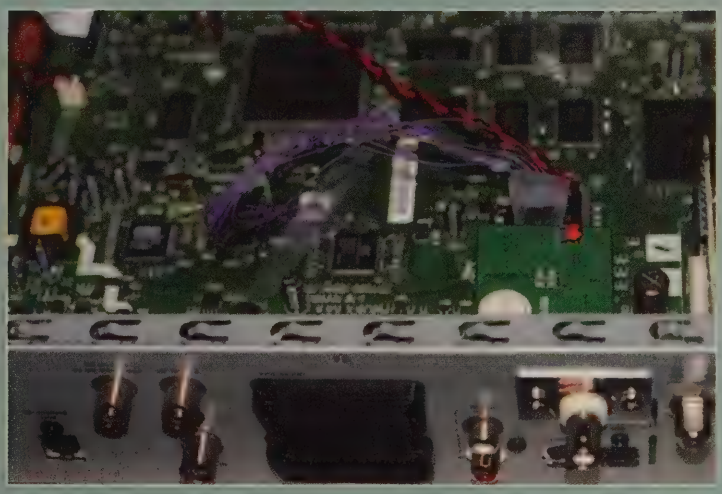
Step 6:
Once all the 10 wires are connected securely to the system board secure them with some insulating electrical tape.



The SDI output board can be powered through the hard disc power supply

Step 7:
There are two options to attach the SDI output to the back of the box:
Option 1 is to disconnect the RS232 port and poke the SDI connection through the remaining hole.
Option 2 is to drill an appropriately sized hole in the rear of the case and mount the SDI connection there.
If taking the drilling option, please take adequate precautions to prevent metal dust contaminating the system board. This could damage the unit when powering it back up.

Step 8:
At this point you are ready to test the SDI output. Run d-Scaler, select input with PAL, and you should see a crisp, clear image.



The RS-232 port is the easiest place to attach the SDI output

PERFORMANCE AND REVELATIONS

So now you know what SDI is, let's take a look at some screen captures taken with a HTPC connected to a Sky Plus box.

The old adage 'garbage in, garbage out' still holds true, even when using SDI.

For the Sky channels with a high bit-rate the SDI picture is, as expected, clearer and sharper compared with the analogue outputs. More definition is especially noticeable on edges of objects resulting in more detail – especially apparent in complex areas such as hair. More detail can be seen within the images and the image exhibits more 'punch', producing a more three-dimensional image. Onscreen banners and the Sky Guide look much clearer, exhibiting an almost layered composition.

'ON LOWER BITRATE DIGITAL SATELLITE CHANNELS THE ADVANTAGES OF SDI BECOME LESS NOTICEABLE'

On lower bitrate digital satellite channels the advantages of SDI become less noticeable. The MPEG noise which is evident in frames – especially those consisting of areas of dark grey and/or black – becomes more obvious. The edges of the MPEG blocks become more clearly visible owing to increase sharpness and contrast. It is possible that some 'softening' of the standard analogue outputs has been engineered into the satellite decoder to help disguise these MPEG artifacts caused through high compression of the video signal.

Perhaps one of the most obvious differences when moving to a SDI feed from decoder to display is the reduced 'noise' in the image. the menu samples illustrate how the solid, constant-value blue background of the Sky menu page is degraded by the noise in the S-video feed caused by the extraneous D/A conversion and analogue signal transmission.

The issue of calibration of the A-D converters is also removed when using the digital link. The MPEG decoder will output a full range signal so any downstream DACs will be working in their optimal range. As the MPEG output is digitally transmitted there is no room for analogue errors such as clipping, or white/black crushing. You can see some signal overhang present on the vertical strokes of the letters, softening the edges and further reducing picture quality

Technomate TM-5500DAPCI

Go, spoil yourself. The 'APCI' tagged on to the Technomate TM-5500DAPCI stands for 'analogue, positioner, common interface'. This is a luxury model for the enthusiast, capable of picking up analogue and digital channels, driving a big dish on a traditional 36V motor, and it has a twin common interface for pay-TV. On top of that, it's as easy to use as the rest of the TM-5500 range, with lots of navigation features, special controls for inclined orbit motors, lots of AV connections, USALS, and pretty good pictures to boot. The £209 price tag is icing on the cake.

Eye to the future

Freeview viewers have long envied Sky's eight days of TV listings. They will soon be on an equal footing, as Toby Marshall explains

An eight-day electronic programme guide has long been a feature of Sky Digital satellite TV, and it has been a matter of consternation among both manufacturers and consumers that the Freeview digital terrestrial platform is unable to match it.

Freeview had been running a trial of an eight-day electronic programme guide (EPG) from the Wenvoe transmitter in South Wales since January. In early May, feeling that it needed a larger target trial audience 'to provide added confidence in the service before considering full national roll-out', Freeview extended the trial to the nation's capital, transmitting from Crystal Palace, as well as relay transmitters at Guildford, Hemel Hempstead, and Reigate.

Despite the obvious differences in geography and audience size, providing the extended service in London is technically very similar to doing so in Wales, allowing 'technical risk' to be minimised while achieving a significant gain in audience size. There are also significant benefits to providing London coverage, as many broadcasters, manufacturers, industry bodies and, most importantly, politicians will be able to experience an extended schedule service for the first time. Unless they've had Sky, that is.

Initial hopes to resurrect ITV Digital's schedule information (SI) data system – which would have allowed Freeview to offer a re-branded version of ITV Digital's eight-day EPG – did not come to fruition. Ever since, BBC engineers have been beavering away at rebuilding the SI engine from scratch at BBC TV Centre. They have gradually extended the SI 'event horizon' from merely now-and-next, to four days, and eventually to eight days of programme information.

INFORMATION ENGINES

For the technically minded, the UK DTT network is essentially the same as that operated by ITV Digital before its demise, says Crown Castle's Keith Hayler, who chairs the Digital TV Group's Schedule Delivery Group. It generates a self-contained set of SI, which falls into two categories:

- Service Description Tables (SDT) and Network Information Tables (NIT) – background information.
- Event Information Tables (EIT) – the what's on guide.

The EIT itself also falls into two categories:

- Present/Following – provides the familiar now-and-next guide.
- Schedule – which will support EPGs.

The Present/Following data has been on air since the network launched, and Schedule is part of the eight-day EPG trial on the BBC, Crown Castle and Digital 3 and 4 multiplexes. The SDN multiplex will not carry any extended schedule information as part of the current trial, but will almost certainly be able to carry the full schedule information when nationwide deployment takes place.

'HOPEFULLY, MORE MANUFACTURERS WILL MAKE THEIR BOXES CAPABLE OF DISPLAYING EXTENDED SI'

The schedule format is eight complete days to provide a look ahead to this time next week at any time of the day. The info provided is billed time, duration, title and synopsis.

During the London trial, the following receivers will attempt to decode this schedule information: Humax F2 Fox 1 STB, Humax 8000 PVR, Pace PVR, Pace DTVA, Sony VTX D800U, and Sony integrated digital TVs (IDTVs)

Hopefully, more manufacturers will make their boxes capable of displaying extended SI. Most existing boxes can accept over-the-air software upgrades, and schedule-ready receivers could give the market a new boost, once nationwide roll-out of the eight-day EPG takes place.

So apart from the consumer's desire to find out what's on the box next Wednesday teatime, why the big rush to provide SI data extending as far into the future as possible? Well, it's all tied in with the big picture of the digital TV industry's 'TV Anytime' project, which aims to provide enough 'metadata' to allow PVRs to do their stuff. Enhanced features such as series linking, programme grouping, record-from-trailer, have been mooted by both EPG camps, allowing the consumer to look forward to a much easier viewing experience once the system has been rolled out to the whole country.

Freeview is, naturally, guarded about the immediate future for its EPG data, but according to informed sources, in light of the apparent success of the London trial, a TDN (The Digital Network) executive meeting to decide on roll-out dates for nationwide eight-day EPG coverage is scheduled for the end of May. It is likely this will be deployed either before the summer's big sports events, Euro 2004 and the Athens Olympics, or in the autumn, so as to minimise disruption ■

FastTV – the alternative guide

Some manufacturers, including Fusion, Daewoo and Thomson, were keen to use a fuller EPG to help sell receivers, and were reluctant to wait for Freeview to deploy their offering nationally.

They turned to 4TV, in Nantwich, Cheshire, to provide a proprietary UK-wide seven-day EPG, FastTV, which began transmitting on the Freeview platform on November 13.

'The guide is deployed free to the consumer and is available to manufacturers who use 4TV software products and to manufacturers which deploy products using third party software,' says Dave Lister, 4TV's technology manager. The 4TV EPG currently features in the Fusion FRT100 set-top box and the just-launched Thomson DVR, among others.

In the near future 4TV 'intends to deploy a whole range of advanced features', including 'a longer look-ahead', 'much greater depth including "magazine-like content"', 'advanced navigation tools' and 'multiple user-profiles'.

The first improvement is likely to be the 14-day EPG employed by Fusion in its second-generation of PVRs, towards the end of this year.

Prime time dreams

Albert Son and Dale Heathcote talk to Alex Lane about their plans to make Humax a household name

Wotsat readers were probably among the few who recognised the Humax tag when its first Freeview adapter appeared in the UK last year.

The ambitious Korean electronics company has been a player in digital satellite since the first receivers appeared in the mid-1990s, although the very first boxes appeared under various other names.

So we're used to seeing 'firsts' from Humax: the first compact, cheap satellite receiver to take advantage of full-integrated digital TV chipsets; the first we tested with DiSEqC motor control; the first to put funny little extras like games and biorhythm generators in a receiver (a trend that has worn out its welcome); and the first twin-tuner satellite receiver with a hard disc recorder.

Albert Son, executive director of Humax Europe, is charged with making the brand a name to rank alongside some of the major names in the market. He attributes the success so far to quality alone.

'We started by targeting niche markets in parts of Europe, for viewers seeking a different choice from what the local broadcasters provide. Providing very high-quality receivers in the early stage, and we never really focused on sales and marketing in the early stage, seldom invested in PR or promotion. We just simply sold one by one, and I would say the product sold itself.'

Set-top boxes like a satellite receiver or Freeview adapter are Humax's bread and butter, and Humax is planning to put itself on the map with more features for both Freeview and satellite viewers.

The current PVR-8000 twin-tuner satellite receiver will be replaced this summer by a newer model also using a removable caddy. On both models users are able to slide out the disc and replace it with a larger one bought from a dealer.

'HUMAX IS NEVER GOING TO BE A COMPANY THAT JUST MAKES STANDARD PRODUCTS, BECAUSE WE'LL STRUGGLE TO COMPETE WITH THE WELL-ESTABLISHED MANUFACTURERS'

The terrestrial version will be sleeker, and after much discussion, it won't have the caddy-mounted drive, although it will have twin tuners.

Dale Heathcote is Humax's UK commercial director. 'The specialist retailers thought it was a great idea – to be able to upgrade your hard disc. The major high street retailers said they absolutely don't want it – they thought this would make the product over-complicated.

'I would like to increase the hard disc capacity. The current one has got 40GB in it. When the twin tuner comes out, we're going to have to have a minimum of 80GB and we may go to 120. We're considering different options but definitely looking hard at the CI slot situation. Then at least we will have a product with future proofing.'

The CI – common interface – slot may be essential for giving viewers the option to take Top-Up TV, the upstart mini-subscription TV package now available over digital terrestrial.

A more pressing issue with digital terrestrial has been the electronic programme guide, which is now well-into its trial period in Greater London. Humax has been working closely with the BBC and other broadcasters on two previous EPG trials in Wales, so it's one of the few brands guaranteed to work with the eight-day guide.

For Albert, it's an essential feature, but really only the beginning.

'For eight days, the data is available but it's just the beginning. We do expect 14 days and more and greater versatility for the guide.'

Set-top boxes are just one part of the digital entertainment experience, so Humax has split off two other divisions for research and manufacturing: flat screen TVs and home media servers.

The first fruit of the flat TV division is a very fetching and highly specified 17in LCD integrated digital TV, reviewed in this issue. This year will see a 26in LCD IDTV, and then a 32in model. The 32in will be unique to the UK market at launch, with three-tuners (two digital and one analogue), digital picture-in-picture and a built-in PVR.

We saw a very sleek prototype of the 32in model, and there will also be a twin tuner, PVR option for the 26in, giving Humax the full range from set-top boxes below £100 to hi-specification large screen IDTVs, which are expected to retail at over £2,000.

Home media servers is Humax's real blue-sky division, where the new technology workers probably make up more than the company average of 58 per cent in research and development. There are no firm details on how the plans of broadcasters, cable companies and telecoms providers will shape demands on this generation of devices.

Humax is closely watching developments such as high definition TV in Europe. There won't be a receiver for Euro1080 just yet, says Albert, but with HD products already on sale in America and Asia, it wouldn't be tough to produce one. The key factor is going to be take-up of large-screen TVs which show up even DVD and digital TV. Experience in America suggests that viewers will want to record their expensive hi-def TV to enjoy more than once.

In the UK, both free-to-air satellite and Sky present exciting opportunities. ITV's decision when its encryption contract expires next year could open a new market for free-to-air receivers.

Like us, Dale is convinced that open access to satellite is essential to complete Britain's digital TV coverage, and that the government will intervene in some way to make sure the big five are freely available.

Equally, Humax would like a slice of the Sky Digibox pie enjoyed historically by the likes of Pace and Amstrad.

'It's a tight, select manufacturing community, but I think we can remind people what we currently provide to other operators around the world and there aren't too many manufacturers who've got the expertise and global experience in satellite boxes that we have,' adds Dale.

The impression is of a company as comfortable at the cutting edge as it is at the cash register. Says Dale: 'Humax is never going to be a company that just makes standard products, because we'll struggle to compete with the well-established manufacturers. We have to come out with product that adds real value and utilises our set-top box expertise.

'The home media server is the most interesting one in a way because it's new technology – do we combine DVD RW and PVRs with something that's got an Ethernet port and DSL? Is the demand going to be there for a European HD PVR? I don't know many manufacturers who have set their minds and decided what they're going to do yet, we're all tinkering.'

Part of the Humax production line in Korea

What is Humax?

The unusual name stands for 'Human Maximisation', although it wasn't coined until 1987, when Humax had moved firmly into home entertainment set-top boxes from its roots in graphics processors and vision mixing equipment.

Established 1[illegible] years ago, Humax is now a truly global outfit, with its headquarters in Korea, a Tokyo office serving the Asian markets, and subsidiaries in Dubai, Germany, UK, Italy, serving the Middle East, Central Europe, Eastern Europe and Russia, as well as the US.

Humax has its sights on revenues of $1billion by 2006. The company's versatile family of products includes digital receivers for terrestrial, satellite and cable, TV-over-DSL, personal video recorders, and combo units like DVD-digital TV, home theatre-in-a-box, and the latest home media server designed to play out video, music and photos around the home.

The unit can operate dishes from 75cm to 1.1m, and uses a standard 36V polar mount to track the arc east-west, while an adapted DiSEqC mount is used to drive the vertical axis.

Like any dual-axis mount, this allows it to follow inclined-orbit satellites, and to track the far ends of the arc where polar mounts often lose accuracy.

The unit will be supplied '90 per cent ready-to-use' and Technomate says it is very quiet. AVAILABLE AUG 04.

How can I get... French channels?

Continuing our guide to picking up TV channels from Europe and beyond. This month: over the sea to France

As with neighbouring Germany, there are quite a few free French-language channels available on European satellite.

You can receive the popular TV5 in analogue (encrypted on Sky Digital) and many of the others featured in our list, free-to-air from Hot Bird 13°E, while a fair few are also available from Astra 1 at 19.2°E.

France is home to one of the largest players in the the European pay-TV market – Canal Plus – but TPS and ABSat also have their fair share of channels and subscribers.

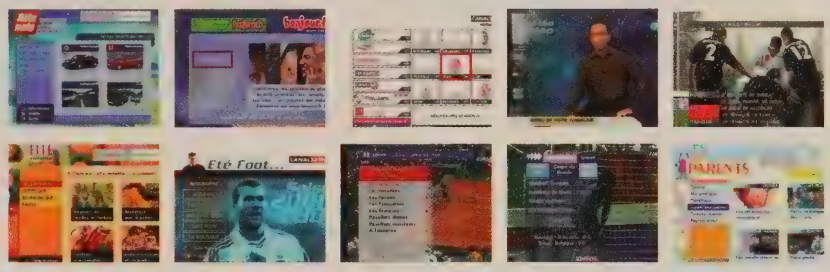
Canal Plus broadcasts via Astra 1 at 19°E while Hot Bird 13°E is where you'll find TPS and ABSat.

'ALL THREE REQUIRE A VIEWING CARD FOR THE PACKAGE YOU WANT TO WATCH'

As with any pay-TV service, all three require a viewing card for the package you want to watch. Subscriptions are sold on a yearly basis and prices can vary from dealer to dealer.

Cards can be obtained from dealers who've imported them, or – if you're lucky enough to know someone living in France – you could get them to order one direct from the provider and have it sent over.

The free-to-air French analogue channels obtainable from Atlantic Bird 3 (for example, M6 and Arte), use the Secam video system which is common to French TV. Most TVs bought in the past few years should be able to handle this, but check that your TV is compatible just in case ■



Canal Plus

With offshoots in Spain, Poland and The Netherlands too, Canal is one of the biggest subscription services in Europe. A small selection of the channels on its French service can be picked up free-to-air, but track down a viewing card and you can get more than 70 with a top-whack subscription. These include dedicated film channels, sport, music, and cookery, including big names such as CNN, Fox Kids and Cartoon Network.

The kit: A receiver with built-in or added Viaccess or Seca Mediaguard CAM. Also requires a 60cm dish with a universal LNB aimed at Astra 1 costing about £60.

The cost: Subscriptions range from £300 for the basic 58-channel package to the top package which adds five film channels, Disney channels and sports channels and costs around £650.

ABSat

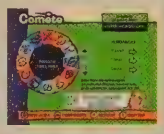
A huge bouquet of 14 channels including family entertainment, documentaries, music and more esoteric fare such as adult channel XXL and Chasse and Peche (Hunting and Fishing). Also includes themed film channels.

The kit: A receiver fitted with built-in or added CAM supporting Seca Mediguard or Viaccess. Reception requires a 70cm dish with a universal LNB costing £60.

The cost: The top package, Absat Tout, costs £450 per year for 20 channels, including XXL. The basic 10-channel package doesn't include XXL and costs £250.

TPS France

Featuring a broad mixture of family entertainment, eight themed film channels music and the XXL adult channel, the handsome TPS bouquet also includes French language versions of MTV and VH1, plus RTL and the popular ART.



The kit: A receiver fitted with built-in or added CAM supporting Viaccess 2. Some channels are also encrypted in Cryptoworks and Seca Mediaguard. Reception requires a 70 cm dish with a universal LNB (around £60).

The cost: Costs around £290 a year for the basic 20-channel package, TPS Initiale. The top 55-channel, TPS Intergral package includes six film channels and costs around £500.

Sold on interactive

SHOPPING CHANNEL QVC HAS COME A LONG WAY SINCE ITS EARLY PHONE-SALES INCARNATION – AS ASTRA EXPLAINS

In 2003 QVC sold nearly £226million of goods by phone and over the internet – and around 30 per cent through the QVC interactive TV service. Now QVC Active, the first interactive TV sales service at 28.2°E, has been upgraded with the biggest changes since it started. The result for customers is a faster, simpler browse and purchase, with the introduction of new features that make parting with the cash even easier.

QVC has made the changes along with NDS (the News Corp company that produces the Sky Digital's Videoguard encryption and viewing cards). The companies have been working together for five years, since the interactive service was first developed.

QVC Active uses NDS's Value@TV interactive TV system, which links your Digibox with QVC's broadcast, sales processing and warehouse systems.

'The interactive application and data about the products on offer are sent by Value@TV as part of the QVC broadcast signal,' explains Peter Vestergaard Larsen, NDS's director of interactive TV. 'This is then presented to the viewer by the "i-engine" software – another part of Value@TV – in the Digibox.'

QVC Active has evolved considerably since its launch in 2000. 'Our original plan was to build a purchase mechanism,' says Simon Leach, QVC's commercial manager for new media, 'but rather than wait for the development of the return path [in the early days of interactive TV], we thought we'd put some products up there – the Directory – because we could!'

'In 2001 NDS built the Impulse Purchasing application for QVC,' says Larsen, 'so you could see the programmes on air and you could actually buy the product you were looking at, with the remote control. That was quite a powerful step.'

'Then we effectively had two different services,' says Leach. 'The user experience used to be that you came into one part of the application, and looked for a product in the other part. If you found the product there that you wanted to buy you had to go back to the first to buy it.

'The third phase of the project was always to combine them into one. It just took longer than we intended.'

'With Phase 3, NDS has now combined the Directory and Impulse Purchasing applications,' says Larsen. 'What that means is the viewer gets faster response times and additional search capabilities.'

All the options are now available from one screen. As well as view the programme guide, special offers and featured products, here you can search for a product. And when you've found what you want, a press of the yellow 'Buy Now' button starts the purchase.

In addition to the search for a product by item number, a new search has been added too – for any product featured in the past 24 hours. As soon as you enter QVC Active, details of about 200 products featured in the past 24 hours are downloaded into your Digibox for instant access and purchase (other products from QVC's catalogue of about 13,000 items are called up from the central database using the modem). Tune in at midnight and you'll witness the previous day's update.

> 'IT'S PROBABLY THE MOST SOPHISTICATED PURCHASING SYSTEM FOR INTERACTIVE TV, IN THE WORLD.'

Merging the Directory and the Buy Now functions has other benefits for QVC. 'Operationally, it's a more robust solution, says Larsen, 'and it allows them to upgrade stock inventory every 30 seconds.

'Information from the warehouse about exactly which product sizes, colours and so on are available, is included in the data transmission through the Value@TV system to the Digibox, and so the viewer can only order what is actually in stock.

'It's probably the most sophisticated purchasing system for interactive TV, in the world.'

The new 2-in-1 QVC Active also makes more efficient use of the bandwidth available and the bandwidth 'saved' will be made use of for additional services. Already mooted is a Christmas shop offering seasonal products in addition to the regular items, but other ideas are in the pipeline.

'There's always flexibility to add,' says Leach. 'If there's room, we're very good at finding things to do with it.'

'We've come a long way working with QVC, says Larsen. 'There are even more revolutionary possibilities for what QVC can do in the future'.

So with sales through QVC Active getting easier and more popular, will we see the end of buying by phone from QVC?

'I don't imagine we'll ever close down our call centre', says Leach. 'Certainly not for a long, long time'.

Finepass FSR-5000 TDR

A TWIN-TUNER PVR WITH USALS FOR LESS THAN £400? HANDAN'S FIRST OWN-BRAND PVR IS THE CLOSEST THING YET TO A TOTAL HOME MEDIA SERVER, AS ALEX LANE DISCOVERS

Personal video recorders – digital TV receivers with a built-in hard disc drive – have been around for almost four years, but the first models had a single tuner and were of limited use, while hard disc drives hadn't become cheap enough to give a useful amount of storage.

Sky Plus brought the first twin-tuner sat-PVR to the world, and with it the ability to watch one channel while you record another, or even record two channels at once (and we had to wait a couple of years for that!). Multi-sat enthusiasts had to wait until last year for Humax's PVR-8000, a slick and easy-to-use twin-tuner receiver with a healthy 80GB hard disc drive. The twin-tuner proposition was later refined by Topfield's TF-5000 PVR; now the Finepass FSR-5000 TDR could make an even bigger impact.

As a satellite receiver, the FSR-5000 TDR has an impressive specification, with twin tuners, two common interface slots, DiSEqC 1.2 and USALS smart motorised mount control. This PVR can record two channels at once (even scrambled channels), and time-shift, even within an ongoing recording. On paper, at least, it's as close to Sky Plus as you'll get on a multi-sat receiver, and in some ways it's better because you can also load up photos and MP3 audio files from a PC.

What's really unusual is that the twin tuners are totally independent, with their own channel lists and capable of driving two motorised or multi-feed dishes; you can record one channel and watch another channel on any other satellite.

At first glance, the FSR-5000 TDR is unassuming; a normal-sized silver-grey case with a bevelled front, a four-digit LED display, four chrome control buttons in a cross to the right. On the left, another four buttons in a straight line labelled power, EPG, Menu and OK.

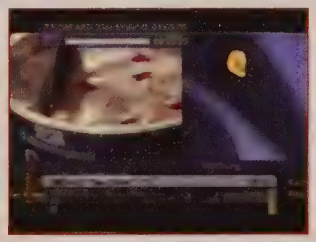
The remote handset is pretty large on account of extra buttons for the PVR portion but, like the Sky Plus remote, it's a good, chunky design with easy-to-use buttons.

Handan has signalled its intention to be more than a fly-by-night brand by hiring a transponder on Astra which broadcasts the latest software update. You can also upgrade the software from www.finepass.com using a serial or USB link to your PC. The USB link can also be used to transfer files to and from the FSR-5000 TDR.

Our sample was supplied with a 40GB hard disc – small by today's standards – but you will have to fit your own, which bumps up the £235 price by anything from £40 for a 40GB drive to £65 for a 120GB drive. It's an easy task, and the instructions are very clear.

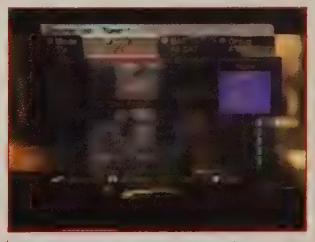
The menus have a unique and very attractive layout: a pair of animated circles show the upper and lower menu options

Time-shift to watch special scenes again...



...and record on the other tuner at the same time

Editthe names when you record or save a timeshift cache



The channel list has powerful sorting options simultaneously, pressing up/down selects the sub-menu option, and pressing right/left selects your main menu option.

Setup

A simple setup wizard will have the FSR-5000 TDR working soon after it's turned on. The tuners can be either separate, in which case each LNB has to set up independently, or looped through using the supplied patch cable to link the output of tuner 1 to the input of tuner 2. This means the LNB on has to be configured once.

The tuners have to be set up separately whether you have a dual-output LNB, a multi-feed dish with several LNBs, or two dishes. Each tuner can control up to four LNBs using DiSEqC, and you can have standard Ku-band, C-band, and user-defined LNBs.

You can then select the satellites for each tuner, from a comprehensive worldwide list. With a fixed dish, you then go straight to searching for channels, for all your chosen satellites, or just the current location.

Motorised setup with simple DiSEqC motor is just a case of driving the dish until you find the satellite, then storing it and running a search. You can change test transponders on the same screen, and move continuously, or in small steps to fine tune.

'What's really unusual is that the twin tuners are totally independent, with their own channel lists and capable of driving two motorised or multi-feed dishes'

If you've got a USALS mount you should just need to put it in the reference position, input your latitude and longitude, and it should do the rest.

In every case you can select whether you want to search for free channels or scrambled channels as well. Then you choose to search a single transponder, the whole satellite, or use a network search to find new transponders.

The tuner isn't very sensitive, returning a noticeably lower strength and quality for a given signal than our reference Manhattan Starlight 6800 receiver.

The search is reasonably fast, displaying a progress banner, a list of found channels and a count of the number of channels found on the current transponder. After searching, you can browse through the found transponders before saving the results.

+ Excellent home media server

confused, because as we noted earlier, each has its own channel list. Fortunately, the receiver can automatically compare and update the lists, or you can copy one tuner's list to the other. If you're using a twin-output LNB this saves time because you only have to tune the LNB once, then you just copy the channels over to tuner 2.

Channel organisation has to be the simplest software we've seen since Echonav. In fact, it's similar in many ways, which is no surprise given the two companies' long association. The coloured function buttons are used to select between TV and radio lists, eight favourite channel lists, which satellite is listed, and how the channels are grouped. The latter option is very helpful, allowing you to list channels by satellite, transponder frequency, network, free or scrambled, PIN lock, and alphabetically.

Channels can be edited on the fly, so at any point you can call up the channel list and press the edit button to place a channel on one of the favourites lists, lock it, move it in the master list, delete it, rename it, or apply a volume offset (useful for Italian horoscope channels, which always seem very loud).

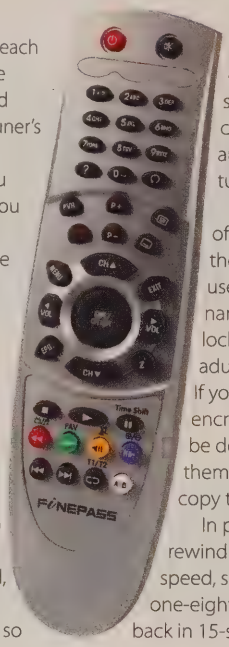
In addition, you can edit a channel's PIDs (useful for radio), add new channels using PIDs, add, edit or delete transponders, and even edit, delete or add satellites, complete with a test transponder to help you then find a new satellite.

The EPG shows a two-hour view, and you can fast-forward through as many days of programming as the channel provides (which is often none-at-all or just now-and-next).

Recording

A satellite receiver is only part of the FSR-5000 TDR's role, and it's also a very capable personal video recorder that really approaches being a complete home media server. It can record video, and it can play back both photos and MP3 audio files. In fact, you may find that anything less than 120GB isn't enough for this PVR.

You can record from live TV or radio instantly as you watch, and pressing Record a second time allows you to set a time limit. Recordings can also be set using a manual timer, or by highlighting an event in the EPG. There's no limit on the number of scheduled recordings, and they can be up to 999 minutes long, which at more than 16 hours exceeds what even a 120GB disc can hold. You can also lock them so that the channel can't be changed while you're recording, and you can record on both tuners simultaneously.



The PVR button provides a list of recordings, and you can change their names to something more useful, you can sort them by name, date or size, and you can lock them (if you've been watching adult channels) or delete old files. If you've been recording from encrypted channels, then these can be descrambled so you can watch them without the viewing card (and copy them for posterity).

In playback, you can fast-forward or rewind at up to eight times normal speed, slow-motion at half, quarter and one-eighth speed, and jump forward or back in 15-second chunks. You can also place up to 10 index markers in recordings to help find your way round later. You can also mark a section of a video to play in a loop.

If you're using a single-output LNB with the tuners looped through, instead of dual-output LNB, then you're limited to the channels you can watch on the second tuner while recording on the first. They have to be in the same polarity and (for Ku-band channels) the same frequency band. The receiver locks out channels of the wrong polarity, but not the wrong band.

The FSR-5000 TDR can also pause live TV, although this facility doesn't run automatically like Sky Plus, and when you're time-shifting you can't change channels or access the channel list, operation menus or PVR menu. However, you can time-shift for up to 90 minutes, you can save the time-shift cache permanently, and you can time-shift while you're recording.

The photo viewer and MP3 jukebox use a similar interface, with 3GB set aside (enough for roughly 4,000 JPEG images), and favourites lists for up to 500 images. With images, you can play a slide show and zoom in or out up to double the original size. The MP3 store adapts the controls to offer fast-forward and rewind, 10-second jumps, last or next song, pause and section repeat.

Copying files to and from a PC is quite easy, so you could edit videos on your PC and copy them back for later viewing.

Performance and features

We weren't disappointed by image quality in either live TV or playback, although we're usually disappointed by what most channels consider to be acceptable video quality. However, there are sharp edges and rich colours to be found, and the decoder resists pixellation, with especially good results from the RGB Scart.

There's a choice of aspect ratios: full-screen, centred or letter-box for 4:3 TVs, or a full widescreen, and the image brightness can be adjusted to suit your surroundings.

Audio quality is also good and this is maintained on recordings. The digital audio output is very clean and you'll find occasional Dolby Digital to enjoy free-to-air on Pro Sieben, and elsewhere on a few pay-channels if you've got the right CAM.

Picture quality remains very good during slow-motion and fast-forward, so you can see what you're doing, although it sometimes pixellates briefly when you change modes.

Many channels still broadcast old-fashioned teletext, which you can watch using the FSR-5000 TDR's built-in viewer, or using your TV's viewer. There are also PIN locks for channels, the installation menus, and for the whole receiver so that only you can operate it.

The Finepass FSR-5000 TDR is the most comprehensive personal video recorder we've yet seen; it offers a huge range of functions and yet remains easy to use. Its flexibility makes it ideal for feed-hunters to programme their own transponder lists and who don't want to miss a thing, or for the casual viewer who wants to get the most out of European satellite TV. It's also impressive value for money with so many features built in ■

Topfield TF3000CI-pro

GEOFF BAINS YEARNS FOR MOTORISED DISHES OF OLD, THANKS TO THIS MOTORISED MOUNT-CRAZY RECEIVER

How much is a multi-satellite digital receiver with common interface slots, able to drive a DiSEqC or conventional motorised dish going to set you back? If it's the Topfield TF3000CI-pro, then only £199 – a price that would have seemed unimaginable a few years ago.

This unit replaces the TF3000CIP and, although similar in appearance and many features, it vastly improves on the previous model, and it comes in at two-thirds the price too.

The TF3000CI-pro is not a particularly handsome machine.

There's been no improvement it its looks, no trendy silver finish. The front panel looks reminiscent of older Echostar receivers, and in the centre it has the obligatory numeric display for channel number (and a clock when in standby mode) and rather plastic buttons for standby and up/down only.

A flap on the right-hand side covers the two common interface slots for plug-in conditional access modules.

The remote control is a little more up-to-date in looks. It's a little small but nicely formed, with a sensible layout of shaped buttons, even if three of them serve no purpose with this receiver.

The back panel includes, unusually these days, a bunch of spring connectors on the right-hand side. These are for a conventional motorised dish and a servo (pulse-actuated) polariser.

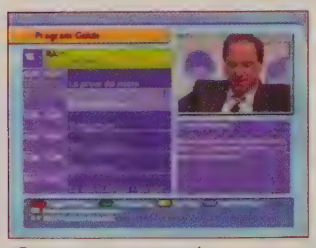
As well as a DiSEqC motorised dish, the TF3000CI-pro can drive a polar mount and actuator or a horizon-to-horizon mount. And to complete the nostalgia trip, the TF3000CI-pro can also drive a separate pulse-actuated polariser, with a different skew for each satellite – not quite the ideal of a different skew for each transponder, but more flexible than the single skew setting an integrated LNB-polariser limits you to.

To top it off, the TF3000CI-pro also has a separate 0/12V switching output for controlling an LNB switch, in addition to the DiSEqC switching that comes with DiSEqC motor control.

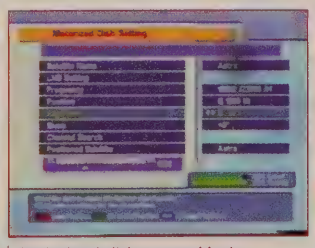
Setup

The more flexible the antenna system, the more complex the setup – and so it is here. There's no friendly installation wizard or preset programming, so when you switch on the TF3000CI-pro you have to get your hands dirty.

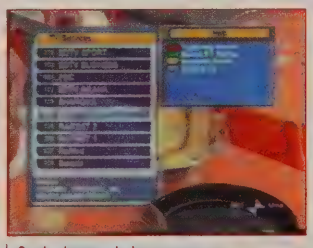
The setup for a fixed dish (one or more LNBs) runs in parallel with that for a motorised dish (DiSEqC, USALS or conventional). For fixed dish(es), each satellite to be received is selected from a list (or a new entry created) and the LNB to receive that satellite defined – local oscillator frequencies, power, and 0/12V,



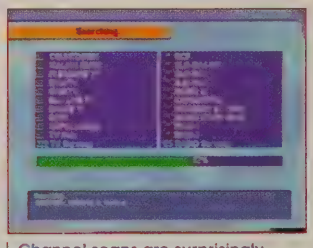
Reserve programmes for recording from the EPG



Motorised dishes need just three satellites to set up the arc



Sort channels by name or satellite on the fly



Channel scans are surprisingly slow

DiSEqC and 22kHz (if it's not a universal LNB) switching – then it's off to the channel search to find the active broadcasts on that satellite.

If you have a motorised dish, then you go to one of three menus for a DiSEqC, USALS or conventional mount. The DiSEqC setup is entirely manual and for each satellite (picked from the same list) allows you to set the dish limits, move the dish, store the position, reset the mount, move to the zero position and recalculate the positions.

For USALS mounts, the menu allows for setting your latitude and longitude, selecting a satellite and moving to it (bizarrely, 'clockwise' and 'anticlockwise' rather than 'east' and 'west' are used in this section).,

The section for conventional motorised mounts is equally self-installing. Once the east and west limits have been set, you can select three satellites – west, east and a middle one – and find their positions. Then the TF3000CI-pro will automatically calculate the positions for other selected satellites in between. Surprisingly, this receiver doesn't have an auto focus facility to home in on a satellite.

With the satellites found, the TF3000CI-pro can search for all active channels (or just free-to-air or encrypted channels). You can search the whole satellite, one transponder with a network search, or search for a particular channel (by defining the PIDs). It won't search all stored satellites in one go; you have to do them one at a time.

'For the facilities it offers the TF3000CI-pro is something of a bargain, it and it will appeal to any deep space TV viewer'

Searching is not the TF3000CI-pro's strong point. It is slow. To scan Astra 1 at 19°E for all channels (about 70 transponders) took a tedious nine minutes. This lack of speed is a shame, as it will put off many potential fans.

A satellite's transponder list can be edited as it becomes outdated, adding new transponders, deleting them, or changing the values stored (although the symbol rate can only be changed by creating a new transponder with the same frequency and the new symbol rate).

radio stations), which is displayed onscreen and scrolled through with the Up/Down buttons (moving a page at a time with the Left/Right buttons). The satellite, transponder frequency, polarity, symbol rate and PIDs are displayed for the channel highlighted, which is selected with the OK button.

The list can be temporarily sorted into alphabetical order by name and you can jump through it an initial letter at a time. It's a quick way of finding the channel you want.

You can get to the right channel even quicker by switching the list to just one satellite, or by selecting a favourite channel list. Once a favourite list is selected, it limits the channel up/down buttons to selecting the favourite channels only.

The favourite channel lists are easily populated by selecting channels from the main list (channels can be in more than one favourite list). Four lists are already named News, Movies, Music and Sport and more can be created and named.

The channels in the favourite lists are fixed in the order they were placed there, and cannot be re-organised short of deleting channels from the list and replacing them.

The main channel list however, can be edited extensively. Channels can be moved, deleted and renamed and the whole list can be sorted by name, encryption, satellite and even by presence in a favourite list.

When a channel is selected, an information banner is briefly displayed giving the channel name, number, satellite and transponder information, the current programme name if transmitted (the next programme is also available with a press of the Right button), signal level and quality scales and icons for teletext and subtitles.

The TF3000CI-pro displays the EPG in two modes – a list of six programmes for the current channel (with an inset window showing the TV picture and synopsis details of the highlighted channel), or as a table of four channels and the programmes across three hours.

Any programme can be 'reserved' – the receiver will then switch to that channel at the requisite time. However, there is no way to manually set this event timer for the (many) channels that do not transmit more than now-and-next EPG data.

Performance

The picture quality from the TF3000CI-pro is reasonable – colours are clear and deep, the contrast and detail is up to standard, but there is a little noise, or graininess, in the images. When viewed using the UHF connection, it's noticeably worse.

However, the sound quality is good, and using the digital audio outputs makes the most of this.

Other Features

The TF3000CI-pro has a freeze frame facility and it will both decode teletext and re-insert the data in the television signal for display on a teletext TV.

Apart from the programme 'reservation' in the EPG, the TF3000CI-pro has two other timer facilities. A sleep timer can be started with a dedicated button on the handset and the receiver can be set to come on (on a preset channel) and off at preset times everyday as a sort of alarm clock. The TF3000CI-pro also has four games including (unusually) poker.

If you have a large dish, it will probably be beyond the scope of a DiSEqC (or USALS) mount. They simply don't have the power to push around a 1.5m (and above) antenna. But a conventional mount, particularly a polar mount with an actuator, can turn almost any size of dish. With its conventional motor drive, the TF3000CI-pro will appeal to those hunting for signals from the weaker satellites, and with the servo polariser control it's particularly suitable for C-band use.

Because it offers both DiSEqC and conventional mount drives, the TF3000CI-pro will also fit well if you're thinking of upgrading to a big dish later.

The TF3000CI-pro is not without faults – slow scanning and some oddities in the navigation and setup software (some very minor features just don't work) – and the pictures are not the best we've seen. However, for the facilities it offers, the TF3000CI-pro is something of a bargain, it and it will appeal to any deep space TV viewer ■

- C/N (carrier noise) is displayed in dB
- Quality (Pre B.E.R or bit error rate) locks on faster making it easier to lock on to the satellite initially typical lock in less than 100 mS
- Instead of "found" to indicate lock of correct satellites actual B.E.R can be displayed. Feature available in set up mode
- The quality (Pre B.E.R) bar graph can be logarithmic rather than liner. Making it easier to peak the dish and helps with weak satellites. Feature available in set-up mode
- Diseqc switch commands available in submenu

Sagem ITD 64

FRENCH COMPANY SAGEM HAS ENTERED THE UK DTT MARKET WITH BOXES TO SUIT ALL POCKETS. GRANT RENNELL HOPS ACROSS THE CHANNELS

+ Slimline adapter with a seven-day ready EPG and Dolby support

– No Top Up TV card slot or UHF modulator. Weak tuner

Just like DVD players the success of Freeview (currently in three million homes and counting) has started a heated price war in the high street.

It's no surprise then to see the entry-level box in the Sagem range of adapters, the ITD 60, coming in at a wallet-friendly £49. With a single Scart and a UHF modulator this bedroom-friendly box is joined by the mid-range ITD 62 (£59) with two Scart connectors, an antenna input and a UHF loopthrough. Stepping up from this we have the box in question, the ITD 64 with a spec aimed at those who demand the best picture and audio quality, even though the latter still means plain old stereo with Freeview.

> 'Pleasingly, connectivity is up there with adapters that generally cost a few pounds more'

The design is the same for all three receivers – a silver, sleekly sloping, compact case topped off by a large LED panel the front. The suave feel is compromised somewhat by the stubby, chunky remote control whose buttons are oversensitive yet, in its favour, is unlikely to slide out of sight behind the sofa.

Pleasingly, connectivity is up there with adapters that generally cost a few pounds more. There are two Scarts (the TV is RGB-capable, but the VCR Scart has an S-video option), a hi-fi output, and a coaxial digital audio output with Dolby pass-through. There's a UHF loopthrough but no modulator for non-Scart equipped TVs. As with all three boxes, there's no card or CAM slot suitable for Top Up TV either.

Once the auto tuning is complete, you'll want to dip into the Installation menus. Here you can select your aspect ratio (4:3, 4:3 pan scan, or 16:9), retune the box, and change the banner timeout and transparency. You can also PIN-lock both menus and channels, create up to eight alphabetised favourites lists. There's a six event manual timer and a sleep timer, and the Technical Information menu displays signal strength and quality meters.

The quarter-screen programme detail banner displays now-and-next information and can be enlarged to show synopses.

The EPG is a three-quarter screen affair with nine channels at a time listed on the left-hand side alongside the programme names. The currently showing channel is displayed in the top left-hand corner alongside a progress bar for the programme. The EPG is seven-day ready, and at the time of testing was actually populated with data from May's Crystal Palace EPG test.

Also worthy of note is the dedicated radio menu which apes an old radio set complete with a faux onscreen volume knob.

The tuner on the ITD 64 isn't the best we've come across – picking up only a handful of channels in our admittedly weak signal area, compared to results from more sensitive tuners from the like of Humax and Sony.

When signal levels are satisfactory, however, picture quality is stable with little evidence of break up or artefacts. There's also a 'Still' setting should you want to, say, temporarily freeze a goal scored during a football match.

The ITD 64 doesn't match the all-round quality and usefulness of its more expensive rivals, but few will find cause to grumble at the connectivity and features it offers for such a relatively low cost. Those living in fringe or interference-prone signal areas, on the other hand, are advised to look elsewhere ■

IT LOOKS GREAT AND IT'S GOT BOTH DIGITAL AND ANALOGUE TV TUNERS. GRANT RENNELL GOES IN SEARCH OF FLAT PANEL PERFECTION WITH HUMAX'S FIRST LCD IDTV

Whether they are LCD or plasma, flat-panel screens generally look square, silver and really rather samey. So it's hats off to Humax from the off for being a little more adventurous with the design of this 17in widescreen LCD IDTV.

The LB-17E's rounded edges and black speaker grilles exude a sophisticated sci-fi air, and look like something from Captain Archer's quarters in Star Trek: Enterprise.

The broad, sturdily built pivoting stand doesn't let the side down either, and can be easily unscrewed to wall-mount the set. The chunky remote control isn't as slim as its parent unit, being the same slickly organised, comfy-to-hold device used to control most of Humax's current digital TV hardware line-up.

A busy row of downward-facing connectors are assembled on the rear panel. Present are a single RGB-capable Scart, an S-Video input, a 15-pin PC input (the set also doubles as a PC monitor) and a UHF input. The audio side of things is covered by an optical digital audio output (with Dolby support) and a hi-fi output. Those interested in Top Up TV will also welcome the presence of a CI slot which is accompanied an RS-232 serial port for software updates via PC.

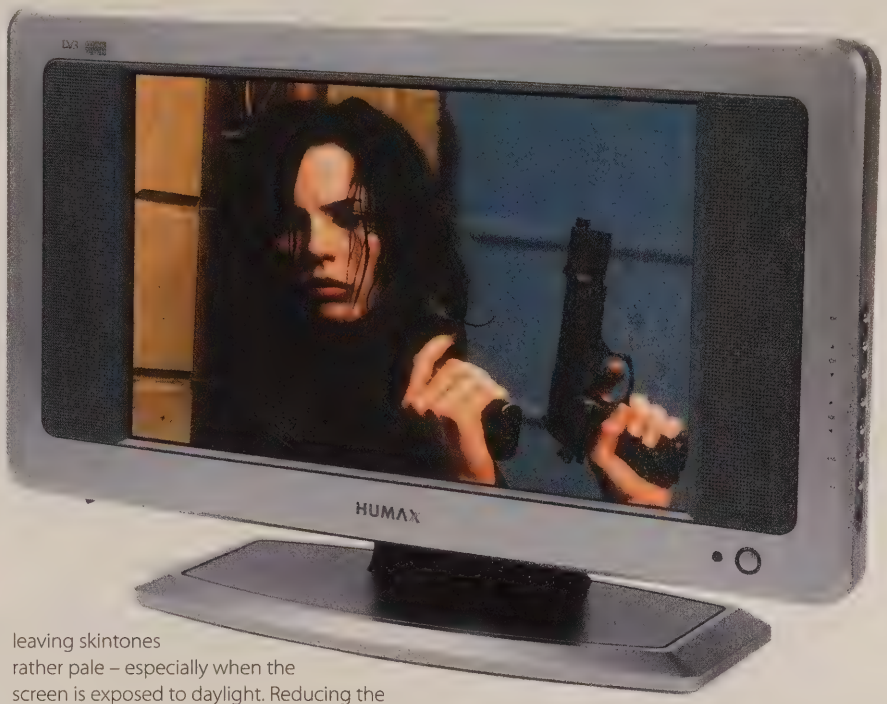
Available aspect ratios are Auto, 16:9, 14:9 and two levels of zoom. The menus include a seven-day ready EPG showing now-and-next info which displays five channels at a time, and allows you to search for programmes by genre or name. The onscreen programme information banner shows now-and-next information and can also be expanded to show programme summaries.

Also in the menus you'll find the option to create up to five favourites lists, set parental locks and program up to six events using the manual timer option. You can also check signal strength and quality and choose to play one of four puzzle-based games.

The impressive digital tuner made a decent enough fist of extracting a picture from most channels in our mercurial signal area. Even the rarely-seen ITV1 appeared.

The LB-17E isn't a wow in the picture department, but it is a step up from many LCD TVs we've come across in terms of viewing distance. It boasts a wide viewing angle of 176°, with only minor dimming in evidence at the extremities.

Where it stumbles a little is in delivering a totally satisfying natural-looking picture. Black levels are nice and strong but colours can seem overly bright, swamping detail and leaving skintones rather pale – especially when the screen is exposed to daylight. Reducing the colour, brightness and contrast levels and toggling the preset options does improve matters, although results still weren't quite as solid-looking as we would have liked.



Nevertheless, the pixellated smeariness that afflicts even the best LCD panels isn't too much of a problem, being only noticeable when watching quick camera pans such as across a brick wall on a daytime BBC1 show.

The LB-17E also delivers good results when used as a computer monitor and we experienced minimal image lag when playing fast-moving games at the maximum resolution of 1024 x 768. The onboard speakers don't exactly belt it out at 2W apiece, but they're acceptable enough for dialogue-heavy material and there are plenty of external connectors for those wanting added beefiness in their audio.

The LB-17E may not be picture-perfect but its talking-point looks and ease of use put many other LCD TV sets to shame. Certainly, £650 for a large-screen LCD IDTV of this quality is not to be sniffed at ■

Metronic Clear Dishes

GEOFF BAINS TRIES TWO DISHES WITH A CLEAR VIEW OF THE SATELLITES

It should be the goal of every satellite viewer to have their dish installed discreetly. If you don't want a satellite dish to be seen you can hide it (install it behind the chimney stack or shield it with bushes), disguise it (paint it to blend in or put it inside something), or make it invisible!

The last technique is the hardest, but you can make it see-through, and the latest attempts at clear dishes are these from French company Metronic.

By no means is every part of these dishes transparent. The reflector is clear, and on the 60cm model the bracket on the back (holding the pole clamp) is made of the same clear resin, but the 85cm model uses a metal bracket, presumably for strength å(it also has radial ribs on the back to help prevent flexing in the wind).

The feed arms on both dishes are metal (aluminium on the 60cm dish, painted steel on the 85cm) as are the pole clamps (galvanised steel). The LNB holders are plastic and the LNB and pole are not supplied so are of whatever materials they come in (it's unlikely you'll ever find transparent ones).

They are far from 'invisible' but, particularly against light colours, and when the sun is not reflecting off it into your eyes, either of these dishes is a lot less obvious on the wall of a house or against a garden backdrop.

Given that much of the dish mount is made of conventional materials, more thought could have been given to easier assembly. As it is, there are no captive nuts so construction is quite fiddly; the single screw holding the 60cm's feed arm in its socket in the back bracket is woefully inadequate; and the elevation adjustment on the 85cm dish uses four separate bolts instead of the much easier pair of long bolts.

The clear resin of the reflectors is nowhere near as hard as even aluminium, and is quite easily cracked and chipped. These dishes won't fare well if they are likely to be targeted by passing stone-throwing vandals.

The resin does not actually reflect the microwave signals from the satellites. Only metals efficiently reflect microwaves and so a wire mesh is embedded in the resin. From a distance of more than a few feet this fools the eye and the reflectors appear transparent.

Wire mesh will never be as efficient a reflector as a plain metal surface, but as long as it's shaped into the parabolic profile correctly, it should perform adequately.

Metronic reckons that the 60cm dish is as good as a conventional 60cm model and the 85cm clear dish performs like an 80cm normal dish, and our tests seemed to confirm that. At the Cambridgeshire test site the 60cm had no problem with Astra 2 and Eurobird 1 (nor should it) and it coped admirably with Astra 1 and many transponders on Hot Bird. Similarly, the 85cm dish waltzed through reception of all transponders on Hot Bird and signals from the Eutelsat W satellites, the stronger transponders at 1°W, Telstar 11, and so on.

It's a shame the range doesn't include a 45cm dish for more discreet Sky Digital installations, and a 1m dish (or larger) for use with the weaker satellites and in the North.

It may be that the strength of the resin (even reinforced by the wire mesh) is not up to larger dish sizes. These dishes have been tested in winds up to 140km/h (60cm) and 180km/h (85cm) and subjected to simulated weathering that suggests that they should last about twice as long as conventional steel dishes.

And that's another reason for clear dish ownership – if your dish suffers from excessive corrosion (say, you live on the coast), then these dishes should serve better.

The big drawback is the price. These are not cheap and you can get a standard steel model for a third to a half this price.

However, needs must, and their chameleon-like qualities will make these antennas attractive to many ■

+ Hard to see. Made of tough, durable resin

A PC FULL OF VIDEOS, PHOTOS AND MUSIC, BUT DON'T WANT TO WATCH AND LISTEN TO THEM ON YOUR PC'S MONITOR? PINNACLE'S SHOWCENTER BRINGS YOUR PC AND TV TOGETHER FOR SOME SWEET LOVIN', AS ALEX LANE DISCOVERS

Not long ago 'convergence' was a dirty word, but the last year has seen the idea of blending PC and TV come back in from the cold. Wireless networking and video decoder chips are now cheap enough for all manner of entertainment devices.

Pinnacle is known best for its video editing and broadcasting software, although it has recently produced digital terrestrial and digital satellite TV adapters for PC users. The ShowCenter is definitely a step into new territory, albeit making use of what Pinnacle has learned in other areas.

The ShowCenter is a big device, the width and depth of an old-fashioned VCR, although it's only just over an inch thick. The gun-metal finish is very impressive, and the bright blue LED indicators lend a further air of quality. The remote handset is equally chunky, but has the feel of quality, and several useful function buttons.

There's a huge range of connectivity on the back panel; including component video outputs that will let you get the most out of your DVD collection. You can choose between a high speed 10/100BaseT cabled Ethernet link, or an 802.11b wireless link. The latter is more convenient, and Pinnacle even supplies its own £29 wireless card, but it's limited to a 4Mbps data rate at best, which is borderline for most broadcast-quality recordings. However, Pinnacle is committed to upgrading the ShowCenter to the high capacity 802.11g wireless standard.

Get organised

The PC part of ShowCenter isn't just a streaming media server – it's a complete media organiser. The software rounds up your music, video and photo files, and converts them into the most useful format for playback.

For instance, the ShowCenter will only play back MP3 music files, but it converts WMAs to MP3 automatically. Similarly, DV, AVI and Windows Media Video files are converted to your preferred playback format – either VideoCD, Super VideoCD, DVD Long Play or DVD, depending on your network capacity.

You can also preview your files, copy from and even burn onto CDs and DVDs. Playlists can be created here, and you can set Watch Folders, which the software will regularly scan for new content, and light up the New Media indicator next time you turn it on.

On screen

Connecting to the PC server should be painless, although wireless users may have a little fun getting the network name correct. The interface is based around a set of HTML pages, although the resolution of most TVs means Pinnacle won't be hurrying to add an internet browser.

The interface is a simple menu, with media categories and setup menus on the left – New Media, Music, Movies, Photos, Locks and Settings – and the sub-categories on the right – new content, genres, slideshows or playlists. In the bottom-left corner, the ABC buttons are given specific roles, such as shuffle play or content search.

This device makes it easy to browse through and start enjoying your media, but we noticed almost instantly was that you can't browse and play at the same time, which you can do on Hauppauge's £99 MediaMVP.

Playback quality is very good, both audio and video, if you've got sufficient bandwidth. Video files can be viewed at their given size, or resized for the screen, and there's a choice of formats for widescreen and 4:3 displays. You can choose from a huge range of video output formats, from composite video to progressive scan high-definition, in either PAL or NTSC.

+ Multi-format playback and complete media organiser

– Bulky unit, can't play back and browse at once

Picture playback supports JPEG, PNG and GIF files, although there's no automatic conversion for other types, such as PDF or TIF files. Dolby Digital is supported if you're playing back live from a DVD.

The latest beta software gives control of Pinnacle's digital TV PC cards, enabling you to stream live TV from satellite, even if you don't have a set-top receiver.

The Pinnacle ShowCenter is, in most aspects, a step forward on the road to the convergence of TVs and PCs, without sacrificing the unique features of either. There are a couple of surprising features which need fixing, and at £199 it's a bigger investment than Hauppauge's rival, but if you're already building a media library on your PC it's a more dynamic product ■

RGB to component convertor

Designed for easy connection and simple operation, the Aptus 1 is an RGB to component video convertor. It is built using the same high quality components as the RGB2C but is much simpler to set up. It will convert RGBs (set top box RGB with composite sync) into component (Y Pb Pr) video. It is a simple scart plug design with 3 x RCA phono output for the component video and a 3.5mm mini-jack for audio output. [APT1] £79.99

Sound level meter

How well set up is your home cinema? How low does your subwoofer go? Find out for certain with a sound level meter. Great value for money, this digital model SLM2055 meter gives you the accuracy you need to fine tune your system. Features built in mic, seven selectable frequency ranges, weighting selector (human ear bias/full frequency range), adjustable sensitivity range 50–126dB, FAST & SLOW response settings, peak level hold function. Built in tripod adaptor for stand mounting. Phono output (for connection to external equipment). Easy to read 21-bar graphical display. Size (approx): 159 x 64 x 44mm. Power: PP3 type 9V battery (not included). [SLM2055] £39.99

PROGRESSIVE SCAN TV CONVERTOR
Turn any monitor into a TV

Really useful, this video switchbox can line double (output to SVGA) and has a built in terrestrial (analogue) TV tuner. Turn your projector, CRT, LCD or Plasma display into a true multimedia centre. Use the PV200 to connect a DVD, VCR, Camcorder, Games console, satellite receiver or watch TV. The PAL PLUS chipset eliminates motion artefacts and provides sharp-edged smooth moving pictures. Easy plug and play set up with on-screen menus and automatic channel scan. Scales up to 1024x728 (XGA) at 60Hz or 75Hz refresh rate. Inputs: RF aerial, composite video, s-video, 15pin HD (for PC pass-through), outputs: 15pin HD. Supplied with IR remote & UK mains adaptor. [PV200] £84.99

Standard delivery £2.50 per order. Fast add £2.00, next working day add £5.50 (UK mainland only)

RGB to S-Video Convertor

RGB is a great for sending video, with picture resolution as good as S- and much better than composite video. Trouble is, not everything can accept an RGB signal. Problem solved! This box converts the RGB scart output of Sky Digital/ITV Digital boxes, and DVD players, into S-video. Ideal for making high resolution connections to AV amps, S-VHS/D-VHS recorders and plasma screens. Order [RGB2S] £59.99

Scart distribution amp

One input to five outputs, fully buffered using broadcast grade video amplification ICs. Pin 8 is routed through (input goes high, all outputs go high) and every pin connection is carried through for composite, S-video and RGB compatibility. Robust metal case. Ideal for displaying one signal on multiple TVs or making up to five simultaneous copies from one source. Mains adaptor included. Order [SDA] £89.99

Scart Commander 4:1 scart switchbox

A high quality AV switcher from Keene, designed to allow connection of multiple sources to one display, all via scart connections. With 4 video, 2 audio, 2 data and 2 control channels it can handle component, composite, s-, and RGB video, even digital audio (with the correctly configured cable). Inputs can be selected manually (by IR remote, included, or push button) or automatically via auto signal detect. Use a single switchbox to switch any of four inputs to one output, or two units may be used together in a master/slave arrangement providing 7:1 switching. Visual LED indication of selected output. Programmable default input auto selected on power up. Separate mains adaptor for improved mains isolation. Solid metal case for enhanced screening.

YOUR DIGITAL TV EQUIPMENT AND INSTALLATION QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Uncontrollable remotes

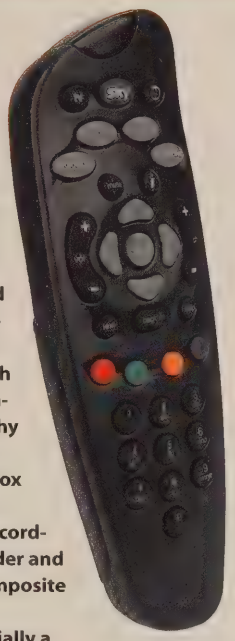
I recently bought a Philips DVDR80 DVD Recorder with Guideplus. It's generally a great machine (excellent recording and playback quality), but it won't control my Sky Digibox. Channel numbers do not change correctly and also it will not switch the Digibox on and off for timer recordings.

Having gone through all of the obvious things, such as infrared transmitter not in correct place, and so on, I contacted Philips customer services. They told me that my Panasonic TU-DSB30 box is not supported at the moment and nobody knew when it would be! Even then it was unlikely that it would switch the Digibox on and off for timer recordings. I phoned and managed to speak to a technician, but he couldn't really explain why one Digibox is supported when another isn't.

My understanding is that the infrared codes sent to a Digibox are the same for all makes of Digibox. The reason I bought the machine was to control the Digibox, so that I could make all recordings in RGB from the Digibox (rather than use a cheaper recorder and let the Digibox control it – as this only allows recordings in composite video).

Should all Digiboxes work if one does? Guideplus is potentially a great service, but at the moment it's a very expensive method for recording terrestrial TV channels!

– TOM SIDWELL, MALVERN



Early dark-blue Sky remotes use different codes from newer black remotes

Tricky one, this. Certainly the DVDR80 is meant to be able to control a Sky Digibox. The only reason that it won't control your Digibox that we can think of is that your TU-DSB30 is pretty old and may use one of the original remote handsets. Sky changed the codes produced by the handset a few years back (and changed the handset itself a little too, to have a black base instead of a dark blue one) so it could be that the DVD recorder can only produce the 'new' codes.

It's a bit ironic that all the Digibox handsets are made for Sky by Philips.

One way to (rather inelegantly) get around the problem would be to use a Phantom PVR unit to enable the Digibox to control the DVDR80 from the Personal Planner.

RAI TROUBLES

Contrary to your listings, I am unable to receive many channels. For example: on Hot Bird, RAI Uno, RAI Due and RAI Tre. This is just a small sample and I have been unable to receive these for more than a month.

Also satellite Eutelsat W2 16°E has disappeared from my listing. I have been advised that many channels are no longer FTA.

What is your experience across the satellites?

– SPENCER KILL, BY E-MAIL

RAI Uno, Due and Tre are still broadcasting from Hot Bird in the clear. Eutelsat W2 is still up there are also broadcasting – it has many free-to-air digital channels.

Although channels do sometimes switch from free-to-air to encrypted transmission, there are still many FTA channels on both Hot Bird and Eutelsat W2, and are likely to remain so for some time.

Either your dish has been knocked or blown out of alignment or there is something wrong with your receiver (or its channel database).

RAI Uno , Due and Tre are still loud and clear on Hot Bird

RELAY WORRY

I have recently bought a Freeview receiver (Philips) and I need to upgrade my aerial. While working out (from the ground) what sort of aerial I currently have, and looking up the transmitters in the area, I found out that my local transmitter is a relay transmitter.

When analogue is switched off in 2010, will this transmitter be switched off too?

– GEORGE PONTWELL, BY E-MAIL

Relay transmitters are there to get around the problem of obstructions in the way of the main transmitter, and sometimes to cure ghosting problems. Of course, digital terrestrial TV doesn't suffer from ghosting and is often more robust when it comes to partially obstructed signals, so it would make some sense to not bother with local relays when it's only digital signals being transmitted. In fact, you may need to point your aerial at a different transmitter for digital terrestrial.

However, switching off a relay would overnight deny all TV to people with aerials trained on it. So it's unlikely that all relays will be immediately turned off when analogue is switched off (in 2010 or whenever).

TOP-UP BOX

I have been offered an old ONdigital box for use with Freeview as I will need the card slot for the pay channels.

Assuming it works, is this the right box to get?

– DAVID FELLOWS, EASTBOURNE

The Freeview channels are broadcast free-to-air

and require no viewing card. However, the new Top-Up TV mini-pay package on digital terrestrial TV uses the Mediaguard encryption system used by ONdigital and ITV Digital, so you will need a Mediaguard receiver for reception.

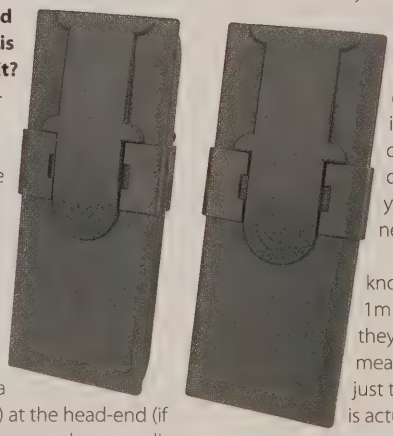
Top-Up TV intends to use an improved version of Mediaguard (to prevent the piracy that was rampant with ITV Digital) and will upgrade old ONdigital and ITV Digital adapters over-the-air to use the cards that will be issued to subscribers.

So far, Top-Up TV has said that adapters from Nokia, Pace, Philips and Pioneer are compatible with this upgrade. So if you are offered an adapter made by another manufacturer, it would be best to decline.

PLUS IN BLOCKS

My customer lives in a block of flats with a communal Sky system. He has a feed to a Sky Digibox which works OK but he wants to upgrade to Sky Plus.

Is there a device which will allow me to generate two LNB outputs from the single LNB feed to his home? If so what is it, and where can I buy it?
– MICHAEL MAURICE, BY E-MAIL



You cannot literally create two separate feeds from one (any more than you can create two £5 notes from one – more's the pity!). The real solution is to install a second outlet in your customer's flat with its own cable using a spare feed (if there is one) at the head-end (if the architecture of the communal system allows this). However, this is definitely a job for the maintenance company employed to look after the system.

Another possibility is to provide an entirely separate dish and feed to your customer – either a single feed to augment the communal system or with a dual (or quad) LNB just for his Sky Plus. This would probably be outside the conditions of his lease.

There is a device from Johansson called a Stacker-Destacker which is intended to enable one cable to carry two LNB broadcast and control signals. This may be able to be used to send two outputs from the head end down the one existing cable, but it's unlikely to work in a communal system (which is already stacking signals down the one cable to each flat) and, again, it requires the company looking after the system to install at least the head-end unit.

SIZE MATTERS

I have had a 1m motorised dish installed on the side of my house and I've just discovered from a conversation down the pub that I should have planning permission for it. What can I do now – apart from take it down?
– PETER GREEN, BY E-MAIL

The official answer is that you should apply for retrospective planning permission. You are allowed one dish up to 90cm without planning permission (providing it is not a listed property, conservation area, etc.). However, the attitude to this varies between local councils (which actually implement the planning regulations) so you may get planning permission easily or the council may do everything it can to prevent you having any sort of dish at all.

Of course, you can just forget about the planning permission and hope nobody notices. Whether they are likely to or not, will depend on where your home is situated, how discreetly the dish is installed, how visible the dish is from nearby roads, and your relationship with your neighbours.

Also, to be honest, few folk know the difference between a 1m dish and a 90cm one. Since they are unlikely to fly up and measure it, you may get away with just telling anyone who asks that it is actually a 90cm model.

TWICE AS NICE

I have just been given a Grundig LNB monoblock. I have a Hyundai free-to-air receiver and an 80cm dish with which I receive channels from Hot Bird. Will this LNB work on my current system so I can receive stations from Astra as well?

Also I have a minidish and want to put a quad LNB on it. What type or make can I use?
– ANDY KITANOSKI, BY E-MAIL

Monoblock LNBs are effectively two LNBs in one unit to be used with one dish to receive signals from two satellites. Assuming your 80cm dish is a standard one with the normal f/d ratio then the monoblock LNB should be fine to receive signals from Astra 1 and Hot Bird (it should have the right separation and angle for the two feed-horns).

Most monoblock LNBs use DiSEqC to select the right signal to be routed down the single cable to your receiver, so your receiver has to be able to produce DiSEqC switching signals. Certainly, the only Grundig monoblock LNB that we know of uses DiSEqC.

Most Hyundai receivers have DiSEqC capability – such as the HSS730, HSS800, and HSS1000 – but your should check yours does too.

Sky minidishes use a different fitting for the LNB than other standard dishes so you can't just go out and buy any old LNB. To make matters worse, there are two different (and incompatible) fittings on the Sky dishes. However, since quad LNBs for minidishes are used mainly as upgrades, they are (usually) sold with adapters to fit either type of Sky dish. There are models from Philips and Cambridge easily available and they should cost you upwards of £55 a time.

NO FREEVIEW IN NORWAY

I live in Norway and I'm going to be here for a couple of years. I want to get UK TV and the Freeview system seems just what I want (I don't want loads of channels, just a few to keep me in touch with home). Can I buy a suitable adapter here or do I have to import one from the UK?
– PETER FELLOWS, BERGEN, NORWAY

You won't get a DTT receiver suitable for Freeview in Norway – and for a good reason;: you won't receive the Freeview signals in Norway. All terrestrial TV signals are localised and the weaker digital ones especially so. They simply don't stretch to Norway.

You may be able to get some UK channels on local cable networks, or you could invest in a satellite TV system. A free-to-air receiver will get you the BBC channels and the likes of Sky News and CNN from 28°E with an 80cm dish (maybe 1m) in your area. You could buy the dish and receiver locally or from the UK. It will cost a bit more than a Freeview box but not that much when you take into account the aerial and installation that you would have needed for Freeview (if you could have got it!).

Manhattan's DSR5500 receivers don't have a built-in teletext decoder

TEXT TO TAPE

I have a Manhattan DSR5500CI-M using the Hot Bird satellites. I use it for studying Italian.

My problem is that when I record from satellite to my VCR I can get picture and sound but I am unable to record the subtitles.

Do I need a hard disc drive to enable me to record these subtitles, and can my Manhattan take a hard disc drive and if so could you recommend one to me?

– SEAN HOGAN, BY E-MAIL

If it is the 'digital' subtitles that you are trying to record, then there is no good reason why you cannot do so. These are generated by the receiver and output to the TV, so if you can see them, then the VCR can 'see' them too, and record them.

It's possible that the VCR Scart output on your receiver does not include menus and subtitles overlaid on the picture. In which case, just connect the VCR to the TV Scart to record the lot (but this is very rare – most receivers have the same outputs to TV and VCR Scarts – and we don't think the DSR5500 is any different from the norm).

If it is the teletext subtitles that you want, then there is a more fundamental problem. You can only record teletext (and the teletext subtitles) if the receiver itself 'decodes' the teletext and displays the teletext pages. If it reinserts the teletext signal into the signal going to your TV so that your TV can decode and display the teletext (just like it does for analogue terrestrial signals), then the VCR probably won't record the re-inserted part of the signal (a few do, but it's largely unintentional and not very reliable).

Of course, your Manhattan DSR5500 is one of those receivers that only re-inserts the teletext data into the TV signal. The only solution is to get another receiver that does decode and display the teletext pages itself.

PHONE FEAR

When Sky announced that they were selling the new Sky Plus box for £199 and dropping the £10 per month subscription, I wanted one. I phoned Sky to place my order and after taking my details they told me that I had to agree to connect to a telephone line for one year. Now I had a problem. My house was on the market and, once sold, I was intending to move in with my father-in-law temporarily, where there is no landline. I explained this to Sky and asked what the penalty might be if I failed to comply. They were unable to tell me and would not go ahead with the transaction unless I accepted the contract terms.

I decided to try to get around the problem. First, I thought I would buy a secondhand box – I've seen them advertised on Ebay and then I would install it myself, (I've done it before) – so I phoned Sky to see if this would solve the problem. The person I spoke to didn't think there was a problem in the first place and would transfer me to someone else – and so it went on.

I don't want to buy a receiver until I know if I will be allowed to use it. What's the answer?

– TONY EVERETT, SUFFOLK

When you get a standard subsidised Digibox, you promise to keep it connected to a phone line for 12 months or you pay the difference between the price you paid and the unsubsidised price. With Sky Plus it's a little different. Sky has said from the beginning that the subscription you pay for Sky Plus is to help pay for the development costs of the system. Even when that subscription is waived when you take the full Sky channels subscription, there is still at least an element of research payment in there.

Basically, you need a Sky subscription to use the recording functions of a Sky Plus and Sky says that you need to connect to the phone to get a Sky Plus subscription. They have all the cards.

If your stay at your father-in-law's is only temporary, Sky would probably be willing to suspend your subscription after you move from your current home, until you move into a place with a phone line, but get it in writing first.

Sky insistence on a phone line can be inconvenient

SATELLITE SHOWDOWN

I have installed a motorised satellite dish and have enjoyed scouring the sky for many years with any glitch, until about two months ago. All of sudden, I lost signal of all satellites to the west of Astra 1 (19°E).

My neighbour above me has installed a huge dish (over 1m) just about 2m above and about 5m away from mine, which has covered my 50cm dish.

I went to see him and he was polite and sympathised and promised to get the installer to move the dish, but so far nothing is being done and it is now over two months.

When I spoke to him again this week, there was change of tune, and he said we should compromise, and my understanding is that he will get someone to move the dish but I have to meet the costs, which I found unfair.

Is there any legal obligation from the council (I live in Westminster in central London) or any other authority where I can take the matter further to make the neighbour move his dish. I have nowhere else to put my own dish.

– NAME AND ADDRESS SUPPLIED

A tricky one, this, as neighbour disputes often are. We'd say that you have the moral high ground because, if nothing else, you were there first.

However, that doesn't mean much in the law and you have no rights to a clear view of the Clarke Belt.

However, if your neighbour's dish is over 90cm in size then he should have obtained planning permission for it.

He probably hasn't applied, otherwise the council planning office would have contacted you for comments on the application.

It's probably best to point this out to your neighbour and suggest how he might like to consider moving his dish while you consider contacting the local planning department ■

Gunships along the Gulf

ROGER BUNNEY SEARCHES THE SKIES EVERY MONTH FOR SIGHTINGS AND NEWS SNIPPETS FOR MOTORISED DISH ENTHUSIASTS

Iraq continued to dominate the headlines with the escalation of suicide attacks in the Gulf with several explosive packed boats attempting to damage and sink oil tankers. On April 25 Alan Richards (Skegness) found CBS BAGHDAD feeding a long NTSC video back into New York, including General Mark Hertling updating the press, convoys of heavily armed Humvees, a pack of Apache helicopters and then dozens of fast moving craft packed with troops arriving and disembarking with heavy arms aboard a tanker. This was to prevent more suicide boat bombs (playout over Eutelsat W2, 16°E at 12.526GHz/Hr (SR 5632, FEC 3/4, 7.30pm).

The American night attack on Fallujah on April 28 was seen with live pictures from a satellite phone on several networks. CNN NEWSFORCE (now renamed INS-EUROPE) carried the non-captioned pictures for a long time and may have well sourced the original sat-phone feed, downlinking over its usual 11.565GHz/H (6109, 3/4) over NSS-7 at 21°W. The BBC often uses Eutelsat II F3 at 21°E for direct feeds out of Baghdad back into London, though for most enthusiasts without an independent elevation actuator for tracking the inclined orbit, II F3 can only be received from about 2.50pm for two hours. BAGHDAD 216 is found at or around 12538GHz/H (4226, 7/8).

For months ABC NEWS NY has used Intelsat 707 at 1°W for its backhaul feeds into the US (ABC SCOPUS at 11.657GHz/V (5632, 3/4) but in April was also seen using W2, 16°E as ABC NEWS BAGHDAD with war footage – 12.563GHz/H (NTSC ,5632, 3/4) – cutting to ABC LONDON after the video playout. The signal ran as 3.58MHz NTSC despite a caption advising PAL!

Shown on CNN-INS on NSS7. The NASA rocket speed attempt saw an unmanned rocket strapped to the underside of a B47. Close-up footage meant you could clearly see the rocket jet exhaust system from the plane's camera. The rocket plane eventually reached Mach 5

Violence continues between Israelis and Palestinians. On April 17 Hamas leader Abdel Aziz Rantisi was killed when his car was hit by two missiles from an Israeli helicopter. Images carried over the APTN JERUSALEM circuit via Eutelsat W1 10°E showed the aftermath – ambulances, angry crowds rioting in Gaza while the remains of the car's occupants were removed. At the hospital the press photographers and TV cameramen fought for the best shots of the stretchers. Carried at 10.961GHz/V (4167, 5/6).

Afghanistan has been out of the news recently but on May 2 on W2, 16°E, CBS KABUL 2 appeared in the late afternoon running 12.525GHz/H (5632, 3/4). The service ident of '536197' follows other numerical identifications such as the CBS ident appearing out of Baghdad ('523209'). The report intended for Sky News included footage of a US army compound in Afghanistan which came under rocket fire from nearby mountains during the report. Other content included a convoy driving along a mountain track coming under rather more accurate fire.

Noting NSS-7 above, there's a new religious channel downlinking on this bird; check 12.533GHz/H for TCT World. The 'New Hope' programming uses a very high symbol rate, 39968, FEC 7/8 – although picture quality is smudgy and captions show the output is directed into the US, Asia and India. The website is prayerattct.tv.

Europe*Star-1 at 45°E on April 21 carried a protracted Sky News feed about African holidays, marking 10 years of black majority rule in South Africa. Roy Carman found Globecast Africa carrying the package at 11.512GHz/V. Two days later, Europe*Star is fired up once more with more Democracy offerings: MOTO GP S.AFRICA (11.587GHz/V, both feeds 5632, 3/4).

HOT SPOTS

Activity across the Astra 28.2/28.5°E slot is rarely noted here. However, Edmund Spicer in Littlehampton notes that a new FTA stream on Astra 2A appeared over 11.973GHz/V (27500, 2/3) and he had to manually insert the PIDS for reception (VPID 2322, APID 2323, PCR 2304). On this downlink there then appeared (late April) a BT Facility Line and ITN DIGITAL test card, Carlton colour bars and news report preparations, BBC Six O'Clock News including studio preparations, including recorded coverage of the previous Premiership Leicester vs Man City match, and live coverage of the F1 Grand Prix of that day in real time. So even on a Sky dish there is potential for the unusual!

Another hotspot is the Eutelsat 13°E slot and Alan Richards (Skegness) notes that the American Embassy Television Network on the VOA/C-Span downlink of 12.222GHz/V (27500, 3/4) can be checked out for news and views. Alan has seen up to three channels within the 12.222 bouquet and with it is carried Voice Of America radio programming. The VOA is reducing its external broadcasting commitments over medium and shortwaves, but it is hopeful of getting its message through on your satellite dish.

New arrivals on the PAS-3, 43°W

A study in concentration: A US tank driver keeps vigilant in Iraq, and there's a rare moment of calm as the guns stay silent at sunset. Both pictures from a CBS VTR playout over Eutelsat W2 slot from Fox Television are Fox News and Fox Sports running 12.647GHz/H with an unusual SR30800, FEC 7/8. The BBC provides a very comprehensive text service for the British Forces Broadcasting Service and if you check the BFBS downlink on Eutelsat W3, 7°E, you'll find many interesting pages, such as p.869, detailing the TV/radio channels available on cable in Gibraltar (BFBS is available at 11.325GHz/V, 27500, 3/4).

There's been a long-running live-to-air epic on Italian TV. An unusual theme is that the participants are dressed in traditional farming clothes and they are found in a barn singing and dancing, or at a farmhouse. Action is during the evening and night, continuing well past midnight whether the weather is dry or wet. La Fattoria (farm) enjoys two satellite feeds courtesy of Telespazio IT back to network over Eutelsat W2, 16°E. The main feed FATTORIA ETABETA travels on 10.998GHz/H and LA FATTORIA PGM2 on 10.989GHz/H (both 6398, 3/4).

Roy Carman (Dorking) first saw it on April 19 on three downlinks including an infrared shot of a person in bed, and May 4 saw La Fattoria still in production during pouring rain. Days earlier Roy noted a French version La Ferme Celebrities over W1, 10°E. Both appear to be celebrity challenge-type epics.

In mid-April CNN NEWSFORCE on NSS-7 changed its name to INS-EUROPE and a check with an RSD receiver showed another hidden ident within the signal as 'AOR 2', meaning Atlantic Ocean Region 2. The PIDS have also changed on the downlink and are now: V0124, A(1) 0100, A(2) 0102, PCR 0124, Txt 000. Downlink remains as 11.565GHz/H as does the onscreen logo 'CNN NEWSOURCE'. This information was correct as of early May.

ITA 82 Telespacio offered a curious satellite downlink in mid-April over W2, 16°E. The picture was a mix from four traffic surveillance cameras of main traffic routes somewhere in Italy including the 'A1', 'KM577' and 'Intere D19' roads. For whom and for what reason this was being transmitted isn't known, but it stayed on-air for a couple of hours at 10.980GHz/H (6398, 3/4).

Over the same period there was a media scrum over the Beckham-Loos relationship. UKI-784 C2 4.2 appeared over II F3, 213/4°E on April 10 from the News Of The World newsroom carrying a live interview with the editor. The interview was played out several times on Sky News later that evening (11.696GHz/H, 5632, 3/4). Eutelsat IIF3 appears very active during the afternoons coming into slot around 2.40pm but has gone by 4.30pm.

On April 25 there was trouble and strife at Manchester. An official from a French organisation that supports the UK's British National Party was there to attend an afternoon BNP meeting, but a large and noisy crowd of protestors gathered outside the meeting hall. Police on horse and foot were present to maintain peace. At least two satellite trucks were there; one was found at 11.696GHz/H (5632, 3/4) – possibly for Sky News or ITV. Another, '+GLOBECAST UKI-374' – was running at 12.526GHz/H (4226, 7/8) as BBC NEWS MANCHESTER.

The occasional news item is carried on IIF3 – as on April 17. Some days earlier a woman of 21 had disappeared from her home at Swindon. Police had interviewed a suspect and on the 17th they dug on a building site at Malmesbury, Wiltshire, where they found her body. GLOBECAST NE was on site, providing live interviews. While it was there, the police announced that another death had been established – that of the suspect previously interviewed. Live inserts were carried into the BBC News plus recorded links into the local evening news programme via UKI-366 at 12.513GHz/H (4226, 7/8).

NASA NEWS

The CNN 'INS' European feeder has provided interesting live NASA TV offerings. The attempt at a new speed record was successful when an unmanned rocket plane was detached from a high-flying B-47 and then blasted away to achieve speeds of 5000mph. An accompanying aircraft relayed live pictures of the B-47 and of the rocket itself being dropped, together with pictures from the B-47 itself. In late April the crew aboard the International Space Station (ISS) returned to Earth after six months in space. As the Shuttle isn't flying, they returned to Earth (Kazakhstan) on a Russian Soyuz rocket. Relayed live over the CNN INS feed was the hatch closing and 'goodbyes' to the remaining ISS crew, then the departure of the rocket from ISS as it drifted away in space. The craft detachment and flight was controlled from Baikonur and linked to NASA in the US. All supplies and crew exchanges now are carried over Soyuz craft, one of which is permanently moored to the ISS.

There's a new bright star in our Eastern sky. It's a Russian satellite at 53°E called Express-AM22. Checking the slot with my Spectralook, I found very large spikes and a Coship scan produced digital TV with two channels in a small bouquet, that of 'SGUTV 1' and 'SGUTV 2', plus a radio channel – 'SGU Internet'. They're strong signals of +80 per cent on both RSD and Coship receivers. The two TV channels offer rather poor quality pictures with some down to multi-generation VHS. Content appears to be educational, but feature films are carried, some with a military bias.

Greece has slotted its Hellas-Sat 2 at 39°E to take the 2004 Olympic Games to the world, but the EBU has made alternative arrangements with Eutelsat. Some 306MHz of Ku-band bandwidth has been hired on a full-time basis for the Olympic's duration on the Atlantic Bird-3 (5°W); e-Bird (33°E) and W3A (7°E). These are for broadcasters to use as direct circuits between their OB crews on site and their HQs at home. The Athens EBU teleport will do on-air tests on August 2 and the first sports carried will be football on August 11/12, the opening events on August 13 and on until August 29. The EBU teleport will remain to cover the Paralympics (Sept 17-28) ■

ROGER BUNNEY is pleased to hear from readers with reports of interesting, rare or unlikely satellite sightings. WRITE with details (photos/video recordings gratefully accepted), where, when and with what equipment, to: Satellite Search, What Satellite & Digital TV, Highbury-WV, 53-79 Highgate Road, London NW5 1TW

A to Z of satellite

AC-3
Flexible audio data compression format designed by Dolby Laboratories to enable transmission of high-quality multi-channel audio such as Dolby Digital 5.1 alongside digital TV signals. A digital TV receiver with the correct hardware recognises the AC-3 signal and passes it to a digital audio output, for decoding by suitable home cinema audio equipment
Actuator
motor and feedback system to drive a motorised multi-satellite antenna Antenna
any device to pick up and deliver satellite microwave signals to the receiver Apex
the highest point (eg. of a motorised dish's arc)
Arc
the imaginary curve connecting the Clarke Belt satellites in the sky Aspect ratio ratio of the width of a TV picture to its height. Conventionally 4:3 (pronounced 4-by-3). See also Widescreen Astra Digital Radio system for digital audio broadcasts by satellite using compressed digital audio occupying the audio subcarrier space AV (audio-visual) equipment for all aspects of TV and audio Azimuth
compass bearing of a satellite or a dish's reception path Bandwidth range of frequencies occupied by a signal or allowed by equipment Baseband
raw satellite TV signal from a receiver before modulation to a signal suitable for a television

Beam satellite transmission pattern; may be wide, narrow or spot beam Beamwidth
the acceptance angle of a dish Belling-Lee
plug/socket type used for UHF (aerial) connections and for LNB connections on a few European receivers BER (bit error rate) accuracy of a digital signal. Equivalent to analogue S/N Bird satellite Bit rate
speed of digital transmission, usually expressed in Mb/s. About 5Mb/s is considered equivalent to a broadcast PAL picture, while about 2.5Mb/s is equivalent to VHS Boresight direction along the principal reception path of an antenna; where it is 'looking' CAM (conditional access module) electronics used to unscramble a protected digital broadcast Cassegrain
design of dish using a convex hyperbolic secondary reflector in addition to the main parabolic reflector C-band signal frequency range (3.700-4.200GHz) used for satellite TV, particularly in the US Centre-feed dish dish with the focal point and feedhorn at the centre. See Offset Chrominance
part of a television signal carrying the colour information of the picture CI (Common interface) connection standard for adding equipment to a digital receiver. Uses the same connector and card format as the PCMCIA computer standard Clarke Belt
see Geostationary orbit
C/N (carrier-to-noise ratio)
a measure of the performance of an antenna. Ratio of the received power to the noise power, expressed in dB Co-ax
co-axial cable and connectors used for aerial and antenna cables
Co-located
Satellites in the same apparent orbital position (within 0.2° of one another)
Composite Video
TV signal containing chrominance, luminance and sync information. Used in Scart connectors Compressed digital TV digitised TV signal reduced in size by removing repeated information to allow several TV channels to occupy a single transponder Conditional access technology which prevents unauthorised viewing of TV or other content, usually by scrambling (encrypting) it and issuing a viewing card DBS band portion (11.700-12.500GHz) of the Ku-band frequencies intended for direct broadcast by satellite channels Declination
small offset angle used on a polar mount to tilt the dish towards the horizon and so track the satellite arc Decoder
unit to unscramble a protected TV signal for viewing De-emphasis filtering introduced by a receiver, in conjunction with the opposite 'pre-emphasis' at transmission to reduce audio noise Depolariser device to convert circular polarised signals to linear polarisation for selection by a conventional polariser Digibox
digital satellite receiver for the Sky Digital service incorporating a Videoguard CAM Digital TV
see Compressed digital TV
Digital TV converter (aka DTT converter) low-cost digital terrestrial TV receiver which enables an individual analogue TV or VCR to pick up DTT channels via a Scart or analogue UHF input DiSEqC (Digital Satellite Equipment Control) control system for antenna peripherals such as LNBs and switches using digital codes formed from 22kHz pulses on the LNB power supply Dish
antenna using a parabolic reflector to collect microwave signals Downlink
the signal's path from the satellite to the receiving antenna DTH (direct-to-home) satellite TV intended for domestic reception DTT (digital terrestrial television) channels broadcast by ground-based transmitter masts and received by a standard rooftop or indoor aerial through a DTT converter or IDTV, using a version of DVB standard optimised for terrestrial TV Dual-feed
see Multi-feed
DVB (digital video broadcasting) standard for digital broadcasting established in Europe but used worldwide with the exception of the US EIRP (effective isotropic radiated power) measure of a satellite's signal strength received on the ground
El-az (elevation-azimuth) mount
Simple fixed dish mount allowing adjustments in horizontal and vertical planes Elevation vertical angle between an antenna's reception path and the horizontal Enhanced
LNB (9.750GHz local oscillator) or receiver (extended IF) designed for the reception of Astra 1D signals
EPG (electronic programme guide) onscreen guide to the programmes showing at the time, and to come, on a number of channels
Eurocrypt
Smart card scrambling system used with many Mac transmissions Event timer
programmable timer built into a receiver to switch on and change channels for unattended video recording F-connector
a screw-on plug/socket commonly used for LNB-receiver connections FEC (forward error correction) tuning parameter for digital broadcasts. Expressed as a fraction of the data used for correcting data errors introduced in the reception Feedhorn
collects the microwave signals at the focus of a dish and channels them to the LNB Flat-plate antenna
Flat (often square) antenna used instead of a dish. Works by adding together the signal from an array of collectors Focal point position in front of a dish reflector where the reflected signals are gathered Footprint area of the Earth in which a satellite's signal can be received. Also refers to contour map of the received signal strength from a satellite Free-to-air
channel broadcast without any conditional access or scrambling, allowing reception with any suitable receiver FSS (fixed satellite services) band portion (10.700-11.700GHz) of the Ku-band frequencies intended for business use, but now the main analogue satellite TV band Geostationary orbit orbit used by TV satellites at a height of 22,250 miles, in which satellites make an orbit in 24 hours, remaining fixed relative to the Earth's surface Geosynchronous orbit

see Geostationary orbit
GHz (gigahertz)
a billion cycles per second or 1,000MHz Gregorian
design of dish using a concave hyperbolic secondary reflector in addition to the main parabolic reflector Half-transponder mode method of transmitting two TV channels on one transponder by sharing the bandwidth between them (usually two 36MHz channels on a 72MHz transponder). Reduces the EIRP of each channel by about 4dB Horizon-to-horizon compact polar mount allowing extremely wide range of movement and accurate tracking Horn
antenna using an enlarged feedhorn and no reflector
HDTV (high-definition television)
TV system using an increased number of screen lines for a sharper picture HEMT (high electron mobility transistor) type of low noise LNB
IDTV (integrated digital TV)
TV set with a built-in DTT or digital satellite TV receiver, removing the need for an external converter or receiver
IF (intermediate frequency) signal in cable between LNB and receiver. Also receiver's tuning frequency. 950-2150MHz
IF shifter device inserted in the LNB cable to enable reception of frequency bands not intended for the LNB Inclined orbit orbit inclined relative to the Equator. Produces apparent motion of the satellite above and below the arc Inclinometer
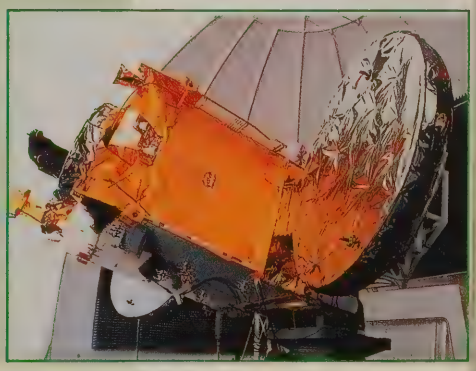
device to measure a vertical angle



Interference
picture (or sound) distortion caused by an additional unwanted signal Jack see Actuator
kHz (kilohertz)
one thousand cycles per second Ka-band signal frequency range (approximately 21-25GHz) now used for two-way broadband satellite services with small user terminals and dishes of less than a metre diameter signal frequency range (10.700-18.000GHz) used for most satellite TV in Europe Latitude
Ku-band
the distance north or south of the Equator, expressed in degrees
Local oscillator
Device inside the LNB which determines which received frequency band is converted to within the receiver's tuning frequency: 10.000GHz for standard FSS, 9.750GHz for 'enhanced' FSS, 10.750GHz for DBS, 11.475GHz for Telecom, 10.600GHz for Astra high band and 5.150GHz for C-band
Longitude
the distance east or west of the Prime/Greenwich meridian, expressed in degrees Loopthrough
pair of output and input connections on a receiver that allows external equipment to be inserted in the TV signal path

LNB (low-noise block down-converter) amplifies received signals and converts them from microwaves to lower-frequency electrical signal to send down cable to the receiver Luminance part of a TV signal carrying the brightness information of the picture (see also Chrominance) Magnetic polariser
solid-state polariser controlled by current from the receiver Marconi-type LNB
see Voltage-switched LNB Mechanical polariser
servo-actuated polariser controlled by electrical pulses from the receiver MHz (megahertz)
one million cycles per second. 1,000kHz Microwave
radio signal with a frequency of 1-30GHz Modulator device which impresses the TV picture and sound signal onto a radio carrier for broadcast or loopthrough Mount device to hold a satellite antenna and allow aiming adjustments MPEG (moving pictures expert group) international body to agree standards for compressed digital TV. MPEG-1: compression standard on VHS quality used in CD-video. MPEG-2: transmission-quality standard used for digital TV broadcasts MHEG-5 (Multimedia and Hypermedia information coding Expert Group) international open standard of software for operating interactive TV applications, used for British DTT Multi-feed
antenna system with two or more LNBs on a fixed dish to view more than one satellite Noise unwanted constituent of a signal Noise figure measure of the performance (noise contribution) of an LNB, in dB – the lower, the better
NTSC (national television standards committee)
TV broadcast standard used in North America and Japan NVOD (near video-on-demand) multi-channel system broadcasting many editions of a film with staggered start times so a complete film is always available to a viewer after a short wait Offset
type of dish antenna with the focus and feedhorn below the centre of the dish OMT (orthogonal mode transducer) waveguide splitter to allow two LNBs to receive horizontal and vertical polarised signals simultaneously OpenTV
proprietary software for operating interactive TV applications used by Sky Digital in the UK and the FUN alliance of channels in Germany Orbit path of satellite round the Earth
PAL (phase alternate line)
TV system used by terrestrial TV in the UK and on most European satellite channels Parental lock receiver's PIN-operated lock that allows you to block out a specified channel Phono
plug/socket type used for receiver connections for audio, video and baseband signals PIN (Personal Identification Number) user-set security code number which must be entered to watch certain channels, order goods, access menus, etc Polariser device fitted on the dish to separate one polarity signal from the other Polarity
property of satellite signals to differentiate between signals of similar frequencies and squeeze more channels into the available space. Signals are either linearly polarised (horizontal and vertical) or circularly polarised (left and right-handed) Polar mount multi-satellite antenna mount aligned so single movement allows the antenna to track the arc of the Clarke Belt Positioner
unit to control the motor of a motorised dish to point the dish at pre-programmed positions. Can be included inside a multi-satellite integrated receiver/positioner PPV (pay-per-view) pay-TV system allowing the purchase of an individual one-time TV event Primary focus focal point corresponding to the signals in the dish's boresight Pro-Logic surround sound decoder system invented by Dolby Laboratories to reproduce cinema sound in the home PVR (personal video recorder) device using a hard disc drive to record TV in digital format, combined with an EPG to make programmed recordings easier
Quad-band LNB
LNB capable of receiving FSS, DBS and Telecom bands (including the 10.700-10.950GHz band first used by Astra 1D) in two ranges, selected from the receiver by altering the supply voltage (13/18V). See Triple-band LNB Receiver
indoor unit to take signals from the antenna, tune and convert them for display on a TV Reflector dish-shaped surface of an antenna which collects the signal Secam (sequence à memoire)
a television system used by some French channels. It displays as black and white on UK PAL television Skew fine-tuning of polarity to account for different angles of signals from different satellites Scart
European 21-pin plug and socket standard to link audio-visual equipment Secondary focus focal point of a signal off the boresight of a dish. Used by multi-feed antennas Slot satellite position in the Clarke Belt, expressed as degrees east or west of South (the orbital position above 0° longitude)
Smart card credit card-sized electronic key put in a decoder to unscramble a protected channel SMATV (satellite master antenna television) satellite TV distribution system for blocks of flats with single antenna
S/N (signal-to-noise) ratio ratio of a signal's power to the noise power in a specific bandwidth, expressed in dB SNG (satellite news-gathering) use of satellite TV technology to send news material from portable uplink stations Sound-in-sync broadcast format in which audio data is placed in the picture's sync pulses, producing an unstable silent picture without a decoder Sparklies
impulse noise seen as black and white speckles in the picture caused by too low a S/N ratio (too weak a signal)
S/PDIF (Sony/Philips digital interface)
Standard for digital audio transmission using both fibre optic and coaxial connections, between a digital TV receiver and a home cinema audio system
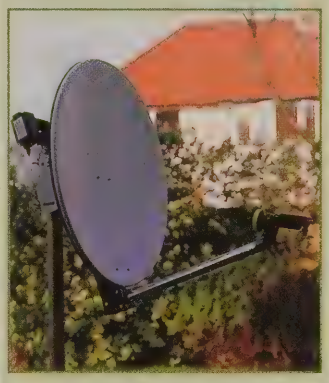
Statistical multiplexing technique to increase the number of digital compressed channels broadcast in a given bandwidth by dynamically varying the compression ratio for each channel according to programme content



Subcarrier
auxiliary signal associated with an analogue satellite TV signal used for carrying the audio soundtrack or additional radio stations
S-video video format which maintains separate chrominance and luminance signals Symbol rate tuning parameter for digital broadcasts. Measure of the rate of supply of data in the signal Sync
TV signal constituent which synchronises the picture scanning of the TV set with the transmission

portion (12.500-12.750GHz) of the Ku-band frequencies first used by the French Telecom satellites but more correctly called broadcast satellite services (BSS) band Threshold
minimum C/N required to produce a sparklie-free picture. A measure of the sensitivity of a receiver – the lower the figure, the better Transponder (transmitter/responder) equipment inside a satellite responsible for receiving a single uplinked channel and re-broadcasting it back to Earth
Triple-band LNB
LNB which is capable of receiving FSS, DBS and Telecom bands in two ranges, selected from the receiver by altering the supply voltage (13/18V)
UHF (ultra high frequency)
300-3,000MHz. UK terrestrial TV uses 470-890MHz
Universal LNB voltage-switched type LNB with two reception frequency bands of 10.700-11.700GHz and 11.700-12.750GHz using local oscillator frequencies of 9.75GHz and 10.60GHz, selected by a 22kHz tone on the LNB power supply Uplink
the signal's path from Earth to the satellite USALS (universal satellite location system) enhancement of DiSEqC 1.2 motor control software enabling a motor to calculate the site of any satellite based on the user's latitude and longitude USB (universal serial bus) high-speed data interface for connecting peripherals, such as cameras, PCs, hard disc drives and printers to satellite receivers, DTT converters and PVR Videocrypt
smart card-operated encryption system used by Sky analogue subscription channels Videoguard
smart card-operated encryption system used by Sky digital subscription services VOD (video-on-demand) multi-channel system allowing a film to be broadcast immediately it is requested by an individual viewer Voltage-switched LNB combined LNB/polariser used on Astra systems with polarity selected by changing the voltage (13/18V) supplied to the LNB Waveguide accurately engineered channel for a microwave signal Widescreen
TV picture with an aspect ratio greater than the standard 4:3. Usually 16:9, but 14:9, 23:3 and others also seen Wideband
very extended receiver's IF tuning, allowing reception of Astra 1D with a 'standard' LNB (with 10.000GHz local oscillator). 700-2,050MHz at least 22kHz tones control system for LNBs. Conceived to select reception bands on universal LNBs, also used for LNB switches and as basis for the DiSEqC control system

SKY DIGITAL

EVERYTHING YOU EVER WANTED TO KNOW ABOUT RECEIVING AND SUBSCRIBING

How to get Sky Digital

The easiest way to get Sky Digital is to call Sky on 08702 404040, pick your package and book an installation. You must have a Digibox to get Sky Digital. The Sky Digibox receiver and mini-dish are free, although non-subscribers must pay a £120 installation charge. Otherwise, installation costs £50 if you take the top Sky World package, or £70 if you take any other package.

If you'd prefer to see a demo before you buy, see an independent satellite dealer or high street electrical shop. The likes of Dixons just pass on your details to Sky's installers, but if you visit an independent, you'll also be able to assess the people who'll fit the system.

It's possible to buy the mini-dish and Digibox outright for about £299 to avoid any contractual obligations to Sky, but you'll have to do this through an independent dealer.

Sky prefers to be paid by direct debit or a standing credit card order. If you choose to pay by cheque, there's a monthly surcharge of £4.

Watching the BBC, ITV, Channel 4 and Five by satellite

All BBC channels, including regional variations, are free-to-air and can be picked up by anyone in the UK with any digital satellite receiver and a 60cm-plus dish in diameter pointed at Astra 2D. Obtaining a free Digibox and mini-dish from Sky and paying the £120 installation fee for non-subscribers can get you all of the BBC channels as well as many other FTA channels.

ITV1, Channel 4, and Five remain encrypted and currently only available to those with a subscription viewing card (including lapsed subscribers) or those with a free-to-air card (no longer obtainable).

ITV2 is only available to Sky subscribers.

The Sky Digital small print

The Sky Digital contract you sign contains rules you must adhere to. Remember the following:

Connection: You must keep your Digibox connected to your dish, mains power and a working phone line in the UK or Irish Republic for the first 12 months of your contract. If you don't, Sky could block your viewing card or demand you pay the value of their subsidies, currently £220.

Changing channels: You can alter your subscription package at any time, but you must take it for at least a month before changing again.

Cancellation: Sky requires a month's notice for cancellation, but since you can't cancel until the end of the first year, you'll actually pay for a minimum of 13 months.

Box Office films and pay-per-view events

These are ordered using the Box Office button on your Sky Digital remote. You'll need to give your PIN number (the last four digits of the customer number on your viewing card). All films are now Multiplay – you can watch them as many times as you like for a day after your purchase, though in Sky's case this day ends at 6am.

Sky Plus - the premium choice

Sky Plus is a next-generation Sky Digibox, with two tuners and a PC-style hard disc drive. It can record the satellite signal direct to the hard disc with no loss of quality, and holds 20 hours of material on average. The twin tuners allow you to record on one channel while watching another, or two channels at the same time and you can also pause live TV, and fast-forward or reverse at up to 30 times normal speed.

Sky Plus costs £199 and requires a £10 monthly subscription to use its extra features (waived if you subscribe to two or more Premium channels), along with £50 to install a quad-output LNB on your dish.

Sky in more than one room

Every Sky Digibox has two UHF outputs, and a second TV in another room can be connected to one of these, along with a Remote Link (£10) which allows you to change channels from the second room. Alternatively, you can buy a wireless Videosender for £60-£100, which will send a high-quality picture and stereo audio up to 30m indoors and relay remote commands back to the Digibox. But if you want to watch two different channels in different rooms you'll have to buy a second Digibox for £99 (direct from Sky, or shop around for less), plus £50 to upgrade to a quad-output LNB. The second Digibox can be watched with a second subscription card costing £15/month.

Choosing your Digibox

The only way to choose which model of Digibox you use is to buy through an independent dealer, or secondhand. Dixons allows you to state a preference, and Sky In-Home Services won't offer a choice of receivers.

Extra and secret channels

There are no secret channels hidden by Sky as a treat for those in the know. However, subscribers can add extra ITV regions using the Add New Channels feature in the Services menu on 10.832GHz/H, 10.892GHz/H, and 10.906GHz/V (all SR 22000, FEC 5/6). New channels usually test for some time before joining the EPG, but if you find out the frequencies you can tune these in manually. There are also a dozen or so foreign channels on Eurobird that are too weak to be picked up with the mini-dish and which use odd symbol rates the Digibox cannot read.

Foreign channels

The old Sky analogue service shared the Astra 1 satellites at 19.2°E with dozens of German channels. Sky Digital broadcasts from Astra 2, 28.2°E, and Eurobird, 28.5°E, each developed to give the UK a very large digital satellite capacity. There are no mainland European channels available through the basic free-to-air Sky Digital system, but there are several Asian and Arabic services.

Sky Digital in Europe

Sky can't officially sell subscriptions to anyone living outside the UK or Irish Republic, and it is technically fraud to claim you're living in the UK or the Irish Republic to obtain a viewing card. Legalities aside, thousands abroad use their friends/relatives' addresses, and there's a profitable industry using real and bogus UK addresses to get viewing cards, which are sold round Europe at a premium. Reception is a problem outside the UK, particularly for BBC channels. You'll need a far larger dish to get reliable reception, but reportedly, people as far away as Egypt and Morocco pick up Sky Digital.

Astra 2D

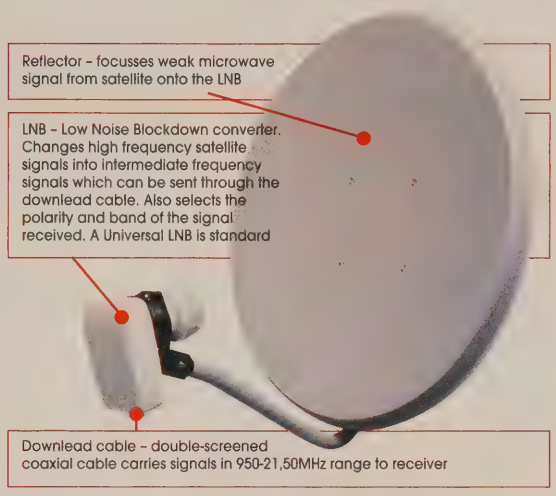
The BBC, ITV, the Irish channels, some of Sky's music and Sky Box Office channels, and Sky Sports Xtra all broadcast on Astra 2D, which has a very tight footprint in comparison to Astra 2A and 2B, or Eurobird.

This means viewers in Europe will generally need a larger dish to pick up these channels than the other Sky channels. As a general rule, we recommend 60cm in France, The Netherlands and Belgium, up to 90cm in western Germany and southern Norway, up to 2.4m in east Germany, northern Italy and most of Spain, 3m in central Italy and central Europe, and 3.5m in most of the Mediterranean and eastern Europe.

SATELLITE FAQ

ANSWERS TO THE SATELLITE TV QUESTIONS YOU ASK THE MOST

What are the different types of receiver?
Free-to-air receivers can only pick up TV channels which are not scrambled. As there are thousands of these out there, you won't be short of anything to watch.
Common interface receivers can be upgraded to receive scrambled channels, if you find you want a particular foreign TV service.
Conditional access receivers have extra hardware which allows you to insert a viewing card for scrambled subscription TV channels.



Can I use my PC or Mac to pick up satellite TV?
Yes. There are several makes of digital TV receiver card or USB device for PC users, which can tune in satellite TV and display it on your monitor, make recordings to your hard disc, and receive high speed internet-by-satellite.

Mac users are currently limited to Elgato's EyeTV300, a Firewire-based external tuner.

PC and Mac users have the advantage that their software can be easily upgraded to the latest broadcast video formats such as MPEG 4:2:2 and high-definition TV. You can even do it yourself.

How can I get more than one satellite?
You can have more than one dish, or have up to four 'offset feed' LNBs on the same dish, but at most these can only be for satellites within 10-15° of each other.

A motorised dish will provide a greater selection of satellites from across the whole sky. Users of small dishes up to 90cm can use a simple DiSEqC 1.2 motorised mount. Dishes of 1m and above will need a more powerful and complex 36V motor drive.

We have recently seen some radical new dish designs such as the Cybertenna and Force Frontier, using unusual materials and shapes, which enable a fixed dish to pick up 10 or 15 satellites within a 40° arc. Even greater improvements are expected.

What size of dish am I allowed on my house, and how many can I have?
Current planning regulations state that every home is allowed a single dish up to 90cm diameter. In conservation areas this may be reduced to 60cm diameter or dishes may be banned altogether (although this may infringe your human rights under EU law). Larger dishes are only allowed if you apply for planning permission.

These regulations are currently under review by the Government, and we expect an announcement before the end of 2004.

In practical terms, if you have a large dish and don't ask for planning permission, you'll only land in hot water if your neighbours report you to the local authority. Take care when siting the dish, using chimney breasts and eaves to disguise it – if possible ask for your neighbours' blessing – and you shouldn't have any trouble.

There are several 'dishes' around designed to be discrete – the Globedish, the Cubsat and flat panel dishes are all more bearable – and you can paint your dish with non-metallic car paint to match the brickwork.

What are DiSEqC and USALS?
Digital Satellite Equipment Control is a standard created by Eutelsat for receivers to select between LNBs and control motorised dishes. A DiSEqC-compatible receiver sends pulses at 22kHz, along the LNB cable to control a DiSEqC switch or motor.

Mini-DiSEqC switches can select between two LNBs, DiSEqC 1.0 is used for up to four LNBs, DiSEqC 1.1 for up to 16 LNBs, using two sets of pulses.

DiSEqC 1.2 uses the pulses to instruct a 'smart' motor to move east or west, or to go to a preset position. USALS (also known incorrectly as DiSEqC 1.3 or Goto X) uses an even smarter mount which can find any position in the sky based on a single reference bearing and the user's longitude and latitude.

How can I get encrypted channels?
You'll need a viewing card and the hardware to use the viewing card, either built into your receiver or with a conditional access module.

What are pirate viewing cards?
Pirate viewing cards are blank cards programmed with the keys for one or more subscription TV channels or packages (usually obtained on the internet). It is not currently illegal to own or produce viewing cards for personal use, but all activities relating to commercial production are illegal.

What is a conditional access module?
A conditional access module (or CAM) contains the technology needed to unlock encrypted subscription TV channels, using a viewing card. A CAM may be built into a receiver, or a separate unit the size of a credit card. CAMs are available for most types of encryption, except the Videoguard system used by Sky Digital.

What is a common interface?
Receivers with a common interface can accept external CAM units of any kind, giving the user a broad flexibility.

What is a Magic CAM?
Magic CAMs, Joker CAMs and Global CAMs contain the software for several types of encryption, for use with viewing cards containing keys to disparate packages. Most retailers maintain that these CAMs should be legal.

What are 'feeds'?
Broadcasters often use satellite links – known as 'feeds' – to transfer programming from remote locations prior to broadcast. Feeds are often unedited, containing bloopers and footage unsuitable for broadcast. Many are unencrypted, although sports feeds are becoming rare, and broadcasters are moving to the technical superior MPEG4:2:2 format.

What about analogue?
Germany still broadcasts around 60 analogue TV channels on Astra 1 to satisfy the millions of analogue TV users over there, and France continues its analogue Secam broadcasts of the national TV channels at 5°W. Analogue signals are becoming a rarity on other satellites, since digital broadcasting is vastly cheaper than analogue, and the receivers are cheap enough for anyone to upgrade.

EVERY MONTH, MATTHEW HOLBROOK KEEPS AN EAR TO THE SKIES FOR NEWS OF SATELLITE RADIO

A-PID and transponder changes at 28.2°E mean it's a frustrating time to be a radio listener with an FTA receiver. All the radio channels broadcasting on 12.344GHz/H have now relocated to 12.402GHz/V, a transponder on Astra 2B's north-[illegible] Radio dropping by two to 2318, Spectrum Digital dropping 15 to 2331, CNN Radio rising by four to 2319, and BBC Radio Cymru rising one to 2338.

Two new channels have been added to the large CanalSatellite France bouquet on Astra 1H at [illegible]

Satellite receivers spend most of their time tuned to TV but there is also an abundance of radio stations transmitted from the same satellites and receivable using the same equipment. There are three broadcasting formats for satellite radio – digital, analogue and Astra Digital Radio (ADR). Digital and analogue radio are receivable on digital and analogue (respectively) TV receivers, and ADR requires a special receiver and these are not widely available in the UK. ADR is only available on the Astra 1 satellites (please note that due to pressure on space ADR listings may not be included)

Complete Guide to Euro Digital Channels

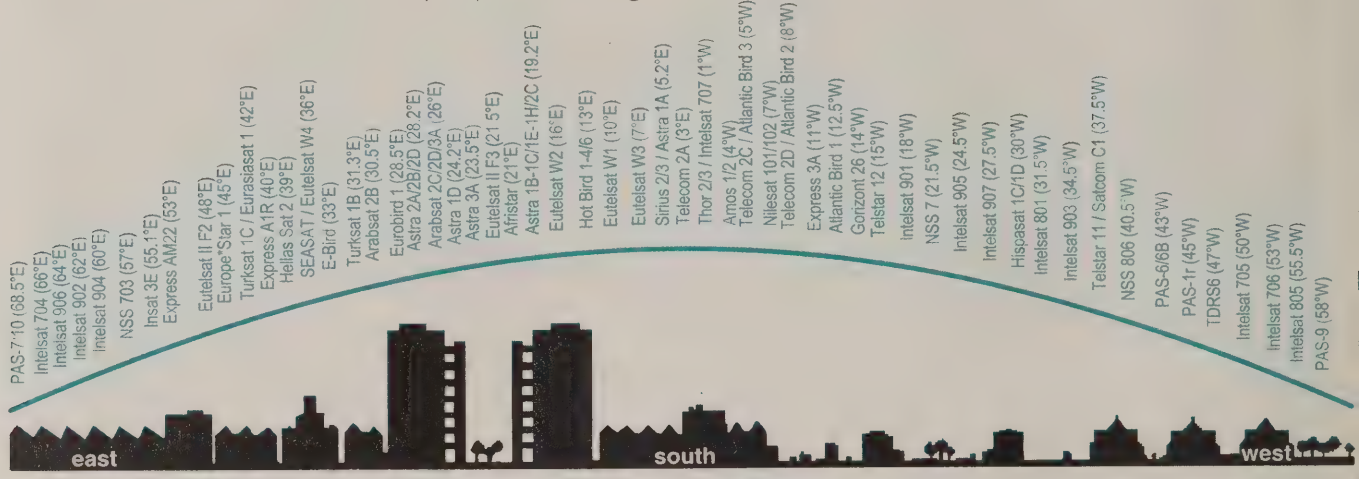
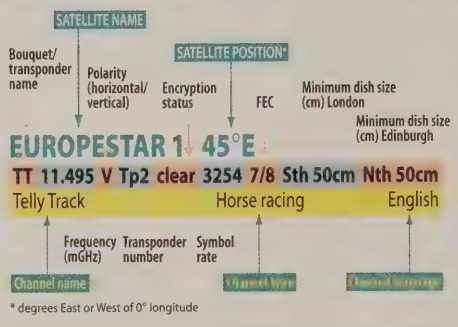
There are hundreds of satellite channels up there. Tune in with our monthly updated guide



Although the Astra craft at 19.2°E and 28.2°E are the highest profile satellites in the skies above the UK, there are many more providing TV channels. More than 40 provide thousands of digital stations, plus newsfeeds across Europe. This guide gives you all the details needed in order to tune in to them using fixed dish, dual-feed or multi-satellite systems.

For each satellite we display the regular TV channels transmitted, plus the more dependable sources of news feeds. For each transponder (broadcasting frequency) we list the bouquet name, frequency and polarity, transponder number, encryption type, symbol rate and forward error correction (FEC) rate. These tuning details can either be manually entered into your receiver or are automatically found using some systems.

We also list two approximate minimum dish sizes for the South (London) and North (Edinburgh) to give you an idea of the strength of the signal. Remember that your own particular location, LNB type and even weather may also affect your ability to receive the channel. For each channel we show its name, a description, and main language.



All listings believed correct at the time of going to press. If you have a correction, email it to us marked 'Channel Check' or post it to us at the usual address.

BLASTS FROM THE PAST

Over the years What Satellite & Digital TV has tested more satellite receivers, decoders, dishes and home cinema gear than you can shake a stick at.

If you've missed that vital test, or want to upgrade your system, our Test Reprint service can provide you with a photocopy of any article from What Satellite & Digital TV since its inception.

The date of testing for current equipment can be found in the Buyer's Guide.

To order, fill in the coupon, adding details of your requirements, enclose a cheque or postal order for £3 per reprint (made payable to Highbury Entertainment London) and a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and send it to What Satellite & Digital TV Reprints, Highbury Entertainment London, Unit 601, Highgate Studio, 53-79 Highgate Road, London NW5 1TW. Please allow 28 days for delivery.

Digital Satellite TV

Evolved from the famous Ku-band Satellite TV series of books, this 486-page tome is crammed full of background information, and technical details on all aspects of satellite TV – both digital and analogue – with pretty much everything you need in the way of theory, installation and troubleshooting of satellite systems. An indispensable guide to satellite TV technology.

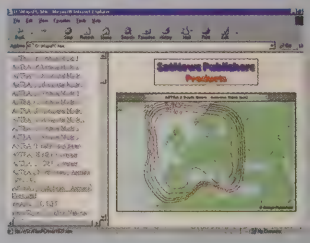
UK £36 • Rest of Europe £42 • Worldwide £47

Classic Black Book

The 'bible' of the black art of signal security, European Scrambling Systems is principally concerned with analogue scrambling systems, but is still of interest today to anyone interested in how scrambling and encryption systems are set up and knocked down by illicit 'hackers'. This 576-page book is packed with technical data, circuit diagrams, software listings, tables and photos with details on hacks of scrambling systems for PAL, Mac and the DirecTV DSS American digital network.

UK £34 • Rest of Europe £35 • Worldwide £39

SatMaps Footprints CD-Rom



On CD-Rom for both PC and Mac, SatMaps is a simple collection of satellite footprints – essential to work out which signals you can receive with your dish. Place the disc in your computer, double-click on an icon and away you go. Each footprint can be viewed, printed or downloaded for use in other software. From Afristar to Turksat, over 600 footprints of broadcast satellites around the world are here. SatMaps requires either Microsoft Internet Explorer or Netscape Communicator installed as the default internet application in your computer.

UK, Europe and Rest of World £29

How to buy a satellite TV system

Choosing a satellite TV system is a confusing business. Here are a few guidelines to help out the first-time buyer Buying a satellite TV system will involve you in a whole lot of choices, but you've made the right choice so far – to go for the wealth of entertainment that is available on satellite TV.

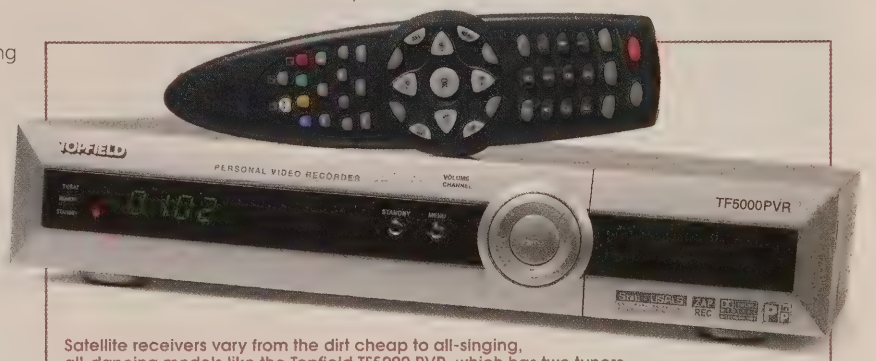
WHAT SYSTEM?

The first choice you must make is which type of satellite system to go for. It all depends on what you want to receive. Take a look in the Channel Check section of this magazine for an idea of which channels are broadcast from which satellites.

The cheapest and simplest satellite system uses a fixed dish to receive just the free channels from the Astra 1 satellites. This is what most people plump for – the 60cm dish (although an 80cm dish is needed in the north of England, the South-West, Scotland and Ireland). A Sky Digital system will not only receive the free and scrambled stations from Astra 2 and Eurobird at 28.2°E, it can also be used for free-to-air channels from some other satellites, with a suitable dish.

If you want to receive all the channels that are available, you'll need a motorised multi-satellite system and thinking about something which can receive encrypted channels. These are more versatile, but also much more complicated and expensive than simple free-to-air systems.



Satellite receivers vary from the dirt cheap to all-singing, all-dancing models like the Topfield TF5000 PVR, which has two tuners, DiSEqC motor control and hard disc recording

WHAT MODEL?

In the following tables we list all the receivers currently available, separated into categories of fixed dish digital receivers, motorised digital receivers with traditional positioners built-in, and motorised receivers which use DiSEqC 1.2 software.

Mixed into all categories you'll find several combined receivers which can deal with both analogue and digital transmissions.

For each category and model there is a lot of information, much of which many buyers need not worry about. For a fixed dish digital receiver, look for plenty of channels, a common interface or built-in conditional access module, and DiSEqC 1.0 LNB switching.

If you want to receive channels on multiple satellites you'll need even more channels, but most importantly you'll need a built-in positioner or DiSEqC 1.2 software, depending on the type of motorisation you go for. One golden rule applies to any satellite system: don't rush out and buy the first model you see. Decide what you really need – both now and for the future – and consult this guide and your dealer for advice.

Antennas come in a wide range of shapes and sizes, but you'll need a large dish for multi-satellite. A smaller dish is required for Sky Digital

WHAT ABOUT INSTALLATION?

Whatever model you pick, the dish will have to be installed. You can do this yourself, but it's a task for the DIY-competent only.

The installation must be done correctly if you're to receive the proper quality of pictures and sound.

A typical simple Astra installation will cost between £40 and £80 and will take a professional anything from 30 minutes to a couple of hours to install.

A multi-satellite installation is a far more complex task (and therefore much less suitable for trying yourself) and will cost you anything from £200 upwards.

WHAT TO ASK?

Unless you know a fair amount about satellite TV already, it's probably wise to buy your system from a dealer, rather than through mail order. Visit as many satellite dealers as you can, and try to see every possible system in use. Have a go yourself.

If you don't like the way a receiver operates, it's better to find out in the shop than in your lounge after you've bought the wrong model. Don't be afraid to ask questions. Ask about other models, why the system on offer is right for you and why it's better than the others available.

Check the price of the receiver and for the installation – some shops appear to offer a bargain on the equipment but cash in on the installation charges.

Make sure you are being offered the right size dish for your area – even though a 60cm dish may work all right in Penzance on a fine day, the picture will suffer when it rains.

If you intend to subscribe to any foreign channels, think about arranging it through the same dealer you buy your system from – you may qualify for a discount.

Use our Guide To Euro Digital Channels to decide which channels you're after, which satellite you need, and what dish size you require.

WHAT NEXT?

Once you've selected your satellite TV system and had it fitted, and the installer has shown you the basics, there's nothing more you have to do.

Watching satellite TV is then as easy as watching the five channels of terrestrial TV you're already used to.

The only difficulty then is choosing which channel to watch and fighting over who watches what.

Now perhaps you should think about a second receiver for the bedroom... ■

sky digital receivers

KEY TO SKY DIGITAL RECEIVERS

Known as the Sky Digibox, these receivers are the only way to pick up both the Sky subscription channels and channels from ITV, Channel 4 and Five.

All Sky Digiboxes have an integrated Videoguard conditional access module, and support the OpenTV software used for interactive TV and the electronic programme guide.

The remote controls are interchangeable for all Digiboxes except Sky Plus, which has extra recording and playback controls

RECEIVER PRICE: Prices are for guidance only. Individual retailers may decide their own price, and What Satellite & Digital TV cannot be held responsible for market prices

MONTHLY SUBSCRIPTION: Sky Plus requires an extra monthly subscription to take advantage of its digital recording features

NUMBER OF LNB INPUTS: Two LNB inputs are useful for watching one channel while recording another

HARD DISC SIZE: Measured in gigabytes, this does not reflect recording capacity, which depends on the level of compression used for each recording MODEM: Used to inform Sky of any Box Office events purchased, or for registering with some interactive services and downloading extra information. A faster modem will supply faster downloads.

NUMBER AV OUTPUTS: For direct connection using Scart cable to a TV or VCR for superior picture and sound

S-VIDEO OUTPUT: A dedicated S-video mini-DIN output connects to your TV or VCR for superior picture

STEREO AUDIO OUTPUTS: Phono sockets supplying left and right analogue audio channels, along with any Dolby Pro-Logic surround signals

DIGITAL AUDIO OUTPUT: For noise-free audio, either a coaxial link (c) or an optical link (O)

DOLBY DIGITAL: Receivers which can pass the AC-3 encoded signal through their digital audio output will produce superior Dolby Digital surround sound with a suitably equipped audio amplifier

NUMBER UHF OUTPUTS: Extra outputs can be used to supply TVs in other rooms

TESTED: Date of the What Satellite & Digital TV issue with a review of the receiver. Most will also be found in the following year's Book Of Tests

★★★ STAR PERFORMERS

SKY PLUS £199

The ultimate Sky Digibox – at least for now – Sky Plus slickly combines an excellent Pace digital satellite receiver with a cutting edge personal video recorder. The Sky EPG and many interactive services run fast enough to be a pleasure rather than a chore, but you'll have to pay an extra £10 monthly subscription for the PVR features, on top of your Sky subscription (but not if you subscribe to more than two premium channels).

PIONEER DBR-TF100GB £99

Freeview adapters come and go but few are as feature-stuffed and stylish as the DBR-TF100GB. This slimline box has an elegantly presented menu system featuring a now-and-next EPG. Picture and audio qualtiy are exceptional via the digital tuner and there's MHEG-5 software for interactive services. There's a built-in screengrabber and (for those concerned about screen burn) a screensaver feature, comprehensive set of connections includes two Scarts which include S-video support, and a Dolby-enabled digital optical audio output.

digital/analogue motorised receivers

KEY TO DIGITAL/ANALOGUE MOTORISED RECEIVERS

To view the programmes from more than one satellite, a motorised dish system is required. This includes a dish able to point at the different parts of the sky where the satellites are situated, and a positioner unit to control the dish motor. The range of formats and standards on all the satellites is enormous, so multi-satellite systems must be flexible.
KEY: A blob in a feature column indicates that the receiver has this feature. Some adjustments are V (variable – they can take any value within a range), S (switchable – they take one of a number of discrete values) or F (fixed – they cannot be altered). Some of the column headings are the same as for the analogue and digital fixed dish receivers. The additional column headings are explained here.
MAKE & MODEL: The models listed are all systems with integrated positioners which are capable of moving automatically to a new satellite on a channel change.
RECEIVER PRICE: The price of the receiver on its own without dish, LNB, mount and so on.
NUMBER OF SATELLITE POSITIONS: Not all receivers can pick up as many satellite positions as are needed for receiving 'everything'. The more the merrier.

KEY TO DIGITAL VIDEO RECORDERS

The recording complement to digital TV, DVRs can store video, audio and data on a computer-type hard disc drive, which enables instant access, simultaneous read-and-write, and many other features a VCR can't emulate. DVRs can be combined with a digital satellite receiver, digital terrestrial TV tuner, analogue TV tuner, or even with DVD players/ recorders and VCRs. They're most useful in tandem with an electronic programme guide rather than a VCR-style manual timer – this is known as a personal video recorder, or PVR.
HARD DISC CAPACITY AND RECORDING QUALITY LEVELS: Increasing the level of data compression increases the amount which can be stored on the disc, but reduces picture and sound quality; Sky's compression system changes dynamically to maximise both compression and quality
MP3 PLAYBACK: Plays compressed audio files, including music
BACKGROUND RECORDING: Watch from the hard disc while your DVR records live TV
LIVE TV CACHE: The DVR continually records (up to a fixed amount), so users can jump back fast to anywhere in the programme
PAUSE RECORDING: The DVR starts recording when 'Pause' is pressed
TWIN TUNERS: The DVR can record two channels at once or record one channel while another is being watched live
USB PORT: Transfers audio and video files to a PC, or vice versa ETHERNET: Connects to a home network or broadband internet digital satellite receivers

KEY TO DIGITAL SATELLITE RECEIVERS

This category lists digital receivers used for receiving MPEG-2 channels. To watch such channels you require a DVB-compliant system instead of a conventional analogue receiver.

You will also need a dish pointed at one of the satellites broadcasting digital channels (see Guide To Euro Digital Channels) and a universal LNB to receive the entire Ku-band frequency range. Digital technology typically presents high quality pictures and sound comparable to CD quality. Also, due to the nature of compressed digital TV signals, other facilities such as electronic programme guides, audio subchannels and teletext can be offered. While every digital receiver is capable of receiving these signals, it requires a CAM and a viewing card to decrypt scrambled pay-TV channels. Some receivers feature a common interface to enable a number of CAMs to be inserted for viewing of a number of different digital bouquets. Digital receivers can be linked to your existing analogue system for ease of use. This can be done using either a twin-output LNB, a priority switching system or a special IF splitter.

KEY: A blob in a column indicates that the receiver has that feature. Some adjustments are V (variable – can take any value within a range), S (switchable – takes one of a number of discrete values) or F (fixed – setting cannot be altered).

COMBINED ANALOGUE: Some receivers combine analogue and digital reception. Digital features are listed under Fixed Dish Analogue Receivers

RECEIVER PRICE: Digital receivers are typically sold without a dish , as it's assumed that buyers will have one for analogue TV reception

LNB LOOPTHROUGH: IF signal from dish can be passed to a second receiver while this unit is in standby

DISEQC LEVEL: Version 1.2 provides simple positioning and movement limits. USALS and Satscan (used in Nokias) enables receivers to calculate positions of satellites

POLARISER CONTROL: Polarisers are controlled by pulse (servo motor), current (magnetic), or voltage (combined LNB/polariser used in universal LNBs). Only current and pulse control allow skew adjustment for multi-satellite upgrading

NUMBER OF SATELLITE POSITIONS: The more the better. Standard DiSEqC 1.2 allows for up to 50 positions, but this is limited by some software

SYMBOL RATE: The data rate varies between transponders, according to the level of compression and number of channels. Low symbol rates are used by news feeds with a single channel (SCPC or Single Channel Per Carrier), but most transponders on Astra, Eurobird and Hot Bird use 22000 and 27500

FEC: Digital channels use differing Forward Error Correction rates (redundant information signals added to help receivers recognise and correct errors in transmission). Most receivers automatically detect FEC (A), but selectable FEC (S) can help pin down weak signals

CAM: A Conditional Access Module provides the crucial conditional access technology required to decode the scrambled signals broadcast by the service provider.

NUMBER CARD SLOTS: In addition to a CAM, digital receivers require a suitable DVB viewing card to be inserted before viewing encrypted digital channels

COMMON INTERFACE: A slot that enables a common interface module to be inserted. This is desirable as it enables the separation of the proprietary CA technology from the receiver

TELETEXT: You don't need a TV equipped with teletext to access text from digital channels. The teletext signal is broadcast within the MPEG-2 data stream. If the receiver has a text option you should be able to access it

R232 INTERFACE: Links a computer printer or other peripherals to the receiver. May not be operational; available for future services

UHF TUNING RANGE: Some digital receivers don't have a UHF modulator (and so no tuning range) because the manufacturers consider that using UHF leads is inferior to Scart connections

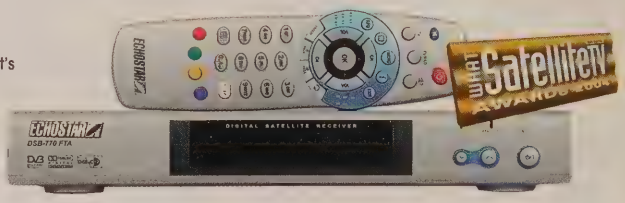
★★★STAR PERFORMERS

ECHOSTAR DSB-770FTA £99

Echostar's budget free-to-air receiver lives up to the satellite stalwart's high quality threshold. It comes with support for DiSEqC 1.2 and USALS and has a generous memory capacity for 4,400 channels and 80 satellites. It's very quick to scan and operation is a doddle using the simply laid-out menu system. Kudos too for the funky silver and blue design



FORCE D-MASTER 2055S £599

Something a bit different from the usual 'plain' satellite receiver is this DVD/receiver combi from Force. The space-saving appeal of having a decent DVD player onboard is matched by the quality of the receiver which has both Conax and Viaccess CAMs (a Viaccess only version is also available) as well as support for DiSEqC 1.2 with USALS. It has memory capacity for 5,000 channels and 36 satellites, and A/V performance is excellent both from TV channels and the DVD player.

digital satellite PC cards

KEY TO DIGITAL SATELLITE PC CARDS

These cards can also be used for multimedia-by-satellite, which includes high-speed downloads and 'streaming' video and audio, which can be watched on a computer using appropriate media player software, as well as the ability to surf the Internet at speeds higher than a normal telephone link.

KEY: A blob in the feature column indicates that the receiver has this feature. Some adjustments are V (variable – they can take any value within a range), S (selectable – they take one of a number of discrete values), F (fixed – they cannot be altered) or A (automatic – the receiver detects the correct value). Many of the column headings are the same as for analogue and digital receivers. The additional column headings are explained here.

MAXIMUM RESOLUTION: The greatest resolution at which the card can produce a picture in a window. This is defined as a number of pixels wide, by a number of pixels high. The size this appears onscreen will depend on the resolution at which your monitor operates.

FULL SCREEN VIEWING: Most cards can stretch the maximum resolution picture to fill a larger screen, either by interpolating the missing lines or by spreading the original pixels over a block of several pixels on the monitor. Both of these methods reduce clarity at the expense of a larger picture.

RECORD TO HARD DISC: Software can capture still images from TV, or record in MPEG2 to the PCs hard disc drive

MAC ADDRESSING: Individual MAC addresses are widely used to verify subscriptions to internet and multimedia-by-satellite services and address information

VIDEO OUTPUTS: By attaching a TV to an external analogue video output, a larger picture can be obtained from the card without the loss of clarity by expanding to the fill your computer monitor. Also allows satellite TV programmes to be recorded on a normal VCR. PC cards will have either a composite video phono output socket, or a high quality S-video output.

AV INPUTS: With composite video or S-video inputs, your satellite card can be used to watch signals from an external DVD player, VCR, or you can use a videosender to send Sky Digital from the living room to the PC in your home office.

MINIMUM PC PROCESSOR: The slowest Pentium processor recommended for reliable use, in MHz

MINIMUM PC RAM: The minimum memory capacity (in MB) for running under Windows 98. Usually double under Windows 2000 and XP

★★★STAR PERFORMERS

PACE TWIN DIGITAL RECEIVER – £349

A combined personal video recorder (PVR) and digital terrestrial receiver, the Pace Twin is the first of its kind. Twin digital tuners mean you can record one Freeview channel while watching another and the modest 20GB hard disc can store around 10 hours of TV and radio. Recordings can be scheduled using either the EPG or manual timer option and, as with most PVRs, there's also a pause live TV option. Recordings can be rewound and fast-forwarded up to 64 times and, if need be, archived to videotape if you're in danger of maxing out the hard drive. Picture and sound quality are both excellent and a recent software update added support for interactive and digital text services.

TECHNISAT SKYSTAR 2 £69

The ever popular satellite card has benefitted further from the addition of PVR functionality enabling you to record what you watch in MPEG2 onto your PC hard drive. Though it lacks DiSEqC 1.2 support or a common interface slot, its simple to set up and runs very smoothly on relatively machines. The SkyStar 2 can operate as either a TV or a data card (for internet use), and the included EPG can be used to schedule recordings. A real bargain.

★★★STAR PERFORMERS

SONY KD-28DX50U £600

Sony currently leads the pack when it comes to IDTVs and this mid-range set is as good a reason as any to make your next TV a digital one. The latest pastel-hued Sony operating system is a cinch to use and comes with support for the Freeview seven day EPG when it finally appears. Picture and audio quality is as sharp as you like, benefitting further from the application of the latest version of Sony's 100Hz DRC processing technology.

PANASONIC TX-32DT40 £1.200

If you're looking to spend more than £1,000 on a new TV then this sizeable 100Hz IDTV is built to please. The onboard tuner delivers a great picture even if audio quality is a little muted on occasion and there are no less than three Scarts on the rear for easy connection of all the boxes in your living room. Other notable features include a seven-day ready EPG and a stylish two-tier stand.

Hardcore's ups and downs

WAS THE RECENT EMERGENCE OF HARDCORE ON BRITISH SATELLITE TV A FALSE DAWN, ASKS DAVE TAYLOR, OR IS THE TIDE TRULY TURNING AT LAST?

Climax3 – the new adult service from Playboy TV promises a new style of erotic entertainment

The Adult Channel's brave foray into hardcore seems to have petered out. Tired, old, cut-down hardcore has returned to the airwaves. This is even more disappointing when there seemed to be a gain of momentum in the move to hardcore – especially when Playboy joined in with an evening of hardcore girl-on-girl action. There are still hints of hardcore from Sport XXX, and Television X has recently featured glimpses of erections and oral sex.

I have been following the ups and downs of UK hardcore for the past few weeks, but have not really worked out why the channels experiment with a little hardcore then promptly stop again. One suspects it is a quiet word from regulator Ofcom.

A colleague asked Ofcom about its policy, but its response showed little optimism for a rapid confirmation of any rule change.

'Adult services have been allowed on cable and satellite services for a decade now. They include programming more explicit than would be allowed on free-to-air or basic package channels. Much of the programming is cut-down hardcore. Our research indicates, however, that public opinion does not favour a move to wholly explicit programming of the sort now available in R18-rated videos. These videos are available only in licensed sex shops, and the broadcasters have to respect the law on this matter.

'So a balance is struck between the legitimate wishes of adults to see sex programming and concerns over child protection. Broadcasting is not obviously suited to providing material otherwise available only in a hundred or so specialist shops where access by children can be easily policed. Even where encryption and other security measures can be applied, the wide distribution of the most explicit material must be a significant issue.'

I hope Ofcom is merely preferring to wait until this summer's public consultation before actually relaxing its controls on hardcore.

Still, here at Certificate-X we won't let this reversion to softcore get us down – we'll search the more liberal satellites of continental Europe. Competition is intense there. Several new channels have recently appeared at the cheaper end of the market. I opted to research the InXworld package.

The three-channel package is widely advertised at around £60 for a 12-month subscription – a snip compared with the outlay required for a year's worth of softcore on The Adult Channel.

'A BALANCE IS STRUCK BETWEEN THE LEGITIMATE WISHES OF ADULTS TO SEE SEX PROGRAMMING AND CONCERNS OVER CHILD PROTECTION'

The channels included are Free-X TV, X-Dream TV and Back Room. All are 24hr services to be found on the 12.207MHz transponder of Hot Bird. Irdeto is the encryption system for the package but the channels are individually available in other bespoke encryption options.

Free-X TV has been going for some time on the basis of a indefinite subscription for a one-off payment. The programming is cheap, but the programme buyers are competent and put on a good service. There is a good variety of genres but perhaps a little too much US material. Films do repeat but there is a long cycle. It generally shows about 20 different features in 24 hours.

Programme details are available on the website at www.free-xtv.com.

X-Dream TV has recently replaced a channel called X4U-TV. I don't know whether X-Dream TV is a 'new' channel or just a re-branding exercise resulting from previous poor audience appreciation. Unsurprisingly, the programming is again cheap but unfortunately is not so well-considered as Free-X TV.

X-Dream TV has a cycle of about eight shorts and films repeated every six hours. There is a programme guide on the Internet at www.XDreamTV.com.

The third element in the package is gay channel Back Room. I prefer to leave opinions on the quality of programming to those who better appreciate the genre, but I note that the video quality doesn't suggest high budgets.

At a monthly cost of £5 the InXworld package doesn't really compete with some of my more expensive subscriptions. but at least it contributes to my channel-hopping list ■

In the mood

Climax3, newly launched by Playboy TV, offers adult TV viewersa package of three channels with over 22 hours of adult action each night. Climax3 claims to be the most exciting adult entertainment offer to hit the small screen.

Broadcast on Sky Digital, and fronted by some of the most glamorous women in the adult entertainment industry, Climax3offers viewers a package of three separate channels of intensive, thematic, interactive action, putting viewers in control of what they watch. It boasts that it offers content based on the most popular adult categories identified by in-depth research into what the British public wants from adult TV entertainment. Climax3 also allows viewers to interact through text messages to request what they want to watch.

Over on Television X you can find the channel's dirtiest voyeur sneaking around Eastern Europe to meet a whole host of girls in his new series Jim Slip In Budapest. Join him as he meets the hottest Euro-chicks (every Monday at 10.10pm).

Other highlights include Classic Movie Night TVX:3, which presents an evening of vintage adult shows. Three of the best classic movies and two timeless shows will keep you up all night (Friday, July 24, at 10.10pm).

And British babe Kelle Marie opens the doors on Kelle Marie's Pussy Party. She'll be hosting events like a horny hen party and Ann Summers parties, so it's guaranteed that her guests will get down to some funny business (Suns, 10.10pm).

YOUR GUIDE TO LOCAL CAI QUALIFIED SATELLITE INSTALLER

You've bought your new satellite and now you want to install it. Who do you go to? Look no further than your local CAI installer.
The CAI (Confederation of Aerial Industries Limited) is THE recognised trade body for the aerial and satellite industry. The CAI is committed to raising standards within the industry and whilst the criteria for membership is extremely high, the consurer is assured of A QUALITY INSTALLATION AT A FAIR PRICE.

What is so special about a member of the CAI?

* CAI Members only employ qualified personnel whose work is monitored by an inspector.
* All CAI Members are required to work to the exacting standards laid down in the CAI's Codes of Practice.
* All CAI Members guarantee their installations for a minimum of twelve months. In addition, the CAI undertakes to back-up this guarantee with its own twelve months guarantee, for domestic installations only.
* CAI Members should carry identity cards that clearly state their name and company details together with a photograph.
* All CAI Members are required to have full insurance cover. This gives the consumer total peace of mind before the work commences.
* If a customer is unhappy with any aspect of the installation, the CAI has a formal complaints procedure.

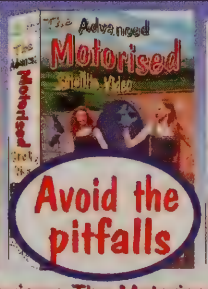
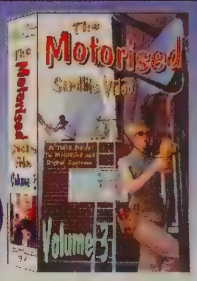
The Motorised Satellite Video Volume 1 2 hrs. 20 mins. £14.95
This video is packed full of easy to understand information. Including comparing the capabilities of dishes from 80cms to 1.8m, comparing polar mounts with horizon to horizon motors, we demonstrate a simple method for fitting & setting up a motorised system, analogue and digital receivers. Receiver programming. Tools & products, digital receivers, how to recognise well engineered products. Suitable for beginners but we take you to an advanced level. We explain the terminology & the Physics.

The Motorised Satellite Video Volume 2 2 hrs. 20 mins. £14.95
Including fine tuning the satellite arc, get the most out of your system, C Band equipment & programs, Indian & Middle Eastern channels, we visit "What Satellite" More tools, fault finding. Spectrum Analysers. Digital uplinking. We go live on TV. Systems in flats, multiple receivers from 1 dish, system visits, and much more.

The Motorised Satellite Video Volume 3 2 hrs. 20 mins. £14.95
We talk to many manufactures including Nokia. Triax. Channel Master, Humax, RSD, Hirschman & many more. Setting up a horizon to horizon motor. The 1224 Supermount. Setting actuator limits. Test instruments Inexpensive satellite meters & inclinometers reviewed. Internet via satellite. Vol. 3 is a continuation of Vol. 1& 2 The 3 videos form a complete series. Once again the presenter considers technical subjects & explains them in 'plain English'.

(Paying by cheque? Videos should be payable to "AVS." All other goods "Visiondotcom Ltd.")





Better Satellite Reviews The Motorised Satellite Videos
"They'r crammed full of technical info. - all explained in easy to understand terms". - and reffering to the videos, Costs will quickly be recouped if the advice is followed.

Customers Comments. I have just watched my copy of the Vol. 1 All I can say is SUPERB ! The narrator is interesting and obviously speaks with knowledge and competence. I would like to take this opportunity to thank you for the video. It's about time someone expelled the "myths & mysteries of satellite tv & explains them in plain English. Wish I'd bought the videos before I bought the system / The Vol 1 video has saved me loads of money ...

Motorised Systems

(We can program a receiver for you) (Matrix or 1.5 magic CAMs at only £69.95 avail. with systems)

Advice. Our systems from Technomate, Topfield & Echostar include internal 36 volt positioners and heavy duty bolt on motors. This avoids the use a light weight universal fit (i.e. does not fit anything properley) Diseqc motors are small and run on about 0.3 amps. 36V motors typically run on about 2-3 amps and are much stronger. All our motors are 36V. We do not sell diseqc motors

Our dishes. The Triax TD 78, 88, & 1.1 use the Triax bolt on 5 Kg 36 volt motor. The Funke (F-1.0m) uses the superb 128 36V motor, The Fortec Star 1.2m dish (FS-1.2) and the Channel Master 1.2m dish (CM1.2 S) both use the 15Kg 1224 Supermount H to H motor. The Channel Master 1.2 is also available with the 15Kg CM polar mount (CM-1.2P) and the Fortec Star 1.6 (FS-1.6) is also available with a 15Kg polarmount/motor. The transparent 85cm (T-85) uses the Jaeger 99G 36 volt motor. It is universal fit, but it is the best type available and 36V. The heavy duty Channel Master 90cm (CM-90S) comes with the bolt on 15Kg 1224 Supermount. All systems come with a free fitting kit worth £40

TV CHOICES

PLAYMAKERS

FX, 9pm

The much-advertised American football drama continues to entertain and occasionally shock – as in some storylines art emulated real-life NBA scandals. It is a shame it was cancelled so soon. Omar Gooding and Jason Matthew Smith star.

SUMMER NIGHTS OF CRIME

UKTV Drama, 9pm

Between The Lines (starring Siobhan Redmond, Neil Pearson and Tom Georgeson, above) joins Miss Marple, The Inspector Linley Mysteries, Silent Witness and Murder Rooms: The Dark Beginnings Of Sherlock Holmes in the crime drama line-up.

LEGENDS: JAMES STEWART

Sky Cinema 1, 2pm

A triple bill of films starring the lovely Jimmy Stewart – the noirish Call Northside 777 at 2pm, The Glenn Miller Story (4pm) and culminating with Mr Smith Goes To Washington (pictured) at 6pm. It's a wonderful triple bill from this most unassuming of American screen actors.

BIG BROTHER'S EFOURUM

E4, 7pm

Comedian Russell Brand asks members of the public and media pundits to talk about what's been happening in the 'evil' Big Brother House. As it's eviction night the house-mates are bound to be a bit skittish. Especially as this house is less than cosy.

TV CHOICES

THE LOST FILM OF DIAN FOSSEY

National Geographic, 8pm
Previously unreleased footage of gorilla expert Dian Fossey – commissioned by the National Geographic Society and filmed by Bob Campbell. Showing alongside biopic Gorillas In The Mist, with Sigourney Weaver as Fossey.

PORRIDGE

UKTV Gold, 9am
A whole day of Porridge episodes – starring the inimitable Ronnie Barker as old lag Fletcher and the late Richard Beckinsale (father of the far less talented but ubiquitous Kate) as his protégé Lennie Godber. One of the great 1970s comic creations.

TV CHOICES

KINGS AND QUEENS OF ENGLAND

UKTV History, 8pm

Alan Eriera (above) studies the Hanoverians – four Georges, one William and one Victoria. The era saw great political and social upheaval – the loss of the Americas included – and the excesses and madnesses of various Georges.

STREET HYPNOSIS

Bravo, 10pm

Hypnotist Peter Powers exercises his last name and takes to the streets in an effort to make ordinary people do ridiculous and extraordinary things in broad daylight, sometimes in front of their mates. Oh, the embarrassment when they snap out of it.

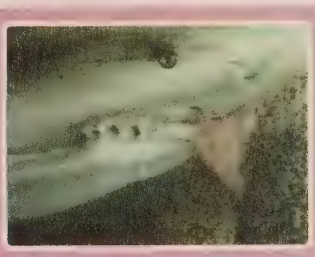
TV CHOICES

TRU CALLING

Sky One, 9pm

She's tough, she's pretty and (let's face it) just a bit butch. This week, Tru Davies (Eliza Dushku) does more good deeds in an effort to wake up today instead of yesterday again. This time she has to help a beauty pageant hopeful.



ANIMAL FACE-OFF

Discovery, 9pm

Who would win in a battle of a hippo against a bull shark? How about a Siberian Tiger versus a grizzly bear? This new six-part series aims to find out – by making mechanical versions of the animals and making them fight it out.

TV CHOICES

MASTER AND COMMANDER: THE FAR SIDE OF THE WORLD

Sky Box Office, every 15 minutes

LUCKY

FX, 9.30pm

New darkly comic series starring the quietly charismatic John Corbett – who is enjoying a bit of a renaissance after his years in the wilderness following Northern Exposure.

Here, he plays low-life gambler Mike 'Lucky' Linkletter.

KING OF THE HILL

FX, 8pm

The new series of King Of The Hill premieres on FX – quite a coup for the fledgling channel, and perhaps a sign of the good things to come. Confused family man Hank is still obsessed with Texas and propane, and his worries show no sign of disappearing.

SUE THOMAS FB EYE

Hallmark, noon and 8pm

Start of the second series of the popular drama, loosely based on a true story. Sue (Deanne Bray) is profoundly deaf, but with the help of her trusty hearing-dog, Levi, she manages to solve some of the FBI's toughest crimes.

TV CHOICES

LOUIS THEROUX'S WEIRD WEEKENDS

UKTV People, 10pm

Although his shtick has become a little tiresome these days, Louis Theroux (once Michael Moore's protégé) is still an appealing presenter – showing up foibles and freakiness in all its forms. This episode: Black Nationalism.

KILLERS IN THE WATER

Sky Travel, 8pm

David McCallum presents accounts of savage aquatic attacks – from the usual suspects such as sharks and crocodiles, as well as from Zimbabwean hippos who savagely protect their territory. You may never go in the water again.

TV CHOICES

KING SOLOMON'S MINES

Hallmark, 9pm

Patrick Swayze plays the dashing adventurer Allan Quartermain (previously played by Richard Chamberlain and Stewart Granger – and by Sean Connery in League Of Extraordinary Gentlemen). Reasonable entertaining adaptation, if a little redundant.

TABLOID TALES

UKTV People, 8pm

Jade Goody just doesn't seem to go away. Even with several crops of Big Brother evictees available she still gets as much column space as Posh and Becks. Ex-Mirror editor Piers Morgan looks at all this and other tabloid created stars and non-stories.

TV CHOICES

CRIME WAVE

TCM, 3pm

It would be James Cagney's 105th birthday this year, and TCM celebrates with some of his best films, as well as other crime-related classics. TCM is also sponsoring the National Film Theatre's Crime Scene season to tie in with the TV strand.

TOURIST TRAP

Sky Travel, 8pm

Billed as a social experiment, this challenges (or confirms) national stereotypes by giving four groups of tourists the holiday from Hell and seeing how they react to the situation. Needless to say, nobody comes out of it very well.

TV CHOICES

SWISS TONI

BBC Three, 10.30pm

Now separated and living with his mother, things don't seem to be looking very bright for poor Toni. Maybe he should console himself with fine wines and chocolate – he's still not selling many cars, let alone making love to a beautiful woman.

TIME AND TIDE

Film 4, 10.25pm

Nicholas Tse (the floppy haired star of Gen-X Cops) plays Tyler, a young gangster working as a bodyguard for his uncle. His new friend Jack (Wu Bai) convinces him to start a new scam – which is fine until they fall out. Tsui Hark directs.

VIEW FROM THE TOP

Sky Box Office, every 30 minutes
Long-suppressed Gwyneth Paltrow comedy in which she stars as an ambitious air hostess trying to rise to the top of her profession. Much like Legally Blonde, only without the cuteness, the wit, the humour or the brains. Mike Myers co-stars.

GASLIGHT

TCM, 5.05pm
Classic melodrama. Ingrid Bergman stars as a young wife convinced that her new husband Gregory (Charles Boyer) is trying to drive her mad. It's true, of course – he's in league with Angela Lansbury (pictured). Only Joseph Cotten can save the day.

EGYPT AND THE NILE WEEK

UKTV History, all week

What is our fascination with Egypt? Its mummies, sarcophagi, pyramids and peculiar death cults were history long before the Romans invaded Britain, and still its culture is fairly influential – spiritually and psychologically. Is it the mystery?

TV CHOICES

THE MILE HIGH CLUB

Sky Travel, 10pm

It's an exclusive club, mostly because you'd have to be a bit of a masochist to try to do anything athletic in tiny airline lavatories or squeezed between seats in standard class. It's also highly illegal. Still, there are members – some of them prepared to talk.

FINAL DESTINATION 2

Sky Movies 1, 8pm

As with the first movie, a premonition saves a group of kids, but they find they can't cheat death. Cheesy, knowing and ironic post-Scream horror which is about as good as you would expect. Starring Ali Larter, AJ Cook and Michael Landes (pictured).

LILO AND STITCH

Disney, 4pm

Network TV premiere. Lilo is an adorable little Hawaiian girl, Stitch is a bizarre alien experiment with a wicked streak. Together they discover that family and friends are all-important. It's adorable and sweet without being too sickly.

TOMMY WALSH DAY

UKTV Style, 11am

The toughest builder/gardener on TV (and undoubtedly the biggest) has a whole day dedicated to him. Tommy Walsh was spotted when he was doing some work for the executive producer of Ground Force – she invited him for a screen test and look at him now.

TV CHOICES

Front Row, every 60 minutes

Uma Thurman is slightly unconvincing as a martial arts expert, but if you can put that to the back of your mind you should be able to get something out of Quentin Tarantino's homage (pronounced hodge-podge) of kung fu, Samurai and cowboy films.

DAVID COPPERFIELD: PART 1

Sky Movies 1, 6.20pm

Two-part television adaptation of the Dickens novel. David Copperfield's secure childhood is disturbed when his father dies and his mother marries the nasty Mr Murdstone. Hugh Dancy stars as David. Paul Bettany, Anthony Andrews and Sally Field co-star.

TV CHOICES

A 4X4 IS BORN

Discovery Home & Leisure, 9pm
Presenter and engineering fanatic Mark Evans transforms a wrecked and rusty Range Rover into a custom-built off-road vehicle capable of 'virtually climbing a vertical wall'. It's a pity so many of them are only used by silly women for shopping at Sainsbury's.

HIGH STAKES

UKTV People, 10pm
Gambling is bigger business than ever before – with more people spending more of their income. Americans wager more on legal gambling annually than on food (some of it is in the form of bingo and lotteries). Who runs the show – and are they the only winners?

BRIGHT YOUNG THINGS

Sky Box Office, every 60 minutes

Stephen Fry's directorial debut, an adaptation of Evelyn Waugh's Vile Bodies, is nowhere near as accomplished as you would like it to be, but it's still fun. Emily Mortimer, Michael Sheen and Stephen Campbell-Moore star.

TO THE MOON

UKTV History, 10pm

Yesterday was the 35th anniversary of the first moon landing. This two-part story tells the tale of the astronauts – but also the scientists and engineers who made the mission possible – turning a moon landing from a science fiction fantasy to reality.

THE ONE AND ONLY

Sky Movies 1, 11.40pm

Richard Roxburgh (pictured) definitely has a certain something – he was wonderful as the evil Duke in Moulin Rouge and perked up the recent movie Van Helsing no end – but what he's doing in this Geordie romantic comedy is anyone's guess.

WAYNE GARDNER WORLD CHAMPION

Men & Motors, 6pm

When Wayne became World 500cc Motorcycle Championship in the Brazilian Grand Prix on September 27, 1987, a 10-year-old dream came true. He was the first Aussie ever to win the premiere class in international motorcycle racing.

IT AIN'T HALF HOT MUM

UKTV Gold, 7pm

In American Gods, Neil Gaiman says if you catch an episode of a show you don't usually watch it's always the same one. In that case it was the Cheers episode with Coach's daughter; with It Ain't Half Hot Mum it must be this – Mrs Waddilove-Evans is captured by bandits.

YOUNG ADAM

Front Row, every 60 minutes

Ewan MacGregor plays Joe, a young Scottish writer who has to work on a canal barge to make ends meet. All goes well until he and his boss find a body in the water. Does Adam know more than he's letting on? Tilda Swinton and Peter Mullan also star.

Sky One, 9pm

The last 24 in the series (although a new series has been commissioned for next year, sans Kim). Will Jack (Kiefer Sutherland) save the world from the deadly virus – or will he be too late to stop it? Hmm. Let's see – there's another series coming...

REPO MEN: STEALING FOR A LIVING

Reality TV, 9pm

Vincent Pastore (Big Pussy from The Sopranos) looks inside the world of the Repo Men – debt collectors hired to repossess the property of those who forfeit on loans. Much of what they do is illegal, and almost all of it is sleazy.

TV CHOICES

THE OTHER BOLEYN GIRL

UKTV Drama, 9pm

Natascha McElhone stars as Anne's (Jodhi May) elder sister Mary, King Henry's lover before Anne. Mary bore Henry a son and may have fallen in love with him, but she was already married. Based on Philippa Gregory's novel. Beware of Mary's messy-nosed crying.

HONEY BADGER – THE MEANEST ANIMAL IN THE WORLD?

National Geographic, 6pm

The adorable-looking honey badger is actually a very vicious creature. It kills snakes, can hold its own against a leopard and has no fear of bees. The cute little thing is reputed to be the most aggressive animal in Africa.

TV CHOICES

PETER PAN

Front Row, every 60 minutes
Jason Isaacs' Hook is by far the best thing in this otherwise fairly mediocre retelling of the JM Barry tale. Jeremy Sumpter is a snot-nosed American Pan – who deserves all Hook's enmity. Richard Briers also stars (as Hook's first mate Smee).

OUR HOUSE 2

UKTV Style, 8pm
Jenny Powell presents UKTV Style's second attempt at renovating a dilapidated old house – this time a Victorian three-bedroom property in glamorous Sidcup. The hard work is done by the usual suspects – including Tommy Walsh, Andy Kane and Craig Phillips.

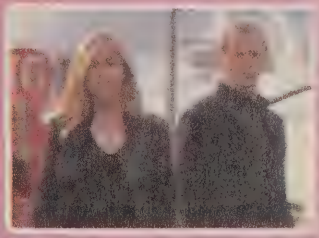
TV CHOICES

BODY HUNT: THE SEARCH FOR THE UNKNOWN SOLDIER

UKTV History, 10pm

Marking the 90th anniversary of the First World War. Almost 300,000 British and Commonwealth dead were buried in unmarked graves. Prof Margaret Cox (above) helps the MoD to identify some of those found in a mass grave in Arras.



DEAD FAMOUS

Living TV, 9pm

Yet more spooky programming from Living TV. Gail Porter (who says she is a sceptic, but seems to be fairly easy to convince) and self-confessed sensitive Chris Fleming revisit the reputedly haunted Thunderbird Lodge, scene of a previous close encounter.

WHEN DINGOES ATTACK

Sky Travel, 8pm

In 2001 nine-year-old Clinton Gage was mauled to death by dingoes. Before that, Lindy Chamberlain fought hard to prove 'a dingo ate my baby'. The Australian government and the Aboriginal community give arguments for and against a cull of the dingoes.

FREAKY FRIDAY

Sky Box Office, every 30 mins)

Teen star du jour Lindsay Lohan and Jamie Lee Curtis swap bodies in this amusing remake of the 1976 Jodie Foster movie. There are a few modern references (divorce and rock music) but it's not all that different in tone to the original.

TV CHOICES

TERROR ALERT

Sky One, 9pm

A mixture of information and gore as Sky tries to show what could happen in the event of a massive crisis – be it nuclear, gas, forces of nature or fire from the skies. Scary and strangely entertaining at the same time – much like most of Sky's output.

GHOST CAT

Sky Movies 2, 3pm

Who can resist a film about a cat who is a ghost? You'd have to be hard-hearted indeed. Michael Ontkean stars as Wes Merritt, who with his daughter Natalie, makes friends with old Mrs Ashboro and her cat (deceased).

TV CHOICES

LAW & ORDER

Hallmark, 10pm

Jerry Orbach (Dirty Dancing), Jesse L Martin and Sam Waterston star as the dedicated New York detectives. A murder attempt on a judge results in serious injury – all evidence points to her husband, but the judge refuses to convict him.

JESUS CHRIST SUPERSTAR

The fifth series of the kids' sci-fi show about a girl who has strange powers after a toxic waste spillage. Larisa Oleynik (10 Things I Hate About You) is Alex – able to liquefy herself, become a human magnet and create force fields.

WIN a Dreambox

MULTIMEDIA SATELLITE RECEIVER!

Dreambox receivers have been creating quite a buzz among the satellite community, with entire websites having sprung up devoted to getting the most from their bounteous features.

The two models, the DM 7000-S and DM 5620-S, sport 250MHz IBM processors and 64MB of RAM, and are powered by the Linux operating system. The DM 7000-S also features capacity for an optional hard disc (one can be added later at a cost of £90).

Both boxes feature MPEG2 decoding and are also compatible with MPEG4 and HDTV.

An impressive list of applications includes web browsers, e-mail clients, and multicrypt CAMs for the twin built-in card readers.

The receivers also feature Ethernet ports for networking and accessing the internet, a USB port for adding DiSEqC 1.2 motor control, twin common interfaces and a Flash memory slot. In addition, there's an optical digital audio output with Dolby and DTS support, and twin Scarts.

The DM 7000-S costs £299 (without a hard disc), while the 5620-S costs £199.

Signal Master Satellite, the exclusive UK distributor of Dreamboxes, has kindly given us one DM 7000-S (hard disc drive not included) and two DM 5620-S Dreamboxes to give away. For a chance of winning one of these great prizes, just answer the question on the form below.

For more on the Dreamboxes phone SMS on 01276 20916, or write to SMS, Unit 1A, Bridge Road, Camberley, Surrey GU15 2QR ■
